THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirements of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable values.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.
There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and predescing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Whatever applied you get the benefit of every drop, whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

TWO MERCHANTS.

When trade grew slack, and notes fell due,
The merchant's face grew long and blue,
His dreams were troubled through the night,
With sheriffs, bailiffs, all in sight.
At last his wife unto him said—
"Rise up at once, get out of bed,
And get your ink and pen,
And say these words unto all men:—

"My goods I wish to sell to you,
And to your wife and daughters too,
My prices they shall be so low,
That each shall buy before they go."
He did as his good wife advised,
And in the paper advertised.
Crowds came and bought o' all he had,
His notes were paid, his dreams were glad,
And he will tell you to this day,
How well did printer's ink repay,
He told us with a knowing wink,
How he was saved by printer's ink.

Another—in a place as tight—
Contented with the press so slight
He did not let the people know,
Of what he had, or where to go.
His drams were due and were not paid,
A levy on his goods were made,
The store was closed until the sale,
And for some time he was in jail.
A bankrupt now without a cent,
At leisure he can deep repent—
That he was foolish and newise,
And did not freely advertise.

Running for Parliament.

BY MARK TWAIN.

A few years ago I was nominated for Legislature from the great State of New York, to run against Seward L. Woodford and John T. Hoffman on the independent ticket. I somehow felt that I had one prominent advantage over these gentlemen, and that was a good character.—It was easy to see by the newspapers that if ever they had known what it was to have a good name, that time had gone by. It was plain that in these latter years they had become familiar with all manner of shameful crimes. But at the very moment that I was enabling my advantage and employing it in secret there was a muddy undercurrent of discomfort "rilling" the depths of my happiness—and that to hear my name bandied about in familiar connection with those of such people. I grew more and more disturbed. Finally I wrote to my grandmother about it. Her answer came quick and sharp, she said—

"You have never done one single thing in your life to be ashamed of. Look at the newspapers—look at them and comprehend what sort of characters Woodford and Hoffman are, and then see if you are willing to lower yourself to their level and enter a public canvass with them."

It was my very thought! I did not sleep a single moment that night. But after all, I could not recede. I was finally committed, and must go on with the fight.—As I was looking listlessly over the papers at breakfast I came across this paragraph. And I may truly say that I never was so confounded in my life.

PERJURY.—Perhaps now that Mr. Mark Twain is before the people as candidate for Governor, he will condescend to explain how he came to be convicted of perjury, by thirty-four witnesses, in Wakawak, Cochin China in 1863, the intent of which was to rob a poor native widow and her helpless children of a meagre plantation patch, their only stay and support in their bereavement, and desolation. Mr. Twain owes it to himself as well as to the great people whose suffrages he asks, to clear the matter up. Will he do it?"

I thought I should burst with amazement! Such a cruel charge—I had never seen Cochin China! I never heard of Wakawak! I didn't know a plantation patch from a kangaroo! I did not know what to do. I was crazed and helpless.—I let the day slip away without doing anything at all. The next morning the same paper had this —nothing more,

"SIGNIFICANT—Mr. Twain, it will be observed, is suggestively silent about the Cochin China perjury."

(MEM.—During the rest of the campaign this paper never referred to me in any other way than as the "infamous perjurer, Twain.")

Next came the Gazette, with this,

"WANTED TO KNOW.—Will the new candidate for the Legislature deign to explain to certain of his fellow-citizens (who are suffering to vote for him,) the little circumstance of his cabin-mates in Montana losing small valuables from time to time, until at last these things being invariably found on Mr. Twain's person or in his 'trunk' (a newspaper he rolled his traps in), they felt compelled to give him a friendly admonition for his own good and so tarred and feathered him, and rode him on a rail, and advised him to leave a permanent vacuum in the place he usually occupied in the camp. Will he do this?"

(After this, this joural invariably spoke of me as "Twain—Montana Thief.")

I go to picking up papers apprehensively. Much as one would lift a desired blanket which he had some idea might have a rattlesnake under it. One day this met my eye:—

"THE LIE NAILED.—By the sworn affidavits of Michael O'Flanagan, Esq., of the Five Points, and Mr. Kit Burns and Joe Allen, of Water Street., it is established that Mark Twain's vile statement that the lamented grandfather of our noble standard-bearer John T. Hoffman, was hanged for highway robbery, is a brutal and gratuitous LIE, without a single shadow of foundation in fact. It is disheartening to virtuous men to see such shameful means resorted to achieve political success as attacking the dead in their graves, defiling their honoured names with slander. When we think of the anguish this miserable falsehood must cause the innocent relations and friends of the deceased, we can about driven to desire on the part of the public to summary and unlawful vengeance upon the traducer. But we will let him to the agony of a [illegible] conscience—(though if passion should get the better of the public, and in their blind fury should do the traducer bodily injury, it is but too obnoxious that no jury could convict and no court punish the perpetrators of the deed.)"

The ingenious closing sentence had the effect of moving me out of bed with despatch that night and out of the back door also, while the "outraged and insulted public" surged in the front way oreaking furniture and windows in their righteous indignation as they came, and taking away such property as they could carry when they left. And yet I can lay my hand upon the Book and say that I never slandered Gov. Hoffman's grandfather.—More—I never heard of him or mentioned him up to that day and date.

[I will state in passing, that the journal above quoted always referred to me as Mark Twain the Bodysnatcher.]

The next newspaper article which attracted my attention was the following:

"A SWEET CANDIDATURE.—Mark Twain who was to make such a blighting speech at mass meeting of the Independents last night didn't come to time. A telegram from his physician stated that he had been knocked down by a runaway team and his leg broken in two places—sufferer lying in great agony, and so forth, and a lot more bosh of the same sort. And the Independents tried hard to swallow the wretched subterfuge and pretended that they did not know the REAL reason of the absence of the abandoned creature whom they denominate their standard-bearer. 'A certain man was seen to reel into Mr. Twian's hotel last night in a state of beastly intoxication!' It is the imperative duty of the Independents to prove that the besotted brute was not Mark Twain himself. We have them at last! This is a case that admits of no shrinking. The voice of the people demands in thunder tones: "WHO WAS THAT MAN?"

It was incredible, for a moment that it was really my name that was coupled with this disgraceful suspicion. Three long years have passed over my head since I have tasted ale, beer, wine, or liquor of any kind.

[It shows what effect times were having upon me when I say I saw myself confidentially dubbed, "Mr. Delirium Tremens Twain" in the next issue of that paper, without a pang—not withstanding I knew that with monotonous fidelity the paper would go on calling me so to the end.]

By this time anonymous letters were getting to be an important part of my mail matter. This form was common:

"How about the old woman you kicked out of your premises who was begging?,

"POL PRY."

"There is things which you have done which is unbeknown to anybody but me You had better trot out a few dols. to yours truly or you'll hear through the papers from Handy Andy."

That was about the idea. I could continue them until the reader was surfeited if desirable.

Shortly afterwards the principal republican paper "convicted" me of whole sale bribery, and the leading democratic paper "nailed" an aggravated case of blackmailing to me.

(In this way I acquired two additional names, "Mark Twain, the Loathsome Embracer.")

By this time there had grown to be such a clamor for an answer to all the charges that were laid against me, that the editors and leaders of my party said it would be political ruin for me to remain silent any longer As if to make the appeal the more imperative the following appeared in one of the papers the very next day.

"BEHOLD THE MAN.—The Independent candidate still maintains silence. Because he dare not speak. Every accusation against him has been amply endorsed by his eloquent silence, till at this day he stands forever convicted. Look upon your candidate Independence! Look upon the Infamous Perjurer! the Montana Thief, the Bodysnatcher! Contemplate your incarnate Delirium Tremens! your Filthy Corruptionist! your Loathsome Embracer! Gaze upon him—ponder him well—and then say can you give your honest vote to a creature who has earned this dismal array of titles by his crimes, and dares not open his mouth in denial of any of them."

There was no possible way of getting out of it, so, in deep humiliation I set about preparing to answer a mass of baseless charges and mean and wicked falsehoods. But I never finished the task, for the next morning a paper came out with a new horror, a fresh malignity, and seriously charged me with burning a lunatic asylum with all its inmates, because it obstructed a view from my house. This threw me into a sort of panic. Then came the charge of poisoning my uncle to get his property, with his imperative demand that the grave should be opened. This drove me to the verge of distraction On the top of this I was accused of employing toothless old relatives to prepare the food for the foundling hospital when I was Warden. I was wavering—wavering. And at last, as a due and fitting climax to the shameless persecution that party rascour had inflicted upon me, nine little fondling children, of all shades of color and degrees of raggedness were taught to come on the platform at a public meeting and clasp me round the legs and call me pa. I gave it up. I hauled down my colors and surrendered. I was not equal to the requirements of a Legislative campaign in the State of New York, and so I sent my withdrawal from the candidacy, and in the bitterness of spirit signed it,

Yours truly,

Once a decent man but now Mark Twain, I.P., M.T., B., D. T., F.C., and L.E.

OLD BATTLE FIELDS.

A VISIT TO THE CRIMEA—HOW THE OLD POSTS LOOK TO-DAY—A VIEW OF INKERMAN THE BALAKLAVA—SOME INTERESTING RUSSIAN RELICS—ENGLISH GRAVES.

An English correspondent, writing from Constantinople, Sept 21st, says:

We received cards at Constantinople to go to Galata, and there had the pleasure of seeing Adye and Col. Gordon—the latter having our commissioner in the Russian who were to proceed to the Crimea to inspect all the English [illegible] and report on their condition to our Government. We left the Bosphorus on the 23nd ult., and were at Galatz on the 24th. I was much disappointed with the Danube, the country on either side of the river being perfectly flat, with high reeds, and the river of a dirty yellow color. Neither was Galatz a lively place, being by all accounts either all dust or all mud; it was dust's turn while we were there, and it blew in clouds. The only place of amusement that was a public garden, where a band played of an evening, and where you could get bad liquor at extravagant prices.—This delightful spot was most improperly called a "Garden of Paradise," but enough of Galatz. We left on the 27th, and were at Odessa the next day. Here we only stayed a couple of hours, and went on to Sebastopol. Sebastapol is one large ruin; you could hardly imagine the state it must have been left in. Barring here and there, where a few houses have been rebuilt, it reminds you more of Pompeii than anything.—On the 30th, having got horses (wooly brutes with Cossack saddles) Adye and I started on a tour of inspection. We had no guide but a good map Col. Gordon lent us. We first rode to the Malakoff, of which nothing remains but a small semicircular tower about fifteen feet high in the centre. All the rest of the walls and entrenchments are but heaps of rubbish. The French, before taking the Malakoff, carried their trenches, which are visible, to within an incredible short distance from the Russian line. They were only sixty yards from the base of the front, so that the French batteries, which were some distance to the rear of their trenches, had to fire with great nicety, or they ran a chance of hitting their own men. From the Malakoff we rode on to the Mamelon, which was also taken by the French. Looking from the Malakoff inland the Mamelon is about 400 or 500 yards off, slightly to the left; it, like its great neighbor, is situated on top of a mound. On the other side of the Malakoff, across a sort of ravine, is the great Redan, which proved such a tough morsel to our men. It is in the same condition as the other forts, nothing but heaps of rubbish. Here we found two skulls. We then rode to where the camp of the Light Division was, about three miles from the forts. Here you can see the ruins of our men's huts, and a cemetery of the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery. Meeting General Adye, he directed us to the field of Ingermen, which is about two miles further to the left. On the heights above the Tchernaya valley, the spot where the fiercest fighting occurred is marked by an obelisk erected to the memory of the English, French and Russians who fell in the battle. We rode on a short way to the edge of the cliffs, and came to the celebrated Sandbag Battery, which the Guards defended against such immense odds, and then returned to the town by the ravine by which the Russians ascended to the attack. The land all round within four or five miles of Sebastopol consists of high steppes without trees or hedges, but in some parts a sort of scrub grows, and several deep ravines run down to the harbor, especially on the Malakoff side. Another day I went up the Tchernaya River in a skiff. In this valley the battle of Tchernaya was fought by the French and Sardinians. Here, many centuries ago, was the town of Ingerman, if habitations cut in the solid perpendicular cliffs, one above another, like holes in a rabbit warren, deserve the name of town. You can now see the roof all excavated. Some of these cave-like habitations are still used, as we saw people in them.—There are now about 7,000 troops encamped on the south side of Sevastopol.—Horse, Artillery and Infantry. Of the former there were forty guns and eight mitrailleuse. They were reviewed, and had a sham fight on the 4th, in honor of Gen. Adye, who went with Colonel Gordon and our gallant captain on horseback. The two former great swells were in cocked hats, plumes and no end of medals and orders. The general wished some of us to go also, so we buckled on our swords and were politely accommodated by the authorities with an open carriage, horses not being obtainable, in which we were driven about after the Staff. On being presented to the Russian General, he asked us to go to headquarters after the review and have some tea. He had an odd way of giving orders to the buglers in attendance, for instead of saying, "Sound the retreat," or whatever it was, he imitated the call he wanted with his lips, and it was repeated by the buglar. Headquarters turned out to be a wooden hut in the middle of the camp, where we found a table laid with fruits, sardines, anchovies, German sausages, biscuits, bread—quite a la russe, and were soon supplied with tea, brought in tumblers, with no milk, but a slice of lemon floating in it. On the 6th we went round to Balaklava. This is the most wonderfully inclosed natural harbor, it is long, narrow, and very deep. On the the right hand side going in it is a precipitous cliff on which some old Genoese towers, on one side of which, with the assistance of a rope to lower himself down a pot of black paint and a brush, one of our fellows painted the ship's name in letters four feet long. On each side of the harbor are steep hills 400 or 500 feet high, which protect it from the wind. The the entrance is so narrow that, before the Crimean war, the Russians never considered it as a harbor, not thinking large ships could get in. A twenty mile walk and a good map enabled me to form a good idea of the battle of Balaklava. There are still the remains of the redoubt and earthworks, batteries which played the mischief with our 600 braves in the Light Cavalry charge. We walked over the fatal valley of the Eadukbine heights, where the French were afterwards encamped, Here we found the remains of their roofless huts many sardine and potted meat tins are still strewn about, with the usual collection of bottles. From here we went to Yalta, thence to Kertch, and thence on here.

The latter days of Li Chow Chin's life were spent in communion with an ugly wooden god, to which he remained desperately loyal, in spite of the efforts of a Christian minister to convert him. His funeral was attended by 220 Chinese, the total number of Captain Harvey's imported washermen. Dressed as usual in wooden shoes, flappy pantaloons, loose shirts and far-extended pig-tails, they assembled in the spacious ironing room of the laundry, awaiting the removal of their departed brother. When all was ready, they moved gravely down to the burial place in the field below. They surrounded the grave and each threw a piece of lighted paper down upon the corpse. A volume of smoke arose from the grave, and the spirit of Li Chow Chin was believed by his brethren to have ascended with it to the clouds. As the clay was being heaped upon the corpse, little sticks and pieces of nickl currency were mingled with it, and money was distributed among the strangers who witnessed the ceremony. After the funeral, the Chinamen's supper bell rang, and they repaired

NORTH DOURO POST OFFICE.—Will the Post office authorities in North Douro please be more careful in distributing the mails north of them. Continual complaints reach us which we know are only too well founded. More attention in future will obliged us and the public whom we are trying to serve.

The Honorable Mr. Perdee, was re-elected by acclamation, for Lambton, on Wednesday last.

Mr. Perry, Member for North Oxford, has resigned his seat in the Ontario Legislature, and Mr. Mowat has been invited to be a candidate in his place. The writ is issued, and there is no probability of any opposition.

The Ontario Templar, published by Mr P. H. Stewart, Toronto, has just concluded the first half year of its existence. It is very neatly printed, and the reading matter well selected. It is calculated to do good service for the cause which it advocates. The friends of Temperance in Ontario should rally round Mr. Stewart, and by sending him large club lists make the Templar a success, and certain of continuing its work many years.

MAPLE LEAF CONCERT.—All the necessary arrangements have been made for the Grand Concert which is take place on or about the 20th of December, in aid of the Maple Leaf Cricket Club of this town. This is to be the Concert of the season, and nothing will be left undone by the members of the Club to have it pass off pleasantly. Already singers from a distance have been engaged, which, no doubt, will be well appreciated by the people of Peterborough. They have also engaged the best talent of which our own town can boast—and that is no small share. The members themselves are to take an active part in the performance, and altho' they do not profess to be amateurs, still they hope to be able to do their part both with honor to themselves and to the Club of which they are members The proceeds which they expect to derive from this Concert is to be laid out for the repairing of a suitable ground to play on, if such can be obtained. At this the close of the third year which this Club has been in existence they have a very favorable report to make of the matches they have played the past season. They have been engaged in five contests, one at home and four with foreign clubs, in all of which they have came off victorious. The members of the Maple Leaf Club would take this opportunity of returning their thanks to their brother cricketers of the Peterborough Cricket Club for the kindness and courtesy which upon all occasions they have manifested towards them in letting them have the use of their excellent ground upon which they could meet foreign clubs. They hope, therefore, next year to be able to return the compliment, if necessary, and in order to be able to do so it is necessary that we should have a "bumper house," on this our first endeavour to raise funds for the Club.

PETERBORO' FIRE BRIGADE.—At the last Regular Monthly Meeting of this Brigade, held in the Firemen's Hall, on Thursday Evening, Nov. 7th, the following were elected Officers for the coming year:

CAPTAIN—H. Robertson.
1st LIEUTENANT—Geo. Hutchinson
2nd " —T. Goldey.
3rd " —C. H. Johnston.
SECRETARY—Geo. J. Chalmers.
ASST. SEC'Y—T. Quincey.
TREASURER—A. Hall.
HOOK AND LADDER OFFICERS.
CAPTAIN—Wm. Langford.
LIEUTENANT—W. Martin.

At the same meeting a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. E. Robinson, for his handsome donation of $10 for services rendered by the Firemen, at his place, at the late fire.

St. Andrew's Society.

The Annual Meeting of the St. Andrew's Society was held in the Council Chamber, on Wednesday, 13th of Nov.

The President, John Bertram, Esq., in the chair.

The following Officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—J. A. Hall.
1st Vice—W. H. Paton.
2nd do —John Elder.
3rd do —James Millar.
Treasurer—Wm. Cameron.
Secretary—David Wallace.
Committee—Edward Moir, Dr. Taylor, W. G. Thompson, Duncan McGregor, George Brown, James Hope, C. E. A. Patterson, Wm McLear, D. D. Gallelly, James Whyte, George Morrison, J. R. Ormond, Wm Mercer.

It was agreed that St. Andrew's day be celebrated in the usual way by a dinner to be on Monday, the 2nd December, instead of Saturday, the 30th instant.

It was also agreed that the sum of twenty dollars be given to the Protestant Home.

The Finances of the Society are in a very healthy state, there being very few calls on it. Fifty-five dollars were paid for charities last year, and twenty dollars to the Home.

Wesleyan Methodists.

The result of the Lecture, Soiree and Meeting of friends has left the office bearers of the Church here, without any doubts as to their future course.

The subscription list foots up over $17,000 and the old church ground will realize at least $4,000, making a total of over $21,000, with which to commence operations.

We understand that it is the intention to erect a church next season, at a cost of not less than $20,000 to $25,000, on the lot lately occupied by Mr. Clexton's residence.

It is also contemplated building a church in the south part of the town at a cost of about $6,000, making a total out lay of not less than $30,000. Very handsome subscriptions have been given ranging from $2,500 downwards.

The response of the people to the call for church accommodation fully equals the expectations of the friends of the cause we think, and therefore on the opening of spring we may expect to see the contractors at work erecting a splendid building in the north part of the town.

The Shrievalty.

We learn, with much pleasure, that Mr. Jas. A. Hall, has received the appointment of Sheriff, in the room of his Father, who has resigned.

During the term of the Ex-Sheriff's appointment and the diplomas should be brought against him. He was kind and considerate in the discharge of all his duties, and we believe that the most respectable portion of the Community are saying that the choice made of a successor in the person of his son, Mr. P. A. Hall. He is a gentleman of the most unblemished upright character, courteous and obliging in all his relations, whether as citizen, gentleman, or officer of the Law, as he served for years as Deputy Sheriff, and he is one in which the whole community have confidence as to the discharge of all duties connected with the public.

As to the clap-trap in the last Review about the Norfolk Chivalry, it is not worth notice. The Ex. M. P. P. must have a fling at the Grits, and there is no good reason why his vanity should not be gratified. He will drive Mowat & Co. to ruin some day—yes he will. The Globe will be annihilated by some of his outbursts, and the Grits—oh! the naughty Grits—they must be overwhelmed—John says so, and so mote it be. But seriously, who ever thinks it anything more than a little phlegm or a wasting of youthful impetuosity, on the Grit phalanx. The Grits must be annihilated at any cost. And hence this ado.

Welland Redeemed.

The Election for a member for Welland in place of the late Mr. Street came off on Tuesday, and resulted in a complete reform victory. Mr. Thompson being elected by a majority of 63. Mr. Street had a majority of 589 at the late election but this was brought about by his great wealth and personal popularity. Mr. Thompson's having a majority in his favor shows that even Welland is reform, and that John A. & Co., will have but few followers in Ontario. Every new Contest proves the hopelessness of his case, and the growing power of Reform in the Dominion. The election of Mr. Thompson for Welland leaves John A. two votes worse on a division. Dr. Bergin at the Cornwall Banquet declared himself an out and out supporter of Mackenzie and Blake, although the Mail claimed him at the time of his election.

When the House meets the strength of parties will be seen. Appearances favor the idea that the days of John A. and Cartier, are about numbered. Their desperate efforts to retain Welland are conclusive that they require every vote to retain power.

Union with Peterborough.

The meeting in Ashburnham on Friday was all in favor of Uniting with the Town. Mr. Calcutt was somewhat non-committal but indicated opposition to Union.

Mr. A. H. Campbell was opposed to Union for fear of higher taxes, but gave no reason why he so feared.

Mr John Burnham was also afraid that the change would not be for the better—that it would entail higher taxes while it takes the management out of the hands of the ratepayers of the Village, and transfer it to the Peterboro Council.

Mr. Clurton, as a ratepayer, spoke in favor of Union as likely to benefit the whole village by causing new life to intermingle with the fixed ideas of the villagers, and by bringing about a like interest in all the people for the progress of the whole Town. He showed too that Mr. Campbell was wrong in his ideas about taxation, and stating that property was assessed not according to quantity, but according to value, which was the only fair way for all the Ratepayers.

Mr. R. D. Rogers followed Mr. Clurton, charging the Council with having sold the Village, and asserting that as one of those who had been instrumental in obtaining the incorporation of the Village he was opposed to selling it to Peterboro for nothing, and would therefore protest against the annexation as to the injury of the Village, and being only for the purpose of getting the people of the Village to aid the Town to pay its already high taxes. He condemned, what he called, the hole and corner way in which a Petition had been got up, and said that many who had signed it wished to take their names off it. He said that Union should only be after a vote of the people had been taken, for a petition could be got up to hang Queen Victoria. He would submit, he said, to a vote of the people, but even if the people voted in favor of annexation he would still feel it his duty to oppose it. And he concluded by asserting that two of the Councillors had sold the Village.

Mr. Stratton then read the Petition spoken of, signed by 134 ratepayers, and said that those who had care of the Petition instructed him to say that anyone and all who had signed the Petition under false representation, and wished to take their names off, could now do so publicly or by going to him at any time before it is sent away. He also corrrcted some mistakes about the rate being 15 mills on the dollar, when it really amounted to 20 mills including Statute Labor. He admitted that large property holders would be heavier taxed, but thought small holders would not, and if they should be, they would have an equivalent in having the Station and the right to send their children to the Peterboro School.

It was then moved by Mr. H. Glover, seconded by John Reid, Esq., P.L.S.—That this meeting is of opinion that the liberal offer of the Town should be accepted, and the two Municipalities become united, and that the meeting would sustain the Council in taking steps to secure the Union.

After some objections and a little cross firing, between those present, the motion was put and declared carried, not a single hand being raised against it.

The meeting then broke up.

We believe it is the intention of the friends of Union to carry the matter to Parliament and obtain an Act to that end at the earliest opportunity.

It will of course be opposed by a few, but only a few.

There are only 163 ratepayers in the Village, of these 140 have already signed a Petition with the above object. There are 8 female ratepayers who do not claim the right of voting on this matter, and some who are in favor of Union are not on the Petition yet.

Not more than about 30 names can be got to petition against annexation A month or so, will no doubt, bring it about.

SPLENDID NEW HEARSE.—Mr. John Brown, Cabinet Maker, George Street, has just purchased a splendid New Hearse. It is finished in the very best style, with large oval glass sides, and end doors.—The whole is silver mounted, and the finish is superb. It came by Grand Trunk and the Midland Railway on Saturday, and while it stood opposite his warerooms was justly admired by all who saw it.

A HORRIBLE MURDER.

Woman and Boy Fatally Killed IN NORTH DUMMER On THURSDAY LAST.

The news that Mrs. Jeremiah Payne of North Dummer, in the Stoney Lake settlement, and a boy named Doughty, a relative of Payne's who lived with him, had been murdered by a hired man named Wm Brenton, reached here on Friday.

The woman's head was battered into a pulp with the iron part of a large pick axe, her throat was cut completely across, and the boy's throat was also cut from ear to ear.

The man accused of the foul deed was taken about midnight on Friday night, in Peterboro, from his suspicious appearance, and he turned out to be the man wanted.

HOW IT OCCURED.

From information elicited at the inquest held by Dr. Kincaid, it appears that Brenton had been living with Mr. Payne about six months and a half. During that time he had been considered by Payne as a faithful man to work, but there were suspicions as to his character, so much so, that both Mr. and Mrs. Payne were in some little dread of him.

On the day the frightful murder was committed, Mr. Payne went to a threshing to a neighbor—without more than usual suspicion. About two o'clock, Brenton went to the place and asked Mr. Payne to go home and settle with him, as he desired to leave, Payne refused to go home then, but said as soon as he returned home he would settle with him. Brenton was very importunate, and urged that he should go then, but he did not go. Brenton then returned to Mr. Payne's it is believed, but it is thought that even at that time the foul murder had been perpetrated. This is not known, however.

About three o'clock, the machine was broken, and Mr. Payne and two neighbors went home together—separating at Payne's gate, he going to his own house. But on approaching his own door he found his wife lying covered with blood, her throat cut and her head all disfigured. His wild screams attracted the two men, who returned to him and witnessed the same appalling sight. She was lying about three feet from the front door, and the sight was enough to move the most hardened to sympathy and tears. Her young child was shut in, in the cradle, and with it the dog. They searched for the boy and a length found him in the root house, dead, with his throat cut and the blood spurts on one of the posts quite a piece from the body.

Not being able to find Brenton it was concluded that he was the murderer and efforts were made to get telegrams from Lakefield so as to intercept his flight, and he was accordinaly taken that night in this town.

It is the prevailing opinion that when he made up his mind to kill the woman, he first killed the boy to prevent his escape so as to cause alarm or be a witness against him. This he did in the root house, some rods from the house, and doing it suddenly no cries could be heard by the woman. Payne's house, too, is a considerable distance from any other house, as the settlement is small and scattered. It is believed that he then went towards the house, took the handle out of the pick-axe—as it was found at the fence near the house, and took the iron part in his hand. Mrs. Payne seeing him enter at the back door, fled when he overtook her, and with a blow of the heavy iron broke her skull; when down he must have literally smashed her head with the brutal weapon, and with a hellish fiendishness he then cut her throat, leaving only the vertebræ unsevered. This is the position in which poor Payne found the body of his wife when he came home. The wonder is that having imbued his hands in the blood of two victims, that he spared the child in the house alone.

The Coroner's investigation brought out nothing directly convicting Brenton other than the general conviction of the witnesses and jurors.

BRENTON'S HISTORY.

From the best information that we can gather, we learn that Brenton was first seen last winter or fall on an Island in Stoney Lake by Mr. Myles, father of the murdered woman, Mr. Myles took him home as he was almost frozen to death, cared for him, and as soon as he was fully recovered from the effects of the cold desired him to leave, but Brenton was unwilling to go, and offered to work for the winter for his board, Myles however sent him to cut wood at 15 cents a cord, it is said, and continued with him to March, when he hired with Payne for six months, at either $5 or $10 a month, as both sums are given, or two suits of clothes. During the summer some disagreement arose and while at the table together Brenton threatened that he would kill Mrs. Payne. He also made the same threat to Dr. Bingham

About August last he called on Dr. Bingham about Medicine, complaining to the Doctor that Mrs. Payne had not used him well, and that she had put horse hairs in her bread, that these had become worms in him and that he wanted Medicine for them and also for some other purpose. The Doctor told him it was all nonsense, and that he should not again speak of the thing, but gave him Medicine for the other complaint. He also spoke in severe terms of Mrs. Payne and vowed he would kill her as he knew she was determined to do him harm in some way. The Doctor told Mr Payne, we understand, and advised him to send the man away.

It is also said that Mrs. Payne was in constant dread of him, but of this we cannot speak positively.

BRENTON'S ACCOUNT OF HIMSELF.

We paid a visit to the Jail on Monday, and by the kindness of the Jailor had an interview with the prisoner. He says he was born at the Township of Sydney, County of Hastings, about the year 1820, that he went to school in that Township, that he has a sister still living in that section of Country, but he refuses to give a further account of himself. He worked for a man near Lindsay last winter, chopping wood, and says he came from there to Stoney Lake. By his own account he is now 51 or 53 years of age, but this, no doubt, is a mistake, as he cannot, from appearance, be more than 40 or 42 years of age. He talks nonsense in conversation, evading direct answers to questions propounded to him. He says that he feels his present position very much, wonders what will be done to him, remarking that all they can do is kill him, and that he does not care much about it as the world is not friendly at the best, and then in working for farmers they take all they can for what they pay. He

Mr. Payne saw him in the jail on Tuesday, talked to him, told him he believed he was the murderer of his wife and the boy, but elicited nothing from him of importance. When taken prisoner he had a pocket book, and in it two dollars and a few cents. Payne identified the pocket book as his, taken out of his house the day of the murder, and also one of the dollar bills, as being his, it having some peculiar mark or piece pasted on the corner. Mr. Payne accounting for getting it in change not long since.

Brenton had two pair of pants on him when taken prisoner. The jailor examined them and discovered blood stains on one leg of one pair, but the prisoner when asked to explain this said it must have come from his nose, and that he could account for it in no other way.

The knife which the murderer used to commit the attrocious deed has not yet been found, nor has Payne's gun and some bedding taken at the time, and rumor has gained partial credence that there were two persons concerned in the deed, and that one of them was seen going eastward from Payne's the same day. The second man, it is thought having the knife. This, however, is not substantiated by reliable testimony.

to commit the fiendish act cannot yet be found out. If there were two parties they must have done so with intent of robbing Payne, but the small sum of money in the house forbids this view of it. It is also stated that there were no evidence of a criminal assault on the woman, so that the prevailing opinion is that Brenton must have entertained the idea of revenging some imaginary evil treatment, on the unfortunate woman, and this having taken possesion of his mind to such a degree that he took this opportunity of Payne's absence to carry it into effect.

Theses are all surmises, however, and until something definite is proven against him, it is but right to consider him innocent, and let him have a fair trial. To poison the minds of jurors who may be called upon to render a verdict in the case, would be manifestly wrong on our part, or on the part of those who may have talked with him, and it is much better that the guilty should escape just punishment, than that the innocent suffer either through prejudice or because public opinion before hand convicts without due consideration.

For our own part, we lean to the idea that Brenton is of unsound mind to some degree, and that it was very unfortunate that Mr. Payne retained him so long in his service, and this the more, as he must have felt that his threats to himself and others must have led him to doubt the wisdom of having him in his family in his absence.

Damages in Manitoba.

Not long since the subject of damages to Dr Schultz was discussed, and the payment of the sum of $10,000 for Drugs &c., lost during the Riel revolt, was considered enormous.

During the late election contest, a row or riot took place and two newspaper offices received some slight damage and bills have been presented amounting to $10,000 and $17,000 respectively.

The London Advertiser in referring to the matter remarked that a cipher might be reasonably omitted from each of the claims.

The Manitoba Liberal says—

"We must assure our friend of the London Advertiser that if, instead of taking one 0 from the $17,600, he takes 00, it will leave $170, which will be a still nearer approximation to the injuries received by the Manitoban. We visited the office the day after the election, and we can safely say, confirmed by persons capable of judging, that $200 would fully cover all the injuries done to the Manitoban office, and $250 to the Metis. As for the Gazette, they lost nothing, for the simple reason that they had nothing to lose. If these offices have been so much damaged as the owners would lead the people to believe, how did it happen that they were able to get papers out two days after the election, and could publish some lines. We are not aware that there was a second riot which destroyed the type, presses, and materials by which were issued those filthy, lying, slanderous extras which have been so extensively copied and made the basis of comments by ministerial sheets of the same calibre down below. It appears rather a little suspicious, that our so much injured confreres should be able to get their offices in order and issue sheets two days after the election, sheets the like of which, for vile calumny, scurrilous libels and glaring falsehoods were never before issued in Manitoba, and we hope never to see issued again; and just as soon as they succeeded in giving their lies a start of a few days, they suddenly discontinued their issues, and fyled claims for indirect damages.

The whole of the injury done to the presses and material does not exceed a few hundred dollars.

Matters in Manitoba.

It is quite amusing to see the comments of ministerial organs in Canada on the disturbances which took place in this town during the late elections. Some go so far as to assert that hired rowdies were bro't from Moorehead, and that Grits were sent up all the way from Ontario for that purpose. In fact we knew of no Moorehead people in town on the day of election, neither did any one else. The only Moorehead people that happened to be in the vicinity were those belonging to the crew of the Selkirk, who were in the employ of Donald A. Smith, the ministerial candidate, so that if any damage were done by Moorehead people, or any violence committed, and that the crew of the Selkirk were the parties, then we must infer that Mr. Donald A. Smith paid them for so doing. And in regard to the assertions that it was the Grits in Manitoba who were guilty of causing the riot, or participating therein, we must in justice say, that engaged in that disturbance there were at least a dozen Conservatives for one clear Grit. There are no clear Grits or Conservatives [illegible] in Manitoba. There are yet both Tories [illegible] parties here are [illegible]

The Surplus.

We clip the following hints as to the surplus from the Telescope without in any way committing ourselves, we give it to our readers.

The Government of Ontario has about seven millions of unused capital, which must be disposed of in some way. The Government is strong in the confidence of every section of the Province, recent changes have made it stronger than ever. What will this strong Government do with the surplus? A very large amount has been set aside for railway purposes—Railways have had their share—enough have been projected to occupy ten years in completion, and the whole amount of Government aid is a little short of four millions. The balance might well appropriated for an entirely different object.

Nothing would improve the appearance of the country—nothing material would contribute more to its progress in the future, the elevation of the character, the improvement of the tastes, or comfort of the most important portion of the community (the children), than elegant, commodious public school houses.

What say our contemporaries to this suggestion. If the Government, out of its ample resources, would set apart a sufficient sum to provide a bonus to every school section which would build a school house on a plan to be provided by the Government or the Educational Department, to amount of, say, one third of the cost. The people of Ontario have been liberal to the public schools. After all most of the school buildings are wretchedly insufficient. The principle of helping those who are willing to help themselves has worked excellently in the payment of teachers and in elevating their standard. Why should not the same result follow in improving school buildings and grounds?

An effort was made to get both candidates to retire from the field in Welland in favour of Macdougall. King was willing but Thompson rejected the proposal, and the political pilgrim is adrift once more

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir—Although most of your readers have already heard the bloody details of the Dummer Tragedy, yet perhaps, a few additional items, gleaned on the spot, by one who was there a few hours after the horrible murder, might still be acceptable. The writer in company of a friend reached the residence of Jeremiah Payne about 10 p.m., of the same day on which the murder was committed. A horrified group of men and women was there, anxiously awaiting the arrival of the coroner.

The dead bodies still lay upon the blood-stained ground, where in a moment they had been stricken down by the hand of the murderer. Poor Mrs. Payne was lying on her back, outside and in front of her own house. the feet were directed towards the door, and about four feet distant therefrom, the body was in a straight position and the head was flexed to the right side, as if dragged to that side by the murderer for the purpose of cutting her throat. The body was covered with a white sheet, stained with blood, and when that was removed by one of the by-standers, a sight met our eyes so ghastly and so sickening that no language can fully describe it. On the back part of the head, and a little to the left side, the skull was broken in, to near the size of the palm of ones hand, and a portion of the brain was protruding from the wound. The skull was [illegible] along the whole extent of the [illegible] and also [illegible]

[illegible] pampered, coaxed and [illegible] hot-house plants, and seen [illegible] portion proscribed, persecuted and disfranchised, when he sees by the conduct of the powers that be, that all their actions tend to place a premium on murder and rebellion in Manitoba, that to all intents and purposes the profession of loyalty and British principle is a crime dangerous in the highest degree to the professor, and rewarded only by the frown of the authorities, or punishable with political ostracism, and when a man traces all these things to the Government at Ottawa, if he be an honest man, and one who wishes to see the rights of Britons administered equally to all classes, nationalities and creeds, without distinction, fear, favor or affection, he cannot help at once concluding that for the want of this fair play in Manitoba the Ottawa Government is chiefly responsible, and he throws in his lot with other Grits and Conservatives from Canada who determinedly resolve to oppose that government. And with all parties who have come to this province whether from Ontario, Quebec or Nova Scotia, or whether Conservatives, Grits, or ante-Confederates, there is no difference of opinion—all unite in tendering a steadfast opposition to the Government. There are hundreds here who have been, and will be through out their lives, staunch Conservatives, men who were never known to give a reform vote, and these men are bitter opponents to the Cartier-Macdonald Government. People will naturally say there must be a reason for all this. Let but doubting Conservatives and Grits alike come to Manitoba, and submit to what we have to submit to for three months and we venture to predict that they will know more of the chicanery and dark intrigues carried on at Ottawa, to make this a little Quebec, governed by the hierachy of Lower Canada, than they could learn in Ontario in twenty years. The Grits of Ontario are accused by certain journals of sending up paid agents here to carry out their programme at the Selkirk election. If such be the case, then Grits are legion in this country for it is a well known fact that the public opinion is such against the authorities in Manitoba, that although $500 reward was offered for the apprehension and conviction of those engaged in the riot, although that upwards of 200 persons were present, and that almost every man and woman in Winnipeg knew the parties, there is not one solitary individual to give information. So that the Government is really powerless in Manitoba, and unless that steps are immediately taken to appoint a Commissioner, whose duty it shall be to inquire into and report upon the political affairs of the province, with a view to a rectification, the ministry at Ottawa, and their paid satellites through out the country have not seen the beginning of the end of the difficulties which are now looming up. It may be asked, if the opposition against the Government is so great, why did it not manifest itself at the polls? Our answer is, by an act passed last session at Ottawa, legalizing an act passed here for the Registration of Voters, upwards of fifteen hundred voters, Canadians and others who came into the country, have been disfranchised, and what is more, unless the local act is changed, they will be so until the 1st of April, 1874. When it is seen that 1,500 have been disfranchised, and that the whole number of legal votes on the revised lists in the whole province do not amount to 2,000, it can readily be imagined how the Government succeeded in carrying the elections, as also the grounds of complaints which were the cause of the excitement and disturbances, and as the Government organ here and the Metis were both advocates of this proscriptive and disfranchising legislation, they naturally became the objects of public hatred, which showed itself, we regret to say, on the night of election.—Manitoba Liberal.

We clip the following hints as to the surplus from the Telescope without in any way committing ourselves, we give it to our readers.

THE REASON WHY!

DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALASAYA is called a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, because Phosphates constitute more than half of the material of the human body, and are absolutely essential to the of Bear, Muscle, and Nerve, which cannot attain full development without them. They promote a good appetite perfect digestion, create pure healthy, vitalizing blood and supply in the waste constantly going on the system as the result of mental and physicial exertion. Being combined with Calisaya, the Peruvian Bark, the only specific for Chills and Fever, and that condition of Nervous Prostration and General Debility arising from low vitality and exhaustive diseases it forms an elegant and agreeable, invigorating Tonic purely physiological in its action, that may be taken safely under all circumstance, and all diseased conditions of the body as it builds up the constitution in the same manner as our daily food.

FEEDING THE COW.

BY MRS. RICHARD GRANT WHITE.

Slowly along the shaded lane,
Cropping the grass from side to side,
Here comes the pretty brindle cow,
Home, at eventide

She stops at the garden gate and calls—
"O you little boy, and bring to me
Some of those apples round and ripe,
I see lying under the tree."

Little golden head his apron fills
With the ruddy apples, juicy and sweet,
Brindle loves to take with her long rough tongue
From his dimpled hand to eat.

Tiptoe he stands with eager face,
Holding his bulging apron tight,
As she gently takes the apples he gives
He laughs with fresh delight.

And now she has eaten the very last,
And "just one more," and "one little one more,"
Then he waits and watches her as she walks
Through the open barn-yard door.

It was years ago—yet I often see,
When the summer's day is nearly done,
My baby boy feeding the pretty cow
In the light of the setting sun.

Agricultural.

Hints about Farm Work for November.

Some farmers are always behind hand in doing their work, and this month frequently finds them not at all prepared for its chilling blasts.

Buildings not in good order should be repaired without delay, all foul places cleansed thoroughly, and heavily whitewashed or sprinkled with lime.

Cellars under houses should be scrupulously cleansed, and, if possible to avoid it, should never be used for storing vegetables, as they do not add to the health of the family.

Animals should be studiously protected, but only in thoroughly ventilated stables. Their food should be given four or five times during the twenty-four hours, so that none of it need be refused because it is "mussed" or soiled. Many farmers whose experience has been varied prefer this plan, thinking it more economical, and more serviceable to the animals than feeding only two or three times a day. For horses and neat stock, place lumps of rock salt in the mangers. Food must be varied to suit the kind and condition of animals. He who would prosper as a stock breeder or dairyman, cannot learn too much of the animal economy. Comfortable stables save food, and very materially assist in maintaining animals in good condition Cleansing the hide and frequent rubbing will promote health. It has become quite a common practice with some farmers to curry and rub down their neat stock, and we trust it may become universal.

Keep fattening animals fully fed, but be careful to vary the food sufficiently to cause a good appetite.

Hogs should be fed on cooked or soaked corn, or corn meal, almost entirely towards the last days of their fattening. Throw lime and ashes, in small quantities, on the floors of the pens from time to time, and occasionally feed a little sulphur.

Young animals ought not to be made tender by too close housing—should be treated gently and with familiarity.

Steers and colts may thus be brought to a condition that will make it a very easy task to break them into the yoke or harness.

Sheds, at least thirty feet wide, with low posts and opening into a yard on the sunny side surrounded by buildings, or a high fence, are highly approved of for sheep and young stock. They thus have an opportunity to exercise in the open air and sunlight, retiring to a well littered protection at their pleasure. Care must be used in feeding, that the weaker animals may have fair play.

Manure making should be prosecuted with the utmost vigor. As long as the weather permits, occupy every spare hour in collecting muck, pond mud, leaves, soda, ditch scrapings, and organic deposits, to be thrown under cattle, in the hog pen, or manure yard. Recollect that manure is the fleeting capital of the farmer, and if benefit is to be derived from its use, care must be taken that it does not float off literally. Devote study and thought to this part of your farming, but do not spare the muscle, for much can be made by a proper manipulation and commingling of materials.

Top dressing may be pursued as suggested last month, and the hints there given as to ditches, drains and drainage should be heeded as far as possible during this month.

Heavy land may be ploughed, provided it is not so wet as to be sticky, and we should prefer the lap furrows, that a greater amount of surface be exposed to the frosts of winter, and the ease of filtration increased. By all mean subsoil plow this month, if practicable, and get the coarser manure under for next year's forest crops.

Light land, that is not wet, will be benefited by being rolled after sowing and will be all the better if heavily mulched with dead leaves, straw, refuse hay, trashes or any material that will keep the surface from blowing away.

Fruits should be carefully culled over and all that is sound wiped dry, and laid away on shelves, in dark, cool rooms, or dry cellars—as uniform a temperature as possible being kept up. Cut scions for grafting, and pack away in sawdust in a good cellar until needed. Cuttings of currants, etc., may be set as long as the ground is open and friable.

Cellars and pits for vegetables need close watching, that more protection may be given when the cold weather begins in earnest. Plants in cold frames should get all the sun and air they can endure. Spinach and other crops left out should be protected with litter thickly laid on. All roots should be immediately gathered and stored in pits except that portion of the parsnip crop intended for Spring use, which will be better off in the ground, if standing water is not allowed on the beds.

Grape vines should be carefully pruned—the Concord, Isabella, the Catawba not as closely as the finer sorts. Some sorts in cold latitudes will need to be laid down and covered with earth for the winter. This is also true of tender raspberries. Strawberries should be carefully covered, and no stagnant water allowed on the beds.—Farm and Fireside Journal.

Editing a newspaper is very much like raking a fire—every one thinks he can perform the operation better than the man who holds the poker.

FARM FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers for sale his Farm,

Lot 16, and the West Half of Lot 17, in the 7th Concession of Smith.

The Farm containing 200 acres, more or less, about 150 acres are cleared. The Cobourg Railway runs through the lot, which is only about a mile from the Mud Lake terminus of the road.

There are two dwelling houses, and barns, stables, sheds and wells attached to each, so that it is suited for two farms. There are also two orchards on the lots. The property is about 7 miles from Peterboro, and admirably suited for Dairy purposes. It will be sold in whole, or in two parts to suit purchasers.

Terms Liberal. For further particulars apply to

HENRY WHATLEY,
on the premises.

WISTAR'S WILD CHERRY

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION

and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well-known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, so as the same with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS, and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

Beware of Counterfeits.

Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

One Dollar a Bottle. Six Bottles for Five Dollars.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination, and those painfully afflicting, have been radically cured by such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly concentrates over other of its hideous forms, either on its surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the general use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following or kindred complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in many cases, a thorough cure, by the use of this Extract: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other symptoms or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pile, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine disorders of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic, Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing the obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Tumors, Sores or Blotches, Tetter or Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are promptly overcome and ultimately cured by its operation and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. A Mercurial Taint and Cure, is beyond the accomplishment of extraneous matter in the blood, acted quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, when arising from the same cause, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer of the strength and vigor of the system. For Purifying the Blood, for Female Complaints, and troubled with Worms, or any of the previous symptoms of Disease, with the most unequivocal and convincing evidence of its restorative power.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being so low that they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.
There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of oils of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in such fixed proportions of greater power than producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

A Voice From The Penitentiary.
The following beautiful lines were found pencilled by a convict in one of the books belonging to the Library of the Provincial Penitentiary.—Kingston Herald.

MOTHER.

I've wandered far away, mother,
Far away from my happy home,
And left the land that gave me birth,
In other climes to roam
And three since then has rolled his years.
And marked them on my brow,
Yet still I think on thee, mother,
I'm thinking on thee now.

When by thy gentle side, mother,
Thou watched my dawning youth,
And kissed me in your pride, mother,
Taught me the word of truth
Then brightly was my soul lit up
With thoughts of future joy,
Whilst your bright fancy garlands wove.
To deck thy darling boy.

I'm thinking of the day, mother,
When with such anxious care
You lifted up my heart to heaven
Your hope, your trust was there.
Fond memory brings the parting glance,
Whilst tears rolled down my cheek,
That last long loving look told more
Than ever words could speak.

I'm lonely and forsaken, mother,
No friend is near me now
To soothe me with a tender word
Or cool my burning brow.
The dearest ties affection wove.
Are all now torn from me.
They left me when my trouble came,
They did not love like thee.

I would not have thee know, mother,
How brightest hopes decay,
The tempter with his painful cup
Has dashed them all away.
And shame has left its venom sting,
To rack with anguish wild,
But still I would not have thee know
The sorrows of thy child.

I know you would not chide, mother,
You would not give me blame,
But scorn me with a tender word,
And bid me hope again.
I'm lonely and forsaken now,
Unpitied and noblest,
Yet still I would not have you know
How sorely I'm distressed.

I've wandered far away, mother,
Since I deserted thee
And left thy trusting heart to break,
Beyond the deep blue sea.
Yet mother still I love thee well,
I long to hear thee speak,
And fee again thy balmy breath
Upon my careworn cheek.

But ah! there is a thought, mother,
Pervades my beating breast,
That thy free'd spirit may have flown
To its eternal rest.
And as I wipe the tear away,
There whispers in my ear
A voice that speaks of heaven, mother,
And bids me seek thee there.

THE NUMBER SEVEN.

In all ages and in all countries the number SEVEN has had a peculiar significance. Among the Hebrews it was called the number of perfection. Apuleius speaks of dipping the head seven times in the sea for purification. Pythagoras taught its efficacy, and Cicero in the vision of Scipio calls seven a complete number which is "the connecting principle of almost all things." The learned Prof. Brish, says in his notes on Genesis, that "the original word for seven, comes from a root, signifying to be full, complete, entirely made up." No other numeral is used so frequently in the Bible, and the septenate structure of many passages is remarkable.

"On the seventh day God ended his work which he had made." The week of seven days was established, the last to be a day of rest, the seventh year was made a year of rest, not only for man an beast, but even for the fallow ground, and at the expiration of seven sabbaths of years, the year of Jubilee allowed liberty and homesteads to all the inhabitants. Enoch was the 7th from Adam, Abraham the 21st, and St. Matthew enumerates forty-two generations from Abraham to Christ.

Noah had 7 days' notice of the flood, during which time he gathered the clean beasts and the fowls of the air into the ark by sevens, and in the 7th month the ark rested on Mount Ararat. He sent out a dove which returned, but after 7 days he again sent forth the dove, which brought back the welcome olive leaf, and after 7 days more he repeated the experiment but lost the dove.

Jacob served 7 years for Rachel, made a mistake in the bride, and served 7 years longer, and when he met Esau he bowed 7 times before him. Pharoah's dreams of the 7 years of plenty and 7 years of famine were apparently of 7 fat and of 7 lean kine, and of 7 full ears and of 7 suckers. Joseph mourned for his father 7 days, and Zipporah the wife of Moses was the 7th daughter of Jethro. Moses came out of the cloud on Mount Sinai on the 7th day, and he made 7 lamps of pure gold, and on the 7th day no manna fell. The feast of the tabernacle lasted 7 days, and on various occasions 7 animals of various kinds were to be offered. Jericho was besieged 7 days when 7 priests, with 7 trumpets of rams' horns went 7 times round the city, but on the 7th day they went round 7 times and the walls fell. Solomon's temple was 7 years in building. Job's 7 sons were slain in one day, and Homer relates that Achilles slew the 7 brothers of Andromache in a single day. The dead son of the Shunamite sneezed 7 times and opened his eyes. The servant of Elish went to the top of Carmel 7 times to see the probabilities of rain.

Naaman the Syrian was told to bathe 7 times in the Jordan, and Nebuchadnezzar went with the cattle grazing 7 years. We also read of 7 golden candlesticks, 7 seals, 7 loaves, 7 baskets full, 7 devils, 7 deacons, a 7 headed beast, 7 angels with the 7 plagues, and 7 golden vials.

Samson's marriage feast last 7 days and he told Delilah that 7 green withs would hold him bound, also that she could fasten him to a beam by the 7 locks of his hair. The loss of his 7 locks quite conquered him.

The Seven Churches of Asia were at Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. The seven Catholic or general epistles are the three of St. John, two of St. Peter and one each of St. James and St Jude. The Lord's Prayer contains 7 petitions, and the Apostles' creed has 7 articles relating to the divinity and 7 to the humanity of Christ. Christians are enjoined to make 7 additions to their faith viz:—virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity. St John in the Apocalypse often groups 7 names together, as, "Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and might." Also, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing." Solomon says 7 things are an abomination to the Lord, viz; pride, lying, murder, jealousy, mischief-making, perjury, and slander. It has been maintained that 7 evils proceeded from the fall of man, and hence are 7 sacraments as remedies, viz: original sin is to be taken away by baptism, mortal sins by penitence, venial sin by extreme unction, ignorance by ordination, weakness of spirit by confirmation, frailty of the flesh by matrimony, and the evil nature by the Eucharist. The 7 virtues have been classified as three theological virtues, faith, hope and charity, and the four cardinal virtues, prudence justice, fortitude and temperance.

The Catholic Church teaches 7 corporal works of mercy, viz: to feed the hungry, to give drink to the thirsty, to clothe the naked, to visit and ransom captives, to harbor the harborless, to visit the sick, and to bury the dead. Also 7 spiritual works of mercy, viz; to correct the sinner, to instruct the ignorant, to counsel the doubtful, to comfort the sorrowful, to bear wrongs patiently, to forgive all injuries, and to pray for the living and the dead.

The 7 deadly sins are pride covetousness, lust, wrath, gluttony, envy, and sloth, which have the 7 opposite virtues of humility, liberality, chastity, meekness, temperance, brotherly-love, and diligence.

In performing the rite of suttee the Hindoo widow walks 7 times around the pyre, repeating mantras or prayers, scattering rice and sprinkling water on the bystanders. The corpse of the husband is carried round 7 times and placed in the lap of the widow, when the fire is kindled it consumes them both.

Æneas lost all his vessels but 7, he saw 7 stags and killed them, and afterwards was told by the Cumean Sibyl to sacrifice 7 bullocks and 7 unspotted ewes.

Seven witnesses were sufficient to prove a Roman nuncupative will, and after the Roman kings, farms of septemjugera or 7 acres were allotted to each citizen. Cincinnatus, Dentatus, Fabricius, Regulus, &c., found 7 acres enough for their wants.

Seven years' absence of a husband, without intelligence of his whereabouts, justhes the marriage of his wife a la Enoch Arden's, without subjecting her to the charge of bigamy, also a child under 7 years of age is supposed to be without discretion.

The 7 champions of Christendom were St. George of England, St. Denis of France, St. James of Spain, St. Anthony of Italy, St. Andrew of Scotland, St. Patrick of Ireland, and St. David of Wales.

Solon the Athenian law-giver, Chilo the Spartan sage, Thales the philosopher of Miletus, Bias the Priencan, Cleobulus of Lindos, Pittacus of Mitylene, and Periander of Corinth, have for ages been known as the 7 wise men of Greece.

Seven ancient wonders of the world are often spoken of, referring to the pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the tomb of Mausolus, the temple of Diana at Ephesus, the colossus of Rhodes, the statue of Jupeter by Phidias and the Pharos of Alexandria.

In more recent times the coliseum at Rome, the catacombs at Alexandria, the Chinese wall, the altars of Stonehenge, the leaning tower of Pisa, the porcelain tower at Nankin, and the mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople have been called the 7 wonders of the middle ages.

In former times there were reckoned 7 sciences, Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric, Arithmetic, Geometry, Astronomy, and Music.

The 7 hills of Rome were the Aventine, Capitoline, Esquiline, Celian, Viminal, Quirinal, and Palatine. The 7 Roman kings were Romulus, Numa Pompilius, Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Martius, Tarquinius Priscus, Servius Tullius, and Tarquinius Superbus.

In England 7 kingdoms called Kent, Northumberland, East Anglia, Mercia, Essex, Sussex, and Wessex, constituted the Saxon Heptarchy, before the time of Egbert.

The 7th son, and especially the 7th son of a 7th son has long been popularly supposed to be endowed with wonderful powers of healing diseases by the touch, particularly on Good Friday. In France the 7th son without an intervening daughter is called a Marcou, and sometimes in Holy week a genuine Marcou will have hundreds of patients to touch.

There is a curious eastern legend of 7 sleepers who slept in a cave 187 years, a tale that perhaps suggested Rip Van Winkle, and to this day many Mahometans believe the names of the sleepers and their dog posted on their doors will keep away ghosts and demons.

There are several curious coincidences of the occurrence of the number 7 in nature. 7 eclipses is the greatest number possible in a year, and 70 in 18 years. There are 7 bones in the neck of all mammals, there are 7 true ribs on a side, and 7 bones in the tarsus. The great ocean currents are 7 in number, and meteorologist describe 7 forms of clouds. There are 7 symmetrical forms of chrystal, 7 kinds of attraction described by philosophers, and 7 general properties of matter.

The 7 notes of the musical scale and the 7 tints of the rainbow suggest the idea of completeness. So also do the 7 recognized attributes of Deity, viz.—Wisdom, knowledge, goodness, power, justice, mercy, and the 7 relations of the Creator to man, viz.—Creator, Lawgiver, Benefactor, King, Judge, Savior, and Father.

Ruskin has charmed the world by his plaid-like grouping of the 7 Lamps of Architecture, and artists have told us that at the feet of the renowned statute of Venus de Medici, is one towards the length of the statue.

The Buddists who embrace over 150 millions of the human race believe in 7 gods who rule the 7 days of the week. They say Hiru rules Sunday, Kandi Monday, Angaraka Tuesday, Budahu Wednesday, Brahpati Thursday, Sicura Friday, and Henasura Saturday.

Chinese devotion a part of the Quarantine Tales, to a description of the 7 metals of the alchemists.

"Sol gold is, and Luna silver there,
Mar-yron, Mercurie quykesilver we clepe,
Saturnus lead, and Jubiter is tyn,
And Venus copper, by the feder kyn."

The old column of the 7 dials in London, faced 7 streets, radiating therefrom.

The partial constellation of the 7 stars has given the word Septentrional, to be seen in the treasury seal on every "greenback."

Much interest has been taken by antiquarians to find the site of the "7 cities of Cibola," and the wonderful expedition of Coronado to find those Aztec or ante-Aztec wonders has recently been discussed in the publications of the Smithsonian Institution.

I will only remind the reader that he is himself supposed to grow by sevens. At the age of 7 months the first teeth appear to fall out in 7 years and give place to others, and that every 7 years appears to form a distinct week or period of his existence.

As Shakespear has it, the players on the world's stage have for their acts "7 ages," or as some 7 struck poet writes—

The first seven years of life—man's break of day—
Gleams of short sense, a dawn of thought display;
When fourteen springs have bloomed his downy cheek,
His soft and bashful meanings learn to speak,

From twenty-one proud manhood takes its date,
Yet is not strength complete till twenty-eight
Thence to his five-and-thirtieth, life's gay fire
Sparkles and burns intense in fierce desire

At forty-two his eyes grave wisdom wear,
And the dark future dims him o'er with care,
With forty-nine behold his toils increase,
And busy hopes and fears disturb his peace.

At fifty-six cool reason reigns entire,
Then life burns steady, and with temperate fire.
But sixty-three unbends the body's strength,
Be the same record mind has run her length,
And when, at seventy, age looks her last,
Tir'd she stops short, and wishes all were past.

—Prof. N. B. Webster in the Monthly Visitor.

One Question Too Many.

About a generation by-gone there flourished in Western Michigan a certain Squire T——, whose stalwart sons now till the parental acres, in whose honesty the community had great confidence, but who had an unfortunate failing—drink. He had been known to try cases when he would have been more appropriately in bed. Upon one occasion an appeal was taken from a judgement rendered, as it was alleged "when wine was in, the wit was out." Under the broad latitude taken at that day a full inquiry was gone into the trial of the appeal, as to the sobriety of the Justice, and there was much contradictory testimony—the friends of the Justice swearing one way, his enemies directly contrary. At length a very candid witness appeared, who testified with great apparent circumspection—so great, indeed, that on the direct examination almost nothing was elicited from him. Upon cross examination, the lawyer conducting it made a very common mistake, and being unwilling to "let well enough alone," kept driving away at the witness until he finally felt safe in putting the leading and dangerous question:

"Did you look upon the Justice upon the trial of that case, as a perfectly sober man?"

The witness hesitated, and the counsel pressed the interrogatory still closer. The witness finally emitted the following with great difficulty, as though it had been drawn from him painfully:

"I should have thought so only for one thing."

"Well," said the cross-examiner, "what is that?"

"I saw him fill up his inkstand with whiskey and take a snifter out of the ink-bottle."

The cross examination stopped at that point.

Where Did The Rich Man Go.

Little Johnny was preparing for Sunday school, situated some distance away when his mother saw one of their neighbors approaching in his vehicle. This neighbor, by the way, was called "The Rich Man," being both wealthy kind-hearted and liberal to the poor. Johnny ran out, and the richman took him into his vehicle, as he was going past the school. It was a very hot day and so Johnny took off his shoes and stockings to keep himself cool. When they arrived the exercises had already begun, and as the man was going to church about a mile beyond and had a creed to call for Johnny on his return, he concluded not to put his shoes and stockings on again but leave them in the vehicle. So he tripped lightly into school, and the man drove away towards the church.

To protect the understanding of humanity there is nothing like leather fastened together by Cable Screw Wire. Boots and Shoes made this way never rip, or leak or come apart.

The Ontario Legislature is not likely to meet before January.

There is a Pork "ring" in Chicago just now, which is influencing the market there.

Rowdyism is on the increase in Toronto. Two of the policemen were beaten while attempting to take two prisoners who had insulted a lady on the street.

The Globe has received the intelligence that eight men were lost while attempting to land from the propeller Mary Ward at Collingwood, on Tuesday. The rest of the passengers were taken off by fishermen

The steamer Norseman is laid up for the winter at Port Hope.

Mr. W. F. Wood, the advocate of bonuses to the Grand Junction Railway received $4 per day while working for the Company, The Directors should not grumble about the amount, he did work enough for it.

The guage on the Grand Trunk Railway between Sarnia and Fort Erie a distance of two hundred miles, was on last Sunday changed from 5 ft. 6in to 4 ft. 8½ in. All trains are now running on the regular time bill. The work of changing guage was done on Sunday, on the principle that Corporations have no consciences, and hence no moral responsibility. Canadians need not boast of their civilization or christianity when they allow the Sabbath to be desecrated by doing a work that could have been done on Monday, necessitating only one day's loss to the Company.

PEEBES' MUSICAL MONTHLY completes its Tenth Volume with the December number, and it is doing Mr. Peters but simple justice to state that his excellent magazine is improving with age. It was good years ago, when it first made its appearance, and it has been steadily improving until the present time, when it can only be pronounced perfect, and indispensable to every lover of music. The December number, price 30 cents, contains three Ballads, a Christmas Song, an Anthem, a Four-hand piece, as played at Theodore Thomas' Orchestral Concerts, and three splendid Piano pieces, any single piece being worth in sheet music form more than Mr. Peters asks for the entire lot.—Giving so much really good music for such a small sum, it is no wonder that PETERS' MUSICAL MONTHLY has hosts of friends among our music loving people. Those who have seen it will, of course, renew their subscription for the coming year; others, less fortunate, should send the Publisher, J. L. PETERS, 599 Broadway, New York, $1, and secure the last four numbers as sample copies, or $3 for a year's subscription.

The British American Presbyterian understands that all the Presbyterian Churches in Toronto are so full that there is much difficulty in finding seats, and, in consequence, there is considerable talk of enlarging some of them.

THE ORGAN QUESTION.—At a vote of the Erskine Church, Montreal, on the subject of introducing an organ, 238 voted for it, 136 against, and 42 were indifferent.

REAL ESTATE.—At the sale of lots in Ashburnham on Monday, of the Boulton property, 21 lots were disposed of at prices varying from $60 to $100. The property was bought for less than $1.00 an an acre a few months ago. The purchaser, a Montrealer, is likely to clear about $5,000 out of the transaction, as there are 77 lots on the plan, which at an average of $100 each will bring $7,700, cost of purchase $2,500, leaving $5,200 for net profits, surveys, &c. Property in Ashburnham is increasing in value.

Several lots have since been sold privately 25 per cent advance. Mr. Buchan as the successful purchaser, has let a contract for the erection of two houses, we believe, and as the other purchasers will no doubt improve their lots soon, so that the north of the village will go ahead during the coming season.

INSURANCE.—Owing to the Boston fire and the consequent losses to Insurance Companies, they are almost all increasing their rates.

FIRE AT MILLBROOK.—A fire occured at Millbrook on Monday which destroyed a large portion of Mr. Fair's foundry and Machine shop, the casting room, Engine house and Blacksmith shop were saved and some of the Machinery, but we are sorry to learn that Messrs Fair & Co's loss is fully $7000, and not insured. Mr. Fair will no doubt rebuild the whole as soon as the season will permit.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.—The Annual Sermon will be preached by the Rev. J. M. Roger, in the Canada Presbyterian Church on Sabbath, first of December, at 6.30. p.m. The Society's Annual Dinner will come off on Monday evening at Caimen Hotel at 8 p.m.

Celebrated in Ontario laundry, 50 cts to $1.50 for loads of about three quarters of a cord.

WATER WORKS.—We see by the notice published in to-day's issue, that the Town Council is taking steps to "inaugurate" a system of Water Works for the Town, in doing so we trust that due care and precaution will be taken to exercise economy in the outlay. When this was talked of some two or three years ago, a system was about to be forced on us that would have entailed an expenditure of no less than $70,000. Wiser counsel prevailed then to inaugurate such a system, and later information laid the possible cost at about $35,000. We believe that the rate payers are largely in favor of some effectual method of extinguishing fire should it visit us, but what is feared, is extravagant expenditure, out of which two or three can make their thousands, while the rate payers have to foot the bill. Now, too, that we have an engine with which to reach the outskirts of the Town, if necessary, we have not so much to contend for as when the matter was under discussion before.

THE MAN BRENTON.—We have received no more reliable information in reference to the man Brenton now in gaol for the late murder. Some have been permitted to see him, but to none of them does he show any tokens of remorse, or of conviction of danger. We believe he has gone so far as to threaten some who accused him directly, of consequences if ever released from his present position. Our report as given last week, is as correct as could be, owing to our not being at the inquest, or in the neighborhood of the murder. The only part of it of which there may be any doubt is that referring to his having threatened Mrs. Payne's life before Dr. Bingham. We believe this was not so, and the Doctor said nothing of the matter, but his tone and countenance at the time was indicative of strong feeling against her.

VICKS' FLORAL GUIDE.—We have the January, No. of this beautiful and useful little work. It is got up in the finest style with a beautiful Chromo Cover and it contains over five hundred Fagravings of plants and flowers. No lover of plants and flowers should be without it, as it costs only 25 cents for four quarterly numbers.

The organs of John A. & Co. are very much exercised over the delay in calling the Legislature together. Alleging that Mr Mowat should be ready to meet the people's representatives although he has only had a week or two to prepare for so doing. It will be remembered that Messrs. Blake & Mackenzie were anxious to retain office during the approaching session for the purpose perfecting their scheme of the distribution of the surplus, and to secure a settlement of the much vexed question of the Municipal Loan fund indebtedness They were however, strongly impressed with the necessity for doing away with the influence of John A. Macdonald in local matters. And with both these objects in view, a Bill was passed preventing dual representation, but with a provision enabling them to hold office until the House of Commons met at Ottawa. Sir John in his eagerness to checkmate Messrs Blake and Mackenzie, got the Costigan bill passed, forcing them to resign their seats in the Ontario Legislature before being eligible for nomination to the Commons. They were thus, as far as John A. could do compelled to leave their schemes and plans to others. 'Tis very evident therefore, that Mr. Mowat not having accepted office, in fact not having been asked to take office until after Mr. Blake's return from Europe could not have given political matters that careful consideration which they require, and that a delay of four weeks or so will afford time for maturing his plans as well as prevent expences returning home at the holidays. The country will endorse the policy of of having necessary legislation fully matured before the people are asked to accept it. How many weeks of valuable time have been lost to representatives, and what expenses the country has had to pay just because of the fact of the Premier of the Dominion, not being in a state to attend to business. Will the organ take the matter up, and prevent a recurrence!

Canadian Manufactures in France.

The following cable telegram was received by the Guelph Sewing Machine Company from their European agent this month.

"London, Nov. 11th 1872.

"To Guelph Sewing Machine Company, "Canada

"Guelph taken highest Medal at Lyons "(France) Exhibition for complete perfection.

"CHILLINGFORD, Bros."

This must be gratifying to the pride of Canadians, and especially to the Guelph Company, as the medal is a gold one, when it is understood that an immense number of rival Machines would be present, and that all the skill of the French, and English artizans would be brought to compete against Canadian skill, it is satisfactory that Canada has come off best in the competition. The Guelph or Osborne Sewing Machine is considered by all who use it a first class machine, and our readers would do well to remember that Thos. Donnelly & Co. of this Town are the Agents for it, and the Sewing Machines of every make.

The Fire By-Law.

By the Minutes of the last meeting of the Town Council our readers will learn that the Mayor is instructed to take legal advice as to the way to compel the Dickson Estate to take down some sheds that have lately been either removed or erected on a lot on Hunter street. Mr Haslitt who acts for the Estate lately obtained a resolution of Council granting leave to remove certain sheds. he did so and it is said enlarged them. For this he was brought before the Police Magistrate and fined, but has appealed against the decision. The Council now intend taking legal steps to compel him to take them down again.

It does appear strange that Mr. Haslitt should be so hardly dealt with, while others are continually building sheds, stables, verandahs, &c., in contravention of the By-law. The Council should compel all sheds within the limits specified in the By-law to be pulled down irrespective of ownership, or otherwise let all who wish, build what they like for their own convenience.

It is not very long since the Council patched the By-law to favor certain individuals. We hope, now that they are about rigidly to enforce the By-law, they will include all who have sheds of a character to endanger valuable property.

All will admit the wisdom of a wisely regulated fire By-law, and then the importance of carrying out its provisions without fear, favor or affection.

Town Council.

November 26th, 1872.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Toole, Heins, Edmison, Smith, Robertson, Paterson, Hall, Landy, English, Stevenson.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were read from D. Faucher, asking the Council to grant him a Billiard License at half price.

From W. H Scott, Esq., corporation Solicitor, acquainting the Council of the case of the Town vs Haslitt, was such that no satisfactory remedy seemed available but through Chancery.—Received.

From James Hall and others complaining of the objectionable state of the Railroad between Simcoe and Charlotte. Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

Mr. Smith, as chairman of the Fire Committee read and submitted a report, which on motion was received and adopted.

Mr. Smith, as chairman of the Finance Committee read and submitted the following report, which on motion was received and adopted.

To the Mayor and Town Council:

The Finance Committee beg to recommend the payment of Thomas Poole, $35 for funeral expenses as per account attached.

Your committe cannot recommend any increase to the salary of the assessors as the amount has been included in the estimated and the rate struck in accordance therewith. All of which respectively submitted.

(Signed) A. SMITH.
Chairman.

Mr. Toole as chairman of the special committee on the Bridge, read and submitted a report, which on motion was received and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Edmison, the Collector be instructed to remit the dog tax charged against Charles Liddle.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr Hall, that the Clerk be instructed to give the necessary notice for an application to the Legislature for the passage of an act to enable the Town to erect Water Works.—Carried.

On motion of Mr Stevenson, seconded by Mr Paterson, the Mayor was instructed to take Legal advice as to the mode the council should adopt in respect to the Election of Mayor and Councillors in view of the new Division into wards, and the extended limits of the Town.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Edmison, a By-Law for the opening of Stewart and Rubidge Streets was read a first time. The second reading was deferred to next meeting of the Council

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. English, that the Mayor be instructed to advise with W. H. Scott, Esq., Town Solicitor, in reference to the Fire Law and take such steps as he may deem advisable to compel the Dickson Estate to remove the shed built North and East of Ryan's Tannery contrary to said By-Law.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr Toole,—That the Finance committee be authorized to take the necessary steps to have the map of the Town as extended, provided at as early a day as possible.—Carried.

Mr. Edmison, gave notice that he would at the next meeting of the Council move that the Treasurer do pay to Mr. D. Faucher, the sum of thirty five dollars and fifty cents being half a year's License for Billiard tables, elapsed before such License was obtained.

The Council adjourned for three weeks.

North Monaghan Council.

November 1st, 1872.

The Council met at 11 o'clock.

Present—The Reeve and Councillors Robson, Birney and Howden.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A petition signed by James Chalmers and nine other owners of property, praying the Council to have certain lots named in the 10th and 11th concessions of the Municipality drained in accordance with chap. 26, Vic. 35, was received and read.

On motion of Mr. Howden, seconded by Mr. Birney—The Clerk was directed to have the necessary preliminaries complied with and a By-law for the purpose prepared.

A By-law authorizing the Reeve to dispose of a portion of land to James Z. Rogers was finally passed.

A By-law dividing the township into two electoral divisions for ensuing municipal election and naming the place of nomination of Reeve and Councillors received its several readings.

The Committee appointed to let the contract for building the Bridge at Crawford's reported that Mr. Johnston had performed the work to their satisfaction, and ordered payment, with $5 additional for extras.

Notice To Candidates For Certificates. Respecting the Examination in the subject of Natural Philosophy.

Candidates, for second class certificates, will be examined in statics, hydrostatics and pneumatics. They are referred to "Peck's Ganot," but it is recommended that on the subject of statics, that part of "Tomlinson's Rudimentary Mechanics," which relates to the mechanical powers, be also consulted.

As the examination will be on the subject generally, those who have already provided themselves with Dr. Sangster's work, will find the necessary information in it.

Candidates, for first class certificates, will be examined in statics, dynamics, pneumatics, hydrostatics and hydrodynamics. They are recommended to consult, besides "Tomlinson's Rudimentary Mechanics," the "Manual of Mechanics," by Rev. Samuel Haughton, M D.

NOTE.—The highest standard in all subjects will be maintained for first class certificates.

Candidates are strongly advised to procure copies of the examination papers used at previous examinations, as they will be of material assistance in instructing the kind of examination they will require to undergo. Bound copies may be procured at the Depository at 60 cents net, free of postage, or 50 cents each of first class papers.—Journal of Education.

The San Juan Boundey.

(From the Monetary Times.)

If the decision of the Emperor of Germany in the San Juan boundary arbitration was disappointing to Canada, the discussion that has arisen out of it was commenced by the Times telling the Dominion, in no gingerly terms, to cut up on its account. In the rattle of replies and replications, the merits of the arbitrator's award are in danger of being lost sight of. But before we get absorbed with the collateral question, it will be well to look at the subject matter out of which it arose. It is universally conceded that in all questions of boundary the Americans get the better of us. This is not difficult to account for. An entirely new zone has been imported into the discussion of these questions, since the American colonies won their independence When France and England were contending for supremacy in North America, England would not yield an inch of what she considered her just claims Since the exhaustive discussion of the disputed boundaries of Acadia or Nova Scotia, by the French and English Commissioners, before the Seven Years' War, which determined the long contested supremacy, no such spirit of resolute firmness has been shown by the English. For five long years, the English commissioners accumulated every fact and exhausted every argument applicable to the case. The sword finally cut the knot of the difficulty, and gave not only what she had contended for in Nova Scotia, but also the whole of Canada and England. When the pressure of French aggression was removed, the English were free to quarrel among themselves, and England's colonial empire in America was broken in pieces: all that remained to her being the recent acquisition from the french. When she had given up an empire, England deemed it matter of indifference whether the boundaries of her remaining possessions were contracted or expanded by a few miles on one side or the other. Against this indifference the United States opposed the ruling passion for territorial expansion, manifested besides in the annexation of Texas, the Mexican war, the purchase of Alaska, the numerous attempts, to get possession of Cuba, the nibbling at St. Thomas, and the desire to absorb all the northern part of the continent.

Canada which is really interested in these boundary questions, has not the settling of them; and she wastes in faction fights the time that might profitably be given to their consideration. Nothing could more clearly show the utter indifference with which such questions are approached than the fact that when the English surveying party now in this country left England, the Imperial Government was ignorant of the fact that the portion of the international line from the mouth of Pidgeon River to Rainy Lake had still to be run, the survey made under the Tacaty of Ghent having been set aside by the Ashburton Treaty. It was only, we have reason to believe, by Mr. Lindsey, of this city, calling attention to the circumstance, that the fact became officially known. On investigation, it turned out that the English and American Commissioners, under the Treaty of Ghent, disagreed and made a separate report, which led to a readjustment of the question by the Ashburton Treaty. When on our side this ignorance prevailed, the Americans have been making privatc surveys of this section of the international line, and are chuckling in advance about the advantages they intend to obtain; notably in securing by anticipation an island rich in coveted minerals.

It is rumored that something of the kind helped to make the San Juan decision go the way it went. The Americans are said to have obtained surveys of the two channels to which the choice of the arbitrator was very improperly confined by the Treaty of Washington, and to have presented them in evidence; and as there was no rebutting evidence, though there might and ought to have been, the case went against us. If England was not in different, she did not fell the sting of interest that would have moved her if Jersey or Gurnsey had been in dispute instead of San Juan. The latter island is valuable only from its position in commanding the Strait of Rosario, and we must now resort to artificial contrivances to make the navigation of that Strait of as little consequence as possible. We can only hope measurably to succeed; and that at a very serious outlay.

Canada can no longer shelter herself from blame in questions of this kind. Our patriotism ought to prompt us to take as much interest in them as Americans take. If the same trouble was not taken on the English as on the American side, a large share of the blame may be taken to themselves by Canadians It was within our power to have got up evidence to rebut that offered by the Americans; it may not have been our business, strictly speaking; but we could have made it our privilege. We have got the Imperial Government virtually to give the Dominion a representation on the International Boundary Survey; but the folly of the selection will utterly nullify the privilege, and we shall be quite as bad off as if we had not offered any one to the nomination of the Imperial Government. Hereafter, it will be the fault of Canada if she does not use every exertion to secure justice in all international questions in which she may be interested.

The Manitoba Policy.

From the Cornwall Freeholder, Conservative.

We have no sympathy with the unlimited faultfinding of the Opposition with the management of the Government of Manitoba affairs. Those who are as well informed upon the subject as writers for the press should be, must be cognizant of the difficulties of the situation. But the greater the difficulties, the more urgent the call for energy and firmness in the Administration. We reluctantly confess our inability to discover any sign of energy, but all the evidences of weakness if not of imbecility. The vacillating policy pursued towards this promising new Province must seriously operate as a drawback to a measure of prosperity that, unreproved by most discouraging circumstances, would clearly be without a parallel in the history of the Dominion. The Government are not without energy and determination in their dealing with other questions of less importance than this; and therefore it is not with bitual lethargy or constitutional imbecility we charge them. We must look to other causes for the unfortunate muddle into which the affairs of this fine settlement have been allowed to lapse.

With less sycophancy, with more independence, a stronger sense of what is right rather than of what is expedient we are convinced the Administration could extricate themselves from the manitoba quandary. From their first movement to their last on the Red River chess board, with one or two exceptions, they have stood in fear and trembling of the dominant clergy of the settlement, and, in political matters, the clergy are proverbially blind leaders. The withdrawal of Mr. McDougall was the first of a series of panderings to clerical favor. the end of which is not yet come, and in bold relief to which stands out the single act of crushing the rebellion. It is about time to enquire if the general merits of the Government are so surpassingly great as to justify its supporters, of whom none is more earnest, and perhaps none so candid as ourselves, in winking at the subject and the maladministration of the affairs of one of our most interesting Provinces, even although thereby a pious but prejudiced body of French Catholic Clergy wedded to their idol, constitutional supremacy, should come to enervate its wonted influence at table of the Privy Council The unpleasantness to us of having to deal them candidly with our friends is not by any means stimulated. They have made a series of mistakes affecting the prosperity of a Province, [illegible] of great promise, in which the [illegible] of the Dominion are largely [illegible] policy in this respect we [illegible] to justify before Parliament, and [illegible] that upon [illegible] of a change [illegible]

Pr[illegible]

[illegible] meeting at Millbrook, Mr Mitchell reported that he had moderated in a call at Springville from the united congregations of Springville and Bethany. The call which was laid on the table was in favor of the Rev. Wm. Bennett, of Kemptville, was entirely unanimous, and was signed by fifty-eight communicants twenty-two adherents. Mr. Wm Lockie appeared for the congregation of Springville, and Mr John Dick for the congregation of Bethany. The commissioners stated that the congregation of Springville had agreed to pay $400, and the congregation of Bethany $200 per annum by way of salary, and that the Springville congregation would provide the minister with a house free of rent, if he chose to reside at Springville. The call was sustained and ordered to be transmitted to Mr. Bennett. At this point the Clerk read a letter from Mr. Bennett, stating that if the Presbytery should sustain the call, he would accept the same It was thereupon agreed that Mr. Bennett should be inducted at Springville on Friday the 15th November, at noon, that Mr. Douglas should preach, that Mr. Roger should address the minister and preside at the induction, and that Mr. Donald should address the congregation. Messrs. Clark, Mitchell, and Donald were appointed a committee to prepare a schedule of missionary meetings, to be submitted at the meeting of Presbytery to be held at Springville. Messrs. Murray, Douglas and Donald were appointed the Presbytery's Home Mission Committee for the ensuing year. It was agreed that Sessions whose Records have not been examined within the year, be requested to produce them at the January meeting of Presbytery, and that the Clerk be instructed to produce at that meeting a report of the dates at which the session records of the different congregations within the bounds have been examined and attested. The Presbytery met at Springville on the 15th of November, for the induction of Mr. Bennett and for the transaction of necessary business. At the induction service, Mr. Douglas of Cobourg, preached from Eph i. 13, 14. Mr. Roger presided, put the questions of the formula, and addressed the minister. Mr. Donald addressed the congregation At the close Mr. Bennett was introduced to the members of the flock and was warmly greeted by all. —British American Presbyterian.

VALEDICTION

The Fergus Express (a Liberal Conservative paper) of the 14th inst. in announcing its demise with that issue, says:—

"It is true that we have not worn the shackles of the so-called Conservative party. We saw that to do so would be to destroy our usefulness and annihilate our self-respect. Its prominent men divested themselves of all claim to leadership when they raised their "No Party" cry of 1867, and have neither attempted nor deserved to regain it. Without guiding principles, professing all things to all men, caring for power rather than country, aiming at the control of huge land and railway rings, and constantly bending all efforts to the retention of office, the exponents of conservatism in Canada have relinquished all right to the fealty of those holding true Conservative views, and we could not consistently bring ourselves to follow men who recklessly violated the constitution so that they might compass a job or continue to control public expenditure."

The Paris Transcript in referring to the change of guage of the Grand Trunk line from Buffalo to Sarnia says:

"One thousand men did the whole in 15 hours, but it took another day to change the switches on the changed portion. The trucks are all new, but the cars in many places have just been transferred from old trucks to new ones. A large freight traffic will now be done on this road, to which special attention is to be paid. What has become of the old locomotives that were on this road? Gone on to the main line, no! They have all been sold to the Intercolonial. It can now be seen why the Grand Trunk favored the Intercolonial being made broad guage. This is but the commencement of a transfer to the Government of old worn out G.T.R. stock, and it will not cease until there is a change of the powers that be, which we hope is not now far distant.

Bribing the Dominion.

It cannot be said that the London Times always represents public opinion in England, but it generally has some foundation for what it asserts In its editorial of October 30th, we find the following in relation to the bribing of the Legislature of the Dominion with a guarantee of £2,500,000:—

"We know that the indignation of the inhabitants of Canada, last summer, was such that we had to pride the Legislature of the Dominion with a guarantee of £2,500,000 before its assent to the Treaty of Washington could be procured. What has happened since? There has been a general election, which showed, in the most unpleasant manner, that the people were not appeased by a Bill which was sufficient to secure the vote of parliament. Leading Ministers have been defeated, and have lost their seats; the Premier had to fight hard for his own, and the Ministerial majority had become so uncertain that no one can tell how long Sir John A. Macdonald, meeting the House without the assistance of his ablest colleagues, will be able to retain his power. The San Juan award comes

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superseding all other preparations of the kind

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only thenty-five cents per bottle.

General Agents for Canada

Sold at Peterborough by Dr. Taylor, A W Kemp, Wm. Coulter and Ormond & Walsh, in Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co., C. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers

IF YOU HAVE BEEN AN INVALID for years with some Chronic Wasting Disease of the Lungs, Heart, Liver, or Kidneys, you need not flatter yourself that medicine is going to cure you immediately. Repair goes on slowly, and time is necessary to build up a broken-down constitution. Do not take every nostrum you read about, nor follow the advice of every friend who has a specific to offer you. Procure a remedy scientifically prepared, that is the result of experience, that has a large amount of evidence of sensible people in favor of its reliability, and persevere in its use until the whole system undergoes a radical improvement and health is restored. Dr. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALASAYA, a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, will meet your most sanguine expectations, as it combines everything necessary to perfect digestion, Nutrition, and the formation of healthy Blood, and to vitalize all the organs and tissues of the body. Sold at $1.00 per bottle.

Select Poetry.

The Sailor Boy's Farewell.

Wait, wait, ye winds, till I repeat
A parting signal to the fleet
Whose station is at home;
Then waft the sailor boy's simple prayer,
And let it oft be whispered there,
While in far climes I roam.

Farewell to father blessed hulk,
In spite of metal, spite of bulk,
His cable may slip;
Yet, while the parting tear is moist,
The flag of gratitude I'll hoist,
In duty to the ship

Farewell to mother, first-class she,
Who launched me on life's stormy sea,
And rigged me fore and aft;
May Providence remembers spare,
And keep her hull in good repair,
To tow the smaller craft.

Farewell to sister lovely yacht;
But whether she be manned or not,
I cannot now foresee.
May some good ship a tender prove,
Well found in stores of truth and love,
And take her under lee

Farewell to George, the jolly-boat,
And all the little craft afloat
In home's delightful bay.
When they arrive at sailing age,
May wisdom prove the weather-gauge,
And guide them on their way

Farewell to all on life's rude main,
And though we ne'er may meet again,
Through storms of stormy weather,
Yet, anchored by the board above,
We'll harbor in the port of love,
And all be moored together.

Choice Poetry.

THE NEW NAME.

BY H. E. WARNER.

What shall I call her when we meet?
She knew no other name on earth
Than that which soothed and sweet,
Though words be cold and little worth,
"Our baby" seemed a name complete.

But now, so many years flown
Since from my t[illegible] she passed,
How shall I, in the [illegible] known,
Amazed where all [illegible] and vast,
How shall I there claim my own?

What sweet more title does she bear?
For when I meet her on that shore,
Grown wise and great as she is fair,
"My baby," I can say no more,
For I shall be the infant there.

The English Kings.

The reproach of of the English kings of the English people, is a poverty of ideas, a certain ordinariness of purpose and intellectual design. But these individualities, even when restored; are not grand, but ordinary individualities, are deficient one and all in breadth and magnitude of purpose, in originality and perception of what they, or England or the world really wanted. No prince in that long and stately line stands out in the front rank of men as soldier, or statesman, or thinker is entitled to be classed with Charlemagne, or Hildebrand, or Louis XI., or even Richelieu, or Stein. Many of them, such as Richard III., and all the Tudors except Mary—whose brains were ruined by hysteria—were men of high ability and unusual force of character, but all had something ordinary in their conception, allied to unite a clear perception of means and persistently able use of them an adequate largeness of end. The strongest of them all, Henry VIII., had undoubtedly a clear and strong desire to emancipate the English throne from the control of Rome, and succeeded by dominant will in realising that object; but he did it in the English way, by slow steps and without a theory, never perceiving whither the mighty change he was fostering would lead, growing irritable and cruel when he found that the mental revolution was slipping from his strong hands. Henry was very little more than a very strong English squire engaged in a stout fight with an Agricultural Union, determined to have his own way, and ultimately getting it without from first to last perceiving the price he paid. Edward IV., a man of singular vigor and much statesmanship never clearly made up his mind what he wanted the social order of England to be, and while crushing the old warlike aristocracy, tried to construct a new one. Elizabeth for half a century supported the Protestant faith, yet scarcely wished it to prevail. It was [illegible] this limitation of idea that failure was so often the lot of the English Kings. Many of them, for instance, were soldiers of the first class, but not one of them, except Edward I., ever realized by soldership the hope of his heart. He indeed conquered Wales once for all, but he failed like every other King, from Rufus to George II., to conquer Scotland—a work as certainly within the compass of their means as it was within Cromwell's, who did it thoroughly. The brilliant Plantagenets lost the Continental possession which they intensely desired to keep. The great Crusader, Richard I., as great a soldier as the Conqueror, utterly failed in Palestine. Henry V. conquered France but so utterly failed to consolidate his conquest either by military institutions such as those by which the tanner's grandson held down England, or by conciliating the people, that the conquerors were ultimately driven out, by a mob-rising, headed by a visionary maid-servant. The strong-willed Tudors never succeeded in arresting the movement of Continental forces by their politics, though no do not the terrible pirates whom Elizabeth fostered—an exceptional race of men, cruel buccaneers without political consciences—did break the gigantic power of Spain. Not one of them from Henry II. to George III., except Cromwell, ever distinctly saw that the true career for a great English Monarch was not the Continent, but Ireland; that she through absorption of that frontierless island either by utter subjugation, or by conciliation, or by colonization, would be worth more to them than any possible conquest on the Continent of Europe. It is a proof of this ordinariness in the English Kings that the tradition of them has had so little power over the imagination of the people, not sufficient power even to keep their memories alive. The English people is, no doubt, to an inexplicable degree exempt from the influence of tradition and especially the tradition of individual superiorities. The mass of people remember no person, and but very few events. It may be, of course, that the deficiency is entirely in the people; but their ignorance is no greater than that of the Germans was, and their character does not seriously differ from that of the Lowland Scotch, who have no more forgotten Bruce or Wallace than if they had died yesterday. The truth is, no one of the Kings was great enough for his memory to pierce through the thick crust of English popular ignorance and absorption in daily work. No one since the Conqueror did any one thing so great, successful, and permanent as to enthral the imagination or compel succeeding generations to remember his name as identified with a grand cause, as for example, William the Deliverer, is remembered by Orangemen. Whether a king who had done some great thing for the body of the people, freed them from servage, or lessened poverty, or changed the laws that bore on them, would have lived in their minds is doubtful; but of all roles, that is the one English monarchs have most conspicuously failed to play. From first to last, for a thousand years, they have thought or seemed to think the social order immutable and divine.—London Spectator.

As to people saying a few idle words about us, we must not mind any more than the old church steeple minds the rooks that are cawing about it.

Necessity is said to be the mother of invention. An English correspondent writes:—"To this fact I presume we owe the general introduction of the new public-house card. It is to be found in many public-houses, and is a plain white card, on which is inscribed, in plain black letters, the words, 'Truly Rural.' This is called the drunkard's test. If a publican suspects any one of his customers to have had a drop too much, he takes it down and politely asks the suspected individual to read it. If the latter passes the ordeal satisfactorily, well and good, he may liquor up to his heart's content, but if, instead of uttering the magic words properly, he scrambles over the R's, he is done for, so far as one place is concerned.

Many ladies give as an excuse for marrying for money, that they seldom find anything else in a man now-a-days worth having.

Important Discovery.

HOW TO DRIVE RATS AWAY WITHOUT POISON.

We know of three methods; First, the old French plan, this is followed chiefly in Paris [illegible] a special business. They take a deep tub with water on the bottom and a little elevated in the middle, like an island, on which [illegible] to sit. The [illegible] has a large balance valve, opening downward. On the middle of this valve a piece of fried pork or cheese is placed, and when the rat walks on it to get the cheese the valve goes down, drops the rat into the water and moves back in position. a road is made from the rat hole to the top of the tub by means of pieces of boards rubed with cheese, so as to make the walk attractive for the rats. In the course of a night some ten, twenty, or even more rats may go down, and if the island was not there they would be found most all alive in the morning quietly swimming around; but the provision of the little island saves the trouble of killing them, because their egotistic instinct for preservation causes them to fight for the exclusive possession of the island, on which, in the morning, the strongest rat is found in solitary possession, all the others being killed and drowned around him. Second, the New York plan, invented by one of our friends. The floor near the rat-hole is covered with a thin layer of a most caustic potass. When she rats walk on this it makes their feet sore; these they lick with their tongue, which makes their mouths sore, and the result is that they abrun this locality—not alone, but appear to tell all the rats in the neighborhood about it, and eventually the house is entirely abandoned by them, notwithstanding the houses around may be full of rats. Third, the Dutch method. This is said to be most successfully in Holland; we have, however never tried it. A number of rats are left to themselves in a very large trap or cage, with no food whatever; their craving hunger will cause them to fight, and the weakest will be eaten by the strongest. After a short time the fight is renewed, and the next weakest is the victim and so it goes on till one strong rat is left. When this has eaten the last remains of any one of the others it is set loose; the animal has now acquired such a taste for rat flesh that he is the terror of ratdom, going around seeking what rat he may devour. In an incredibable short time the premises are abandoned by all other rats which will not come before the cannibal rat has left or died. —From the Manufacturer and Builder.

The Cause of Small Pox.

A German physician has lately started a theory that the fearful disease known as small-pox originates from an excess of albuminous matter in the blood and that this is to be prevented by the administration of common salt. The habits of children in indulging over freely in sweet-meats he considers one great cause of this undue developement of albumen, and coffee and tea if highly sugared, tend also to excite it in adults. An organic acid, such as lemon juice, he considers the best means of freeing the blood when clogged up with too much albumen, and he alleges that by taking these simple remedies in the way of precaution, he has, for upwards of twelve years past, frequented or taken up his abode in the most pestilential small-pox hospitals of Europe and South America with entire impunity. The means of prevention appear certainly simple, but may be worthy of investigation.—Exchange.

FARM FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers for sale his Farm,
Lot 16, and the West Half of Lot 17, in the 7th Concession of Smith.
The Farm contains 200 acres, more or less, about 150 acres are cleared. The Cobourg Railway runs through the lot, which is only about a mile from the Mud Lake terminus of the road.
There are two dwelling houses and large stables, sheds and wells attached to each, so that is suited for two farms. There are also two orchards on the lots. The property is about 7 miles from Peterboro, and admirably suited for Dairy purposes. It will be sold in whole, or in parts to suit purchasers.
Terms Liberal. For further particulars apply to

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND RYE GLASSES,

have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights passed by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Pumps Pumps.

To the Public in Generaly and Farmers in particular.

Henry Owens

Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated SWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalelled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a year's trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very cheap rate. He has increased his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and Repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientefic physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certian fixed proportions of greater power and professing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

PETERBOROUGH, DEC'. 5TH, 1872.

Editorial Items.

Horace Greely is dead. He survived the contest for the Presidency only a few weeks.

ASHBURNHAM.—There was no meeting of the Council on Monday night. No business to transact.

The Hon, Mr. Mowat was elected by acclamation on Friday for Welland.

The Manitoba Gazette has again reached us. We hope that no election riots shall ever again interfere with its publication.

Mr. McKeaghney of N.S, has been appointed a Judge in Manitoba.

The proprietors of the Hamilton Times, Spectator, and Standard have agreed to raise their rates, on account of the increase in price of printing material, and of labor. Every article in the composition of a newspaper is now ten to fifteen per cent higher than it was three years ago.

UPHOLSTERY.—Mr. R. H. Bryant has opened out a new upholstering establishment, three doors south of the Examiner office. He also does all kinds of repairing, laying carpets, and curtain hanging in the latest styles.

Mr. John Brown has an extensive stock of cabinet ware, which he advertises this week, he also attends to all orders for upholstering. In the Undertaking line he has one of the handsomest Hearses in the Dominion.

AGRICULTURAL FOUNDARY.—Read Mr. Peter Hamilton's advertisement. He supplies all the agricultural implements, straw-cutters, and also two-horse sawing machines. Give him a call.

Messrs. Whyte & Davis have succeeded in getting their new Foundary and Machine Shop enclosed. The building is of brick and calculated for carrying on an extensive business. We trust that others as enterprising as these gentlemen will take the hint, and by enlarging and in creasing their capabilities to do business, make Peterboro a great manufacturing Town. Nothing but enterprise is wanted to ensure it.

Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., has been appointed Vice-Chancellor in the room of Mr. Mowat, resigned. We believe that the members of the legal profession of all shades of political feeling look upon the appointment as a wise one, Sir John A. Macdonald having in this case selected a gentleman of the highest standing in his profession for the honorable but very responsible position. We have no doubt of the integrity of purpose of the Minister of Justice in the appointment of Judges for the Superior Courts, as, whether taken from Conservative or Reform ranks, to appoint persons without merit or standing, for mere political ends, would be sure to bring the judiciary of the country into contempt.

The weather was charming yesterday. A little snow has fallen—not enough to make good sleighing, yet the merry tinkle of the bells is heard everywhere. The season has been remarkably fine so far, and to all appearance may continue so to Christmas, perhaps. We hear no undue complaints of dullness in business and if we are to take the improvements in Peterboro as indicative of our prosperity, no town in the Dominion can be ahead of us. Splendid new buildings are to be seen in every direction, in course of erection or completed, and from appearances next year will be as busy as this one has been.

REMOVED.—Mr Leonard's Law Office is now over the store of T. Donnelly and Co. George street.

PERSONAL.—Our readers who patronize the Law Firm of Messrs. Boultbee, Fairbairn & Poussette, will do well to remember that their office is now on Water street, next door to the Ontario Bank, in the building formerly occupied by the Post Office.

THE CANADIAN ALMANAC.—We have received the Canadian Almanac for 1873, through Mr. Menzies. Besides its use as a monthly and daily calendar, it contains a compendium of information not to be found in any other single work. It is only 12½ cents.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC RAILWAY.—Sir Hugh Allan is expected to address the people of this county in the Court House about the 18th or 19th of this month, on the subject of the above railway. A petition is now in circulation asking the Sheriff to call a public meeting for the purpose.

AUCTION SALE.—Mr. Stapleton will sell a large lot of Furniture, to-morrow, at the residence of Mr. Brown, Hairdresser, near Messrs. Nicholls & Hall's store—See large bills.

It is not true that a Mandamus has been granted to compel the County Council to build the Locks Bridge; nor yet to submit the By-law in favour of the Lindsay, Fenelon & Ottawa River Railway, unless it was granted yesterday.

Teachers' Salaries.

Either the scarcity of teachers or the increased cost of living, or perhaps both reasons, is causing a general increase of teachers' salaries, everywhere. It is well known that this class of our citizens has not been as well paid as they ought to have been. This has driven and is driving the best men out of the profession, and as a consequence, tends to the injury of the whole people. It will be found to the interest of all Boards of Trustees to keep good teachers, and to this end they should pay liberal salaries. To employ an inferior teacher for the sake of saving $10, $20, or even $100 a year is a policy that should not be entertained now at the commencement of the school year. No sane man would employ an inferior Doctor if he got his services for nothing; and if so much wisdom prevails in caring for the body, should there be less in providing for proper mental discipline and care. The public are alive to the policy of purchasing the best machine for Agricultural and other purposes—should they be unmindful of the principle in providing for educators and directors of their children's mental growth, and training for the future—for eternity. If any have inferior teachers dismiss them, but don't starve them but. Not long since, a man who settled on a farm a number of years ago in the Township of Otonabee, sold it for $10,000. Now we venture to say that not a single teacher in Ontario can show a fifth part of this sum as the result of his labours in his profession in the same time, and not one in 50 of them can do more than make both ends meet.

We know it is said, there is a lazy profession; those who say so do not understand it. The faithful, conscientious teacher finds the work more killing on his energies and constitution than that of any of the professions, in which fortunes are made; and ten times more destructive to health and enjoyment than the hardest out door labor. If a few are lazy drive them out of the profession by not employing them; pay those retained liberally, and very soon a better class will take the place of the drones, who will be compelled to give way.

I See Men As Trees Walking.

The Review is getting more light. His eyes were dim and his natural and mental vision cloudy. The mist however, is removing and ere long he may see clearly. Let us hope for a speedy recovery from the hallucinations and disordered opinions that have shewn themselves so distinctly in all his political history. The leading article in the last issue of our respected confrere has "this heading":—

"Is there any such thing as political honesty?" and immediately he launches out into abuse of the Ontario government.

The caption of the article settles the fact that the Editor has been of the opinion that there was some honesty among the "naughty Grits." This interrogative, certainly settles this point; but it also as plainly implies that he knew there was no honesty in the conservative party, to which he belongs. He had proved this by and experience and in his longings after honesty and truth, for he cannot be considered as entirely robbed of a desire to find out a party possessing rectitude and honor, he was looking towards the Grit ranks for a resting place for his weary soul. This must be the meaning of his sad interrogation. A stronger desire to remain in Egypt has the control, and hence, notwithstanding the glimmerings of light that enter for a time at least, he must continue in the disordered and discomfitted ranks of the Tories until the Globe, Blake, MacKenzie, and MacKeller are extinguished. Olympian Jove has sent forth the mandate, all the meaning quake at the nod of Anglehow. Inferior deities must not interpose until ruin brings every grit in this Canada of ours. Not ever, Juno interplanding dare touch the kindred of the insulted thunderer, for the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel,

The party in power has violated every single principle which they advocated while in opposition. This is the sweeping charge of the editor of the Review. To prove to his satisfaction they have not done so would be a task as difficult as to convince him that he is only an ordinary mortal, made of flesh, bones and blood as other man are. Still many will receive the fact, stubborn as it is. Just so with the foolish challenge in the Review of last week, and any grit who would undertake to prove to the satisfaction of our confrere would be a greater simpleton than we think exists in the grit rank and file. If they have no honesty, a few of them have common sense, a commodity not always accompanying even the boasted heirs of noble birth, nor yet denied to some of the supporters of the Ontario government. The story is told of a son of the Emerald Isle whose bump of combative ness was unusually high, having almost got into a quarrel, where he must fight or run, and seeing his position he looked all round and then cried out "Is there no one to hold me." Is thereverally no one to prevent the Review annihilating Mr. Blake and George Brown? If not they must take it. But we do trust there will not be a second Hunter Street scene over this challenge.

St Andrew's Day.

The anniversary of Scotia's Patron saint being this year on Saturday, the annual dinner was deferred till Monday evening, when it was held in the Caisse House.

The dinner was got up in Mr. Turver's best style, and reflected great credit on the House, and also on the Society. About seventy Scots and sons of Scotchmen with numerous guests of other nationalities sat down to the sumptuous deliccies provided.

The president J. A. Hall, Esq. sheriff, presided and on his left were John Bertram Esq. M. P., Rev K. MacLennan, and A H. Campbell Esq., and others. On the left Mr. Dudman President of the St. George's Society, Mr. Blomfield Ex-president, and other guests. Irishmen, but not members of the St. Patrick's society as there is no society in Town.

The Independent Band discourred Scotch National airs during the dinner.

The room was tastefully decorated with the plaids of nearly all the Clans several mottoes graced the walls reminding them of their country, their Bards, their heroes, and not at all unmindful of their adopted home, such as "Canada, our Home." "Our sister Socities and guests, Benevolence Societies, Scotland's Bonnie Lasses." "Here's a health to bonnie Scotland to the, &c."

After doing justice to the good things, not forgetting the Haggis, the president in the most happy style gave the usual standard toasts commencing with "the Qeen" as all loyal subjects do on such occasions.

"The Prince and Princess of Wales and all the Royal Family" followed, in proposing which, the President very humourously referred to the union of that family with a Scotchman, by which the Queen and her family had shown their appreciation of Scotchmen generally by choosing one of them for a husband for the Princess.

"The Governor, and Lieutenant Governors" was next given by the President. In doing so he remarked that not one of them was a Scotchman, yet it was a pleasing part of his duty to acknowledge that Erin had given not only in the person of the present governor, but in that of others, men who knew how to conduct affairs of state with discretion and ability and credit with to Canada, as well as to their native Country.

"The Army Navy and Volunteers" was also received with a right good will. Major J. Z. Rogers, replied on behalf of the Volunteers, thanking them for the manner in which the toast had been proposed and received. He believed if ever called upon to defend their country they would willingly respond to the call and show themselves worthy of the nations from which they were descended.

Lieutenant Patterson, also returned thanks, and in doing so referred to the fact that the present system was defective, that there are too many half pay officers to be provided for! that the private was not sufficiently paid for his time, and as a consequence few cared to enter the service, and those who did were no properly drilled as they cannot afford to give the time necessary to perfect themselves in this necessary part of a soldier's duty.

The President then gave—"The day, and a' who honor it." He said as there is nae to be a day and a time to die, the time of St. Andrew's birth must have been arranged, as indicating that he would put to the Patron Saint of some hardy northern nation. Although as to when, why, or how he had been chosen was disputed. In meeting to do honor to the day they had met also to do honor to the land of his birth and to the people. They were accused of being a little clannish but were proud rather than ashamed of the charge. Proud to have a land worthy of their remembrance, and a brotherhood worthy of their care and regard. It is said that the roll of England's dram is heard in every clime under the sun, but in every land to night, the voice of Scotsmen would be heard in honor of their native land, and there would be a clasp of the hand for brither Scot, and their hearts would go out for all the sons of Scotia, everywhere, and with a right good will would Scotsmen drink "The day and a' who honor it."

Mr, Millar then sang a Scotch song.

J. M. Smith, Esq., Bank of Toronto, responded to this toast in a very neat speech, in which he spoke of the land of his childhood, the dear old land, which shed a halo of glory around wherever named. The people had made their mark wherever they had gone, and, in the words of Frands, except the Jews, no people so few in number had scored as deep a mark in history. He beautifully referred to home associations, to the lasting impressions the bards had left on the minds of the people, and to the effects of reading the noble deeds of Wallace, Bruce and others, after their daily toil. The Sabbath, too, was devoted to sacred duties and devotions, and Scotland's regard for that day had made her so honored among the nations. Our notes will not enable us to give the speech certatim.

Mr. Peters, 1st Vice President, then gave "The land we love so weel." He said he occupied his present position against his will, and would not a speech maker, but he knew that fitter gentlemen would reply, and do the sentiment justice. The sons of Scotia loved their country, and no doubt all nationalities possessed a love of country. Separated from the dear old land they met to talk and think and sing of her beauties, her bards, her heroes and the skill of her sons. Many of her sons had wandered far from their country, but wherever found they had succeeded in making their mark.

Mr. Wanless, a brother Scot from Detroit, was present and read some poetry of his own. Mr. Wanless we understand is now on a tour through Canada, offering his book for sale.

Mr. Millar sang "Scotland yet."

A. H. Campbell responded to the sentiment.

"Canada, our Home" was given by the President and responded to by the Rev. K. Maclennan.

Mr. Miller sang "The Maple Leaf."

Mr. Elder, 2nd Vice-President, gave—"The Heroes and Bards of Scotland." This toast he gladly undertook to give, as he knew it would be well received. He knew it would touch the heart of true Scotsmen assembled here on this night. When they thought of the noble deeds of Scotland's heroes. The immortal songs of her poets, the scenes depicted in the "Cotter's Saturday Night," when they remembered the names of the immortal bards whose songs and writings were so true to nature, and their heroes the bravest the world ever saw, they could not but feel that Scotland's Heroes and Poets occupied a high position. The decorations of the Hall reminded him of the Clans, and the tartans of the victories gained, while these were often died in blood. Their heroes will be remembered while memory lasts, and her songs be sung for all time. Scotland's scenery could not be forgotten, where they climbed the mountains, slept in the glens and paddled in the same burns as did those great men. He would therefore ask all present to drink a full bumper to "The Heroes and Bards of Scotland."

The Bard of the Society, Mr. Telford, then read the following poem, composed for the occasion:

Puir Cannie Scots.

For the St. Andrew's Society, Peterborough November 30th, 1872.

This year, Brither Scots, I was sairla perplex't,
I swithered an' thocht far a bit o' a text.
At last through ma heed, just as quick as a thought
Flew the title I gie it, "The puir cannie Scot."
They were-na sae cannie, where we first find their name,
When the Romans sailed ower, their bold nature to tame.
Both the Romans and Danes when to Scotia they got
Was surprised wi' the courage an' strength o' the Scot.
For they speeled up like squirrels ower the Roman's big wa's
They laughed at their weapons, defied a' their laws;
They were-na content wi' their ain little share
But they held what they had an' still grabbed for mair.
Sae the Romans and Danes had to gang awa hame.
Perhaps bigger fails, than they were when they came.
They left the brave Scots unsubdued as before
Now their offspring is roamin' the wide world o'er.
Lang ages have passed, education an' art
Has changed their wild nature an' softened their heart
The slow cautious nature the Scotchman has got
Has gained them the nickname o' "puir cannie Scot."
Cannie, they speel Scotia's heather braes,
Cannie they sing the auld sangs o' her praise,
You will meet wi' a Scot in ilk climate or sphere.
Guid faith, they are thick as mikittes oot here.
The cannie Scot lands on Canadian soil,
Often puir, but his nature is willin' to toil,
He gets a bit job, then as big as a cheese
When pay-day comes round, he counts his hay bees.
Tho' cannie, yet thrifty, nae prudent an' sly,
He tries ilka week a wee bit to lay by.
He cases them big fails that wad spend a' their pay,
An' no save a trifle to meet a wet day.
He works an' he saves, he is careful an' safe.
He spreads the sweet butter gie thin on his late
Till wi' makin' an' savin' his siller plays cheek
Then he empties his pouch to the clerk in bank.
Still Sanda keeps siddin', as ilka week close
Wi' interest his stock like a mushroom still grows.
Then he shrugs up his shoothers asklant throws his beed,
Ah, the cautious Scot, thinking what he maun du we'd.
Some Scots bought a farm an' chop'd doon the trees;
The callants now work it, he lives at his ease.
Some say they cam' here just as puir as a rat,
Now they ride in their buggy, and wear a plug hat,
Some started as clerks, clad in jacket o' blue,
What are they this nicht, maist as rich as a jew.
In office of honor, in bank or in store,
The cannie Scots name hangs oot ower every door.
Premiers, judges, an' lawyers, its vera weel kent,
Are mair than half Scotch, or of Scottish descent.
I think that ere lang you wul see on records,
A Scot fra this toon in the big house o' lords.
Scots are cannie, but dinna tramp hard on their toes,
Bonaparte caed them Ceevils dressed in mean clothes,
Are ready to charge, vera slow to retreat,
Sae stubborn, they dinna ken when they were beat.
Langsighted, they often think twice ere they jump,
Ambitious, the maist o' them has that bit plump.
Clannish perhaps, they may hae that bit faut'
Love o' country, but few can excell them for that.
Sae mony ages wad think that it bordered on greed;
But they pu' oot their purse on a brither in need.
St Andrew's Society here we have got
As a beacon of help, by the Scots for a Scot.
Their business or work for twa months keep them tight,
They burst oot their shell on St. Andrew's nicht,
The slow cautious Scot is now active and smart
At the big rekin' haggis they mak' a bold dart.
Then I say, let three cheers for Auld Scotia be given,
The same for young Canada, land that we live in.
Baith looder an' longer, but no hurt yer throat
With a roosen big cheer for the puir cannie Scot,

J. Bertram, Esq., Ex-President, also responded, in the absence of Mr. W. H. Scott who was detained from being present by illness in his family. After giving reasons why he should not make a long speech, he said that in tracing the noble deeds of noble men as Wallace, Bruce and others, we were disposed to forget just as noble deeds done in humble stations. We forget the man who does his part well by being always at his post, and always, though in humble adheres, does his work well. Those men are heroes, whose names are too often forgotten. Scotland had her bards, and their songs have told on the minds of the people, and moulded them. In Peterboro the Society had a hard, and he hoped there was room always have a place in the association of the people.

Mr. Miller, Smith, also responded, and spoke proveuter to giving [illegible] Scotsmen and Guests.' He said it was a pleasant duty. He had [illegible] a great deal of pleasure to the toasts and responses, to the enthusiasm with [illegible] all had been received, and the [illegible]

[illegible] built up, consisted of Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen. And they were of that country. All were still under the same flag. We could all look back to the country whence we came, examine its history, admire its freedom, and then try to establish for ourselves a nation. He felt satisfied that all would join in wishing long life to the St. George's, and also in expressing a wish that a St. Patrick's would soon be formed and prosper. It was the duty of all to cultivate a broad and generous national spirit, and by a union of sentiment, boast not that we are Englishmen, Irishmen, or Scotchmen, but Canadians.

After a song from Mr. Belcher, Mr. Dudman returned thanks on behalf of the St. George's Society, and Mr. Boultbee on behalf of the Guests.

Mr. Elder then gave "the Learned professions" to which Mr. Bleecker responded.

Mr. Millar, 3rd vice president gave "the Mayor and Corporation," responded to by Mr. Smith responded.

Mr. Carnegie gave "Our Commercial, Manufacturing and Agricultural Interests," which was responded to by Mr. Moir, on behalf of the Manufacturing interests, and by Mr. Wm. Tully, for the Agricultural interests.

Mr. Patterson gave "The Ladies."

Mr. C. Cameron, "The Press," both of which were duly responded to.

The evening was pleasantly spent; the speeches were, equal if not superior to those on former occasions; and the songs and music made the festival all that could be wished for

UNION SCHOOL.

The Board met on Tuesday evening.

Present.—Messrs. Cluxton, Dumble, Edmison, Cox, Toole, Stevenson, Kidd and Edwards.

In the absence of Dr. Burnham, Mr. Cluxton was appointed chairman pro tem.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Clerk read applications from Miss Hatton, and also from Mr. Braden for increase of salaries; and a communication from the Janitor in reference to having no wood-shed for the new school building, and in consequence, having to pile all the wood outside, or be compelled to get a carter to draw it to the shed. They were received.

Mr. Stevenson reported, verbally, having visited the school in company with Mr. Cluxton, and that they found everything in a very satisfactory and favorable state so far as the school was concerned.

They found that a writing class had been in one of the rooms by permission of members of the Board, but as soon as the present series of lessons should be completed, it would be discontinued. He also referred to that part of the Janitor's letter about the dangerous state of the ground at the north entrance to the new building, but thought nothing could be done to it this season.

Mr. Edwards gave in a report of the Special Committee to whom was referred the matter of division of the proceeds of the sale of school lot in the north ward, between the Public School and the Roman Catholic School. The report stated that the committee found the average attendance of the R. C. school for 1871 to be 196 or 72 pupils less than the report showed arising from the error of the teacher who made out the report having used the wrong divisor. The division based on this gave the R. C. School Board $246.68 which had been accepted as correct, and paid. The report also pointed out the wisdom of enquiring how far errors of the nature of the above would affect the proportioning of the Government Grants from time to time. The report after some discussion was received and adopted.

Mr. Cox remarked that he believed several supporters of the Separate School sent children to the Union School, and if so, he thought they should support this school by paying their taxes to it. It was found, however, that they were attending the Collegiate Institute to which they did pay taxes.

On motion of Mr. Toole the Secretary was instructed to find out the data on which the Chief Superintendent made all his divisions of the School Grants.

Applications for increase of salaries were then taken up.

Mr. Dumble favored considering the whole Teachers and dealing as fairly with all as the Board could. The change in cost of living and consequent advance in cost of labor in every branch of industry no doubt affected teachers, and as two applications for increase of salaries were now before them, others would do likewise and necessitate considering the whole staff at once.

Mr. Stevenson moved that no increase should be granted this year, seconded by Mr. Toole.

Mr. Cox admitted that there was a general increase in cost of living and in labor, and thought teachers should be fairly dealt with, but he thought the whole should be referred to a committee.

Mr. Dumble said it was not right for Board to evade a duty and place it on the heads of a committee, it was therefore better to dispose of the matter by the Board.

Mr. Edmison was in favor of giving teachers who deserved it as much as they could get elsewhere, and he thought that some of them could get larger salaries by leaving.

Mr. Toole thought it was better that one should be allowed to remove, if disappointed, rather than cause trouble in the whole school.

Mr. Edmison thought a teacher should be left without any reasononable cause for removing.

Mr. Dumble still insisted to deal with the whole thing at once by the Board, and deal fairly with all the teachers, for he thought teachers salaries were not in proportion to the increased cost of living.

It was finally agreed to grant an increase of salary to Miss Hatton, Miss Borrowman and Mr. Braden. And on motion of Mr Cox, seconded by Mr. Dumble, they were fixed as follows:—Miss Hatton. $500; Miss Borrowman, $400; Mr. Braden, $450.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, the property committee were authorized to take steps to provide wood for the school for the ensuing year.

A motion of Mr. Edwards, seconded by Mr. Edmison to rescind a resolution which provides "That if there is no quorum at a monthly meeting, there shall be a meeting of the Board on the following Tuesday" was lost.

One or two accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Cox asked for information in reference to the Home Economy [illegible] which the Superintendent [illegible] and said it should be made [illegible]

[illegible] of the Board to do [illegible] McCarroll has 21 pupils, which [illegible] secure more than the amount paid her, which is Eighty pounds a year.

The Board on motion of Mr. Cox, seconded by Mr. Stevenson, granted $100 towards paying Mr. Beck as an assistant for the last three or four months, and then adjourned.

HORACE GREELEY.

THE AMERICAN PRESS ON HIS DEATH.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30.—All the papers this morning gave editorials on the death of Horace Greely and all accord him high praise as a man and an editor. The City council last night passed a resolution in respect to the memory of the deceased statesman and journalist, and requested Mayor Brown to convey to the family of the deceased the deep sympathy of the citizens of St. Louis in their affliction.

New York, Nov. 30.—The Evening Commercial says that Greeley was once a compositor on that paper. His life was pure. He had actually no enemies. There were those who condemned or criticised or smiled at his theories and his works, but the man was the centre of no great and settled dislike.

The Express says the alienation of old friends, betrayal and treachery of others, and six month's merciless abuse were more than he could bear, unmoved. He yet neither said, nor did, a foolish thing, during the canvass. He had always believed in hard words and hard blows, but acted on principle.

New York, Nov., 30.—The following additional details of Mr. Greeley's last hours have been received:—During the day, as is usual in cases of inflammation of the brain; his physical suffering was extremely slight, but increased morbid action of mind was evident from exterior manifestations. At 5.30 an old family friend, known as Auntie Lawson, entered and approached his bed. Mr. Greeley was then roused by a friend, who asked, "Do you know who this is?" He feebly said "yes," stretched up his hand in greeting, and then relapsed into his reverie. He was asked "Do you know you are dying?" and in the same manner and without tremor or emotion, he answered "Yes." When asked if he was in pain he laid his hand upon his breast, but without otherwise replying, and returned to his semi-unconscious state, lying now with closed eyes, and hands sometimes twitching nervously but generally still. At 6.30 he stirred uneasily, and began to mutter indistinctly something which friends around him could not catch. His daughter Ida, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Mr. Carpenter, Cr. Choate, and Auntie Lawson, were all in the room, anxious to hear his last words. Mr. Greeley indistinctly murmured for a while, and at last feebly said, "It is done." There was no evidence of pain in his last moments. The face hardly changed, only settling a little into a look of perfect peace. Dr. Choate was by his bedside, and putting his hand to Greeley's heart, said "He is gone." the remains were dressed and laid out to await removal to the parlor, while a few friends remained to watch through the night beside him. His remains will be at Mr. Choate's house to day, and to-morrow night they will probably be brought into this city. The present intention is to bury him from Calvin's church on Tuesday, but the programme may be change to suit the desires of such public bodies as propose to take part in the ceremony. During the day yes

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredients. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. A more easily applied than many other remedies, nor producing a bad effect, but always relieving, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Sores, Felons, Pimples, Erysipelas, Sore Nose, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Rashes, Sunken Breasts, Itch, Scald Head, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and gaining the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Sunken Breast and Sore Nipples; in no way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures deafness by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Poisons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples this acts like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of MISS SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you consented to let me take your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I am like a weak hand, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, pulls flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggists, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents. by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE Is SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE GREATEST MALE REMEDY

Job Moses' Peridocal Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

These Pills should not be taken by Females during the FIRST THREE MONTHS of Pregnancy, as they are sure to bring on Miscarriage, but at any other time they are safe.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the Pills will effect a cure when all other means have failed; and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel, antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved

JOB MOSES', NEW YORK, SOLE PROPRIETOR

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier, alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only thenty-five cents per bottle.

The Cook of the Period.

The looks of ye ma'am, rather suits me—
The wages ye offer 'll do,
But thin I can't later yer service
Without a endishan or two.
And now, to begin, is the kitchen
Commodgeous, with plenty of light,
And fit, ye know, for entertainin'
Such friends as I'm like to invite!

And nixt, are yous reglar at male times?
Bekase 'taint convaleent ye see,
To wait, and if I behaves punkahui,
It's no more than yous ought to be.
And then is your gurrels good natarted?
The raison I lift my last place—
The French nuss was such a high lady,
I sint a dish cloth at her face.

And have yer the taste of objection
To min droppin' in when they choose?
I've got some ellvin fust cousins
That frequently brings me the nooze.
I must have them trayted powlitely,
I give yon fair warnin', ma'am now,
If the alley gate be closed agin them,
You'll find me commencin' a row.

These matthers agrayed on between us,
I'd try yer a wake, so I wud.
(She looks like the kind I can manage,
A thin thing without any bluid.)
But mind, if I comes for a wake, ma'am,
I comes for that that time, and no lies,
And so, thin, pravidin' yo'd want me,
Joshit give me yer name and addriss.

Mr. McWAT'S ADDRESS.

To the Free and Independent Electors of the North Riding of Oxford.

GENTLEMEN,—

Having accepted the office of Attorney General for Ontario and Member of the Executive Council, it is necessary for me to have a seat in the Legislature and the generous conduct of Mr Perry having created a vacancy in the representation of your Riding, for which I have been invited to become a candidate, I beg to offer myself for your suffrages.

Many of you remember that I entered public life in 1857 as a Reformer. I thought then that the Reformers were right in their views on the principal matters which agitated the country, and that on future issues I was more likely to find myself in accord with the Liberal party than with those to whom it was opposed, and for the seven years that I was a member of the Canadian Parliament, I had the happiness of enjoying the unmetrupted confidence of my fellow reformers in Parliament and in the country.

For the eight years which followed, though I had no expectations of ever returning to political life, yet I continued to take that interest in public affairs which every intelligent citizen do take, whatever their position may be, and during this period I perceived nothing which should transfer my sympathies from the Liberal party to its opponents. When, therefore, I was called on by His Excellency to form an Administration, I chose to form one which should be recognized and accepted as a thoroughly Reform Administration, and it is gratifying to know that the Government as now constituted has the full approbation of the whole Reform party, as well as of many Conservatives.

I shall do my best to justify the public confidence which has been manifested towards myself and the gentlemen associated with me.

With that view, it shall be my endeavor, in the Government and the Legislature, to do equal justice to all classes, creeds, parties, and persons. That I understand to be a cardinal doctrine of reform policy.

With the same view and hope soon to mature, with the aid of my colleagues, and to carry it an early date, measures for the satisfactory settlement of the Municipal Loan Fund debts; for the just appropriation of the surplus revenues of the Province; for obtaining an augmented immigration, particularly of agricultural laborers; for the more rapid development of the agricultural and other resources of our country; for the reform of the laws in regard to various matters in which experience has brought to light defects and injurious anomalies, and for securing increased efficiency in the working of our educational and municipal institutions, in the administration of justice, and in other departments of the public service.

My acceptance of a seat in the Cabinet has been alleged by some political opponents to be contrary to British constitutional rules in regard to the judiciary. But that statement is without the slightest foundation. No such rule can be found, except in the fancy of those who are asserting it as a weapon of assault against myself. On the contrary, the well settled British rule is, that Her Majesty has a right to call to her Council any of her subjects, whatever he happens to hold a judicial or any other office. If he holds an office which, by law, custom, or otherwise, he cannot hold it in conjunction with a seat in the Cabinet, the only effect is, that the office must be surrendered; as I have surrendered my seat on the Chancery Bench. The Lord Chancellor is always a member of the British Cabinet; and there are almost always several judges in the British Parliament.

No office in Ontario is more honorable than that of Premier, to which I have been called; and the office presents a greater field for public usefulness than that which I have left. I did not seek to leave the position; and on personal grounds I was reluctant to accept it; but I could discover no sufficient reason to justify my refusing it.

If you approve of the views and opinions which I have indicated in this address, and if you believe that I will endeavor to carry out what I have professed, I hope that you will enable me to have the honor of doing so as member for the North Riding of Oxford.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your faithful servant,
OLIVER MOWAT.

Toronto, Nov. 21, 1872.

BRITAIN is every now and then suffering from a panic about some danger or other about to fall on the nation with crushing force. It is now the French that are going to do the mischief; now the Prussians; now the Russians; and so on. At on time the Army is merely one on paper; at another the Navy, in spite of all that how been said upon it, is not worth speaking about. One of these fever fits is it contained at present, from Mr. Reed, late constructor of the Navy, writing to the Times a doleful account of the state of the Naval resources, and immense progress made in foreign navies lately effected by Russia and Prussia. Unless something more is done, we are given to understand, Britain will be at the mercy of these two powers. It may be that Mr. Reed is right, and that may account for the formidable decay that has lately taken place in the state and character of Britain's Naval defences, for it beat to his way of viewing matters. In all likelihood Britain will be found able to hold her place among the nations in the future, as she has done in the past, in spite of all the outcry.

Fashion at Church.

BY S. G. D.

Thank Heaven, we've reached the church at last!
Say, is my train all right?
Your pulvenzine is elegant,
I hardly notice fatigue.
I shall walk slowly up the aisle—
Here, let me fix your cape—
Don't come any further, this train must clear.
'Tis the thing, you know.
My maid has been to-day,
He is [illegible]
He'll look straight down this way.
The book and
Hat [illegible]
[illegible]
Do you know who those people are?
What Kate Arnold wears?
See widow Carver's mourning veil—
How very deep and wide!
I wonder whether Fany Frost
Walks out to-day as bride?
What ugly shawls those are in front.
Frank Carr does look so mild.
Why, Mrs. Harris dressed in black,
She must have lost a child.
There's Seddie Reed and Mollie May,
Will Hodges with Lu Dow,
Mourning becomes Belle Applebee,
Here comes the preacher now.
Much we sit here where aside will see
We won't stand up to sing;
Grace Gray has taken off her glove
To show her diamond ring.
Old Mr. Hart is fast asleep,
Hark, did you hear him snore?
The singers do put on such airs,
Church music is a bore.
This [illegible]
And has such proxy views,
I am so tired, I must confess,
Of wandering with the Jews.
Now pray look at the singers' seats.
How they do whisper there.
They talk, and talk, 'tis scandalous
To act so, I declare.
I'm half asleep. This preacher makes
His sermons all so long.
This afternoon we'll stay at home
And practice that new song.

Spoiled Children.

There is, in the Philadelphia Ledger, a story in which Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, remembering rightly, says that he noticed that in America grown-up children were generally on good terms with their parents, and he attributes it to the fact that they had been spoiled when they were little! Good enough, and witty enough. We wish it were always true of American parents and their children, that they dwelt together in harmony. The kind of spoiling that brings this about, the tenderness, the forbearance, the sympathy of the parent toward the child, is always admirable. But in a more serious sense, nothing can put a greater gulf between parents and children than weak indulgence.

Now do not misunderstand. There are parents who are always exacting. They think they will make good children by incessantly jerking the reins this way and that. There is no surer way of spoiling a child. Indulgence in one sense is a parental duty. Every parent should set himself to make his child happy as possible. We have heard a father or mother reproached for the pains taken to serve their children. "You'll spoil that child; you make yourself a slave for him." Ay! and that is just what God does for his children. He serves them, he seeks to make them happy. Let it be understood that no indulgence, tender, constant, and devoted, if it be not weak and foolish, ever spoils a child.

Forbearance does not spoil a child We recall now the story of a great philanthropist, still living, who rejected corporal punishment on principle. His unruly boys gave him great trouble, but his patience was not worn out. For he labored to bring a child under authority without chastisement. And his reward is a family of grown-up sons, worthy of their sire, devoted to him, loving him, cleaving to him. We think his theory in the matter of corporal punishment extreme; but we admire his patience, his firmness, and parental forbearance. Let a parent never imagine that he is spoiling his child by controlling his own temper.

As we have before shown, freedom does not spoil a child. Let a child have all the freedom he can stand. Beyond this the laissez-faire policy is evil.

Children are spoiled, as we have shown by sternness. But they are also spoiled by the weakness, silliness, and indolence of parents, and there must be firmness. Not that a parent shall persist in a course which he finds wrong; for nothing so destroys the confidence of a child as to find the authority above him is not reasonable. But when the parent is convinced that there is a case in which the child will not act according to reason and conscience, a case in which reason and entreaty fail, then let him be firm. Not angry, not provoking, not insulting to his child, only firm and patient. If you give way to a child's insistancy, you have put a premium upon it, you have sacrificed his respect for you, you have done your best to overthrow at a blow your authority and your influence. Never put your resistence to your child's demand upon the ground of your self-will, or if then only stubbornness in his eyes; it is not best usually to put it upon the ground of your right to be obeyed, it looks like a despotism. But on the ground of the right or wrong of this thing in question, of the harmfulness of it to your child or some else, take your stand, and unless you are wrong do not be reaxed or wheedled. Let your love appear in your decision. Let it be inforced without petulance, willfulness, or needless irritation of the child.

How many parents yield to wheedling, and yield in the worst possible way! "Wel, I if you must," says such a one, "I suppose you must. But you know it's wrong, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself to do so." In which speech the child is informed that he can very easily get an advantage over you if he is only persistent and tormenting, and that you are weak enough and indolent enough to yield in a case where you are certainly right, rather than subject yourself to trouble. So he has respect for your authority, casts off your influence, learns to prefer his case to his duty, and is spoiled.—Hearth and Home.

During Wednesday night, says the London Free Press, a man supposed to be James Reilly, formerly Treasurer of the Township of Metcalf, was run over on the G. W. R. track between Glencoe and Appin, and literally cut to pieces. Some parts of his clothing were found on the brakes of the night express by the wheel pegger at this station, while examining the wheels and gearing. It seems the unfortunate man lived for several years past in Nebraska, and was on a visit to his relatives near Appin. He left the train at Glencoe, and was proceeding along the track towards Appin, when he [illegible] and instantly killed. From appearances [illegible] remains, it is evident that several trains had passed over the body. In his left, which was next by the place, was found a ticket from Windsor to Appin. Evidently the train on which he took passage did not stop at the station, and in trying to reach the residence of his friends by walking along the track he appears to have been knocked down and fatally injured.

COUNTY TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES.

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH, } BY Virtue of a Warrant under the Hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough, and to me
[illegible] dated the Nineteenth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand [illegible] and seventy-two, I am commanded under the authority of an Act of Parliament

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected pectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selection.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the nearer the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

The Old Man in the Model Church

BY JOHN H. YATES.

Well, wife, I've found the model church I
worshiped there to-day,
It made me think of the good old times before my hairs were gray;
The meetin' house was fixed up more than they were years ago,
But then I felt when I went in, it wasn't built for show.

The sexton didn't seat me away back by the door,
He knew that I was old and deaf, as well as old and poor,
He must have been a Christian, for he led me boldly through
The long aisle of that crowded church to find a pleasant pew.

I wish you'd heard the singin', it had the old time ring,
The preacher said, with trumpet voice, "Let all the people sing."
The tune was Coronation, and the music appeared pulled Till I thought I heard the angels striking all their harps of gold.

My deafness seemed to melt away, my spirit caught the fire,
I joined my feeble, trembling voice with that melodious choir,
And sang as in my youthful days, "Let angels
prostrate fall,
Bring forth the royal diadem, and crown him
Lord of all."

I tell you, wife, it did me good to sing that hymn once more,
I felt like some wrecked mariner who gets a glimpse of shore,
I almost wanted to lay down this weather-beaten form,
And anchor in the blessed port, forever from the storm.

The preachin'? Well I can't just tell all the preacher said,
I know it wasn't written, I knew it wasn't read,
He hadn't time to read it, for the lightnin' of his eye
Went flashing along from pew to pew, nor passed a sinner by.

The sermon wasn't flowery, 'twas simple gospel truth,
It fitted poor old men like me, it fitted hopeful youth,
'Twas full of consolation for weary hearts that bleed,
'Twas full of invitations to Christ and not to creed.

The preacher made sin hideous in Gentiles and in Jews,
He shot the golden sentences down in the finest pews,
And—though I can't see very well—I saw the fallin' tear
That told me hell was some ways off and heaven very near.

How swift the golden moments fled within that holy place,
How brightly beamed the light of heaven from every happy face.
Again I longed for that sweet time when friend shall meet with friend,
When congregations ne'er break up and
Sabbath has no end.

I hope to meet that minister—that congregation too—
In the dear home beyond the stars that shine from heaven's blue.
I doubt not I'll remember, beyond life's evening gray,
The happy hour of worship in that model church to-day.

[illegible]
The shinin' goal is just ahead, the race is nearly run.
O'er the river we are nearin', they are thronging to the shore
To shout our safe arrival where the weary weep no more.

The Veiled Sorceress

A THRILLING STORY OF A WOMAN'S VENGEANCE.

When Charles II found himself firmly seated upon the throne of his decapitated father, and was satiated with Roundhead blood, he looked about him to fulfil an oath made in the interest of Sir Esterbrook Falcolm, his trustiest cavalier.

In the darkest period of the monarch's life, when he was compelled to hide in the trees, under huts and miasmatic fens to escape the vengeance of the regicides, Sir Esterbrook alone remained faithful, and to reward him, Charles swore to place in his hand that of Editha Howard, the only child of the infirm Sir Jarold Howard, and the most beautiful woman in England.

The symmetrical form and prepossessing features of Sir Esterbrook had gained him the cognomen of the "Apollo of the Army," and he thought his handsome self irresistible to the comelier sex.

Editha Howard!

His sin-stained heart leaped with joy at the vow of hunted Stuart, whom he saw with prophetic vision seated upon the English throne. He did not serve Charles so faithfully through patriotic motives, he served for a selfish motive, and that he might gain the hand of the woman he passionately adored—Editha Howard.

The Stuart had intended, when fortune smiled upon him, to wrest Editha from the heart of her only remaining parent, and make her a bright but lost jewel in his contaminated court. He never dreamed that his follower's heart was set upon her, and was surprised when he told Sir Esterbrook to ask any boon at his hands, that, instead of craving titles, lands, or gold, he should ask what was not his to bestow—a woman's hand.

Notwithstanding this, the merry monarch gave it to him, and swore that he should possess it.

The lamb loves not the wolf.

Thus it was with Editha Howard—she loved not the cavalier who came to her from the bacchanalian walls of a corrupt court, and, on bended knees poured into her ears protestations of love.

When Sir Esterbrook asked her hand in marriage, she boldly refused it, telling him that he had best seek a companion in the palace.

The rejection soon reached Charles's ears. "I will humble her falcoln," he said with a meaning smile.

That day, Editha's grey-haired father was arrested upon a charge of treason and immured in the tower. His trial and condemnation to the block speedily followed, and almost crazed with grief, the girl sought the king.

She offered to take her father's place and give her young life for his, and the assumed monarch told her that the bestowal of her hand upon Sir Falcom would secure her father's liberation.

Instantly her cheeks paled at the thought of becoming the bride of such a man, but though she knew that it would break her heart and make her an early tenant of the tomb she consented.

"Now let me liberate him with my own hands!" she cried. "Let me—his child—bring the first ray of sunshine to his heart."

The monarch, ignorant of the state of affairs in the earl's cell, acceded and sent Editha to the tower with a guard, and the keys in her own hands.

She reached her father's cell and threw wide open the massive door.

"Fa——" The endearing name froze upon her lips at the sickening sight that met her gaze.

Stretched upon the floor, lifeless, yet still bleeding, lay the parent she came to liberate.

Murdered!

Upon the ghastly object she sank insensible and woke to consciousness in her own chamber.

Falcom's impatience had baffled him. Fearing that Editha would not exchange her hand for the liberation of her father, he had caused him to be murdered, unknown to the king, thinking that in the midst of her grief the poor girl would consent to become his.

The night following the burial of the basely murdered nobleman, Editha mysteriously disappeared.

Determined to find her, Sir Esterbrook let loose his spies and after a week of search the hunt suddenly came to a termination.

They found the body of a woman floating in the Thames. The delicately moulded features were disfigured, but Editha's well-known ring encircled one of the tiny fingers, and so the ghastly object was laid away in the family vault, where slumbered many a generation of the Howards. It was believed that in a fit of insanity occasioned by the death of her father, the beautiful one had taken her own life, and the cavalier, upon whose hands her innocent blood appeared, turned to new conquests.

One night, six years subsequent to the thrilling incidents related above, Sir Esterbrook Falcom felt an arm thrust through his as he walked in the court of the royal palace.

He turned and beheld his friend Sir Mortimer Vere.

"Ha, I have found thee at last!" cried Sir Mortimer. "I came to bear thee away from the gay company here assembled."

"Whither, Sir Mortimer?" asked Sir Falcolm. "By my troth, I was wishing for a change of scene when thou camest."

"I am going to consult Sibballa the Sorceress, and would that thou wouldst accompany me."

"With all my heart, Sir Mortimer," replied Falcolm. "I would know the future, which I have been told this woman can reveal it."

"Ay, and tell thee of the past too," said Sir Vere as he led Falcom from the merry company to the gloomy streets.

After a tedious walk Sir Mortimer paused before a magnificent building, [illegible] fell upon one who had truly read the past life of his king and boldly prophesied his future.

She towered before a black cauldron, in a brilliantly lighted apartment, the velvet lined walls of which which were covered with cabalastic horoscopes of remarkable characters.

She was georgeously clad and deeply veiled. A wealth of tresses that almost swept the floor glittered like gold in the lamplight and the exquisitely chiselled arms, bare to the shoulder excited the admiration of the curious cavalier.

In a mellow tone she spoke his name as he paused before the cauldron, and bade him advance.

Sir Mortimer Vere remained at a respectful distance.

"Sir Estbrook, I will read thy past, then thy future," she said, as a scarcely perceptible vapor arose from the depths of the ebon cauldron.

The earl could not control his curiosity. He touched the rim of the vessel, and gazed into it, to behold a dense white smoke slowly ascending.

Sibballa drew a ball of silken ribbon from her bosom and dropped it into the cauldron, retaining one end of the string Presently a little snake of deep green hue ascended the ribbon which fell to pieces as he proceed, and coiled around the sorceresses arm. This singular action completed, Sibballa opened her mouth and read Sir Esterbrook's past life with a correctness that startled him and caused him to think the creature before him was more than a woman.

"Now thy future," she said slowly and solemnly. "I read it in a single sentence, "Sir Esterbrook Falcom dies to-night!"

The earl sprang from the cauldron, and stared at the sorceress.

As that moment, as if by accident, Sibballa's veil disappeared in the smoky smoke, and the cavalier found himself face to face with—Editha Howard.

An English oath parted his lips. He saw that he was entrapped, and, not caring how the girl had escaped his spies to become a noted sorceress, he drew his sword and turned to Sir Vere.

"Traitor," he cried, "bar not my way to yonder portal."

Sir Mortimer remained motionless as a statute, and before the enraged cavalier could make a pass, Editha's voice greeted his ears.

"Murderer, thy time has come!" she cried, and he turned to behold the snake writhing in her grasp far above her head.

He divined he intention but ere he could plan a defence against the novel attack, she sent the green serpent hissing through the air and it sunk its horrid fangs into his neck, around which it closely coiled.

He did not shriek, but clutching wildly at space, staggered back and sinking slowly to the floor died without a groan.

After gazing a few moments at the cavalier's face, rapidly swelling to an unnatural size, Editha looked at Vere.

"Mortimer, we will go now."

Enveloping herself in a cloak, she took the earl's arm, and that night for ever disappeared Sibballa the Veiled Sorceress.

Ever since the night upon which she found an uninvited body in the Thames and decked it with her ring, she worked for revenge which proved, Falcolm's doom.

Far and wide Charles hunted for the slayer of his favorite, and never discovered that it was Editha Howard, living in France as a wife of Mortimer Vere, whom she had loved in girlhood's sunny hour.

TURK'S ISLAND

Deacon Ridgeby and his wife were in their sitting-room one morning—the deacon reading the newspaper to his wife and she sewing. The following passage caught his eye:

"Arrived. Brig J. M. W—— from Turk's Island, with salt, etc."

"Turk's Island?" said Mrs. Ridgeby pensively, "I used to know where that was, deacon."

"So did I, but I can't think now. Here's Miss Carter, she'll know."

Just then Miss Carter a school-teacher of forty, at last, entered the room, with a "good morning, deacon."

"Where's Turk's Island, Miss Carter?" asked Mrs. Ridgeby.

"Turk's Islands, consisting of Grand Turk, Caicos, and Salt Key, are situated southeast of the Bahamas, and are a group of sandbanks upon which nothing grows, and there are only three things in plenty."

"What's them?" asked the deacon.

"Sand, salt and sun. I was there once."

"Was you? Now tell us all about it."

"All is not much. I was in Key West, waiting for a chance to get home and an American vessel came along bound for Boston via Turk's Islands, so I took passage in he. We had been at sea two or three days, when one morning at daylight the Captain called me on deck. The schooner was gliding along in very smooth water close under a lighthouse, and soon a town with its white houses and high piles of white salt began to appear. There was scarcely any vegetation on the island, only a few low shrubs, palms, etc., which looked decidedly as though suffering from drought.

"We anchored in a little while, and at about nine o'clock, Captain Jefferson wanted to know if I would like to land with him. I am of an inquisitive disposition, so I accepted his invitation, and we went skipping over the smooth water in a White Hall boat, looking down at the coral reef below us. The schooner and one or two other crafts lay in the offing swinging at their cables and on shore we observed innumerable negroes passing back and forth.

"We landed on the white sand beach and were lifted out of our boat and carried over the intervening strip of water to dry land by negroes, It was intensely hot, and the glare was fearful. The town consists of a row of houses and cottages facing the sea, behind them the hovels of the negroes.

"The islands are a British possession but most of the white inhabitants are Americans. We went directly to the Consulate, and the Consul offered to go round among the salt pans with me in the afternoon and show me how the salt was made. In the meantime I went up and sat in the veranda with Mrs. H—— his wife, who was very kind. We had dinner about two, turtle soup, roast [illegible] bananas and mangoes. Everything on the table salt, as that made on the islands is coarse.

"After dinner Mr. H—— and I started to visit the saltworks. The pans are of all sizes and shapes, from the dimensions of an ordinary room up to quite large ponds. The water in them is about a foot deep, when first let in, but it has already been exposed to the burning sun for some days in a large reservoir, into which it is received directly from the sea, so that when it flows into the pans it is already very brine. It has to stay only a few days in the pans so powerful is the sun, before it is evaporated and the salt left. when this is raked up lovely shades of a red and pink are to be seen, made during the evaporation.

"When a vessel arrives, the person to whom she is consigned has his saltboats filled and ready to put off as soon as she anchors. The anchorage is at the west side of the island, so, as the trade wind predominates there, the saltboats are able to sail off to the ship. The water too is very smooth as the land breaks the force of the winds, so that they can load the boats very deep.

"The unloading of the boats is very interesting. There are usually three unloading at once—at the main, booby and forward hatches. While the vessel is high out of the water there are platforms hung half way down her side, and two negroes get on each, two remain in the boat, two stand in the bulwarks and two at the hatch. Those in the boat catch up two bag and toss them to the men on the platforms, who turn round and fling them to those at the bulwarks, who pull a little string which unites the bag, and toss it to those at the hatch who empty its contents down the hold.

"The rapidity with which this is done is astonishing When the boats are unloaded, the wind then being contrary, the negroes have to row back to the shore.

"We staid there three days and then set sail for Boston, arriving in thirteen days."

"Why were they called Turk's Island?" asked Mrs. Ridgeby.

"The only plant which flourishes on them is a round cactus, which when in blossom is supposed to look like a Turk's head with a turban on, hence the name."

"Now Miss Carter, you must tell us about Timerine some day," said the deacon.

"I will," she replied, and if she does I'll tell the "Young Folks" what she says.—Young Folks.

A Mutual Mistake.

Adolphus Spinnet is a young man, but he has travelled, and unhesitatingly asserts that he has cut his eyeteeth. He is a man with an immense amount of self-esteem, and it hurts him fearfully to be made the butt of a joke, or to get the heavy end of a repartee. Not long since Adolphus was upon the Fall River steamer, bound for Boston, and while in the cabin he missed his silver mounted cigar case. Near him sat a man habited in the garb of the sea—a brown-faced, weather-beaten man—and him he accused of having stolen his missing property, as he had sat nearest to him; and had once touched his elbow. The sea-faring man shook his head, and modestly denied the soft impeachment. Adolphus persisted in the accusation, and was so loud in his complaints that he got quite a crowd around him. By and by after a more careful search, he found the cigar case in the pocket of his own duster, which he had thrown across the back of his seat, and he turned to the man of the sea and offered an apology for the unintentional insult.

"It was all a mistake, I assure you, —a mistake, 'pon my word."

"Don't trouble yourself," replied the sailor, with a nod and a smile—a smile, however, in which there was a great deal of contempt. "The mistake was mutual. You mistook me for a thief, while I had mistaken you for a gentleman."

Shotly afterward a friend, searching for Adolphus found him alone in his state-room, locked in.

A Circus Story.

The following rich story, as related by an Indiana paper, at the expense of a queer genius who vibrated between Elkhart and Peru, as advance agent of a concert troupe, and who, though pretty clever at selling the seriously inclined, does not always come off first best;

Frank Ball, travelling in a vehicle bearing a strong resemblance to a pedlar's cart. Old lady rushes out from a house by the roadside. The following colloquy ensues:

Old Lady—"Say, what have you got to sell?"

Ball—"I am a travelling agent madame, for the greatest menagerie of ancient or modern times, which is shortly to be exhibited in this section, affording to the inhabitants thereof an opportunity of viewing the most stupendous collection of animals ever before exhibited."

Old Lady—"You don't say. Have you any elephants?"

Ball—"We have, madame, six elephants, but these constitute a comparatively unimportant part of the show. We have living specimens of bipeds and quadrupeds, who roamed over the earth, not only in the antediluvian, but also in the pleocene and postmiocene periods, embracing the megatherium, with six legs and two tails; the ichthyosaurous, with four eyes, two noses and four tails; the gyasticue, with no eyes, two noses and four tails; the plesiosaurus, resembling Satan in shape, which spits fire and breathes sulphur, and many other species too numerous to mention. We also have a very pious lawyer."

Old Lady—"Well, I declare."

Ball—"But, madame, the greatest curiosity, by far, of our exhibition is a learned and classically educated monkey who was brought by a Mahommedan priest from the mysterious region of the Grert Desert of Sahara. This monkey talks with great fluency all the modern languages, besides Latin, Greek, and Hebrew. He can repeat the ten commandments, the emancipaton proclamation, President Lincoln's last message, and performs the most intricate examples in mathematics with rapidity, and ease, and actually repeated a speech of the President's. This monkey corres- [illegible] herhead from the window and calls out:

"Mother! Mother! Ask him why they let the monkey travel so far ahead of the other animals?"

A Judge Fined by himself for Drunkenness.

There is a Justice of the Peace in Otsego a County, in this State, who is held in such exaggerated esteem by his fellow-citizens that they claim that his equal for honesty, integrity, and judicial decorum cannot be found anywhere in the Union.

And yet this estimable man got drunk. Politics and whiskey were his bane for a whole afternoon and evening.

With the dawn of morning and sober reason, came shame and remorse. He had sullied his good name. He had set a pernicious example. His friends could no longer brag on his decorum.

Happily the Otsego Justice was equal to the rehabilitation of of his social and judicial status. He went to his court room solemnly opened the court at the usual hour, and called his own name as defendant in a case in which "the people" charge him with committing an offence against the law.

The stern old justice then entered upon the trial of himself, in which he acted as judge, prisoner and witness. The trial was signalized by its solemnity and impartiality. The prisoner was found guilty and ordered "to stand upon his feet and receive the sentence of the law." The sentence of the law was that he should pay ten dollars fine, and the costs of the prosecution. The court was then adjourned, and the judge hunted up the poor-master of the town, paid him the the ten dollar fine, and settled the costs with himself, and was more believed in than ever by his admiring fellow-citizens.

Attachment to Newspapers.

The strong attatchment of subscribers to well-conducted newspapers is fully confirmed by publishers. 'Stop my paper,' words of dread to beginners in business, lose their terror after a paper has been established a term of years. So long as a paper pursues a just, honrable, and judicious course, meeting the wants of its customers in all respects, the ties of friendship between the subscribers are as hard to break by an outside third party as the links that bind old friends in business or social life. Occasionally defects and errors in newspapers are overlooked by those who have become attatched to it through a period of years. They sometimes become dissatisfied with it on account of something which had slipped into its columns, and may stop taking it: but the absence of the familiar sheet at their homes or office for a few weeks, becomes an insupportable deprivation. and they hasten to take it again, and possibly apologize for having it stopped. This we may believe to be the common experience in the history of all established papers. No friendship on earth is more constant than that contracted by the reader for a journal that makes an honest and earnest effort to merit his support. Hence the newspaper conscientiously conducted becomes a favorite in the family.

Go to Sleep.

Many children, instead of being as plump and as fresh as a peach, are as wringled as last year's apples, because they do not sleep enough. Some physicians say the bones grow during sleep. This we cannot say, certainly; but we do know that those little folks who sit up late nights are usually nervous, weak, small, and sickly. The reason you need more sleep than your parents is, because you have to grow and they do not. They can use up the food they eat in thinking, talking, and walking, while you should save some of yours for growing. You ought to sleep a great deal; if you do not, you will in activity consume all you eat, and have none or not enough, to grow with. Very few clever children excel, or even equal other people when they grow up. Why is this? Because their heads, if not their bodies, are kept two busy; so that they cannot sleep, rest, and grow strong in body and brain. Now, when your mother says it is time to go to bed, do not annoy her by begging to sit up "just a little longer." But hasten off to your chamber, remembering that you have a great deal of sleeping and growing to do to make you a healthy, happy, useful man or woman.

PROSPECTUS OF THE MONTREAL WITNESS, 1873.

The progress of the WITNESS during the year now closing has been good. The Daily showing 500 less in circulation than last year, owing to the close of the war, circulates, nevertheless, 10,500 copies, being many more than all the other English dailies in Montreal put together. It proves its strong position by the daily publication of figures—a thing done by no other paper. The diminution is more apparent than real. During the war excitement two or three copies of the paper would find their way into one house where only one does now. The paper has probably a larger constituency than ever. The former Semi-Weekly has become a Tri-Weekly, and has increased in circulation from 3,000 to 3,600. The Weekly, also enlarged on the first of January by about 50 per cent., has, advanced from 7,000 circulation to 9,000, being a total circulation of all editions of the WITNESS of about 23,000.

So noteworthy an increase as we have made in the amount of reading furnished, at a time when other papers have instead been increasing their prices, must, however, it is thought, produce a much greater increase of subscribers than has yet taken place. Now is the time for these improvements to tell. Those who have enjoyed for a year back the unexpected increase in value received will surely aid now in securing that extension of circulation which can alone indemnify us for the increased cost. Owing to our cheap rates we have never been able to afford margins to canvassers. Our dependence, under God, is on the good-will and active aid of those readers who are attached to the principles which the WITNESS advocates. We ask for more than ordinary effort this year that the paper may be enabled to meet without loss a very rapid rise not only in the price of printing paper but in all other expenses.

THE RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION

(payable in advance) are as hitherto:—

Daily Witness	$3.00 per an
Tri-Weekly	2.00 "
Weekly	1.00 "

The DAILY WITNESS is also obtainable from newsmen in almost all towns and villages at 6c. per week, thus saving postage. The Weekly may be had through dealers as cheap as through the Post Office. The Tri-Weekly is half price, $1.00, to ministers.

ADVERTISING

In each edition is charged at 10 cents per line first insertion and 5 cents for each continuance. Special rates for annual contracts according to position in paper.

These rates, both of subscription and advertising, are, probably, as low as can be found anywhere in proportion to value.

The WITNESS is independent in politics and evangelical in religion, it is the workingman's paper, the merchant's paper, the farmer's paper, the minister's paper, the ladies' paper, the children's paper, the temperance man's paper, the Christian's paper. Wherever it goes there is a marked effect for good produced on families and on society. Will not, therefore, all Christians and philanthropists aid its circulation?

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Saturday morning about 10 o'clock, Mucius V. Clementi, son of the Rev. V. Clementi, and lately station master here, died suddenly. He was on his way from his dwelling to town, when opposite Carr's Pump Factory he fell on the sidewalk and being seen was carried into the factory and almost instantly expired. Dr. Kincaid was sent for, but before he arrived the spirit had fled.

The committee of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for October and November:—Mrs. Wallis, piece of veal; from Aylmer street Mission S. School, a quantity of cakes, apples, sugar, etc; Mrs. James Reid, yarn for childrens socks; Mr. Green quantity of bread; Mr. White, a quarter of mutton and piece of beef; Mrs. Hoyland, quarter of venison; Miss Roger, piece of bacon; a Friend, a quantity of turnips, carrots, beets, cabbage, apples and milk. Quebec and Ontario R. R.

Sir Hugh Allan and Hon. Mr. Abbott of Montreal will address the people of this County and Town, in the Court House, on Tuesday the 17th instant, at 2 o'clock p.m. A large gathering is expected, as the object of the meeting is to discuss the probabilities of building the Ontario and Quebec Railway.

of aiding this road and both Town and County will unite in the enterprise we feel assured.

We do not yet know what certainty there is of the road being built, nor is it prudent to give currency to rumors that may be without foundation.

Let us hope that Sir Hugh Allan, the promoter of the scheme will have the whole matter fully matured and a feasible scheme to offer to the people. The great drawback to all railway enterprise at first is the prevailing idea that railway men are not honest: That that they are too ready and willing to sell themselves to the best bidder, and forget their former promises and plans. The name of Sir Hugh Allan offers a reasonable guarantee against double dealing in this way, if once fully committed to the enterprise. We only refer to this matter to prevent being too much elated over future not too certain prospects. In the meantime, all interested in the promotion of the road should make it a point to hear Sir Hugh on Wednesday

There are no two opinions in regard to the advantage such an enterprise would confer on Peterboro, both town and country, and it would be well to do all we can to ensure it. If the Quebec and Ontario road should be built, the Grand Junction would no doubt join it somewhere in the county of Hastings, and in all probability would not come to this town, That would be a matter, however, for the Company to consider, and it is for the people to consider what would be for their own interest, and to act with reasonable caution.

By all means hear what is to be said in favor of this road, and let us hope that it will be dealt with on its merits, and not in the way in which the Grand Junction was believed to secure popular favor.

Apt Scholars.

During the progress of the Construction of the Ottawa Public Building, it was generally received that several members of the Legislative Assembly were directly interested in the contracts, and that they received their per centage regularly. Mr. Cauchon who was and is a Member of Parliament, learned from experience and succeeded in getting the contract for providing for the unfortunate creatures of Quebec, who are insane. The contract was in the name of another, one Dr. Roy, but the profits beyond a fixed salary went to Mr. Cauchon. Mr. Joly, a member of the Opposition, has succeeded in proving from the parties themselves, that Mr. Cauchon had received large sums under the name of interest for money lent, while in reality, it should have been as Contractor, and that hence Mr. Cauchon is not eligible to sit in the House.

THE WAY MONEY IS OBTAINED TO BRIBE ELECTORS.

Mr. Joly also proved from the evidence of Dr. Roy, that Mr. Cauchon had given very large sums to the General Election Fund, by which the doctor understood a Fund to influence the Elections in the Dominion, as well as in the Province of Quebec. This is one of the ways in which funds are raised: A good fat job is given to some one, he in turn disburses freely to secure the election of the Ministers, and they if successful, in turn throw other fat contracts into the hands of those who s) help them. All well remember the way in which the public funds were scattered through this Division at the time of the Flint-Smith contest, and how certain contractors on the Ottawa buildings were tottering in their efforts and unsparing of their means to secure the Ministerial candidate—and they succeeded.

The boast, therefore, that no public funds are used for election purposes is really untrue. That public money is directly paid to influence electors is perhaps not true. But if any receive several thousand dollars more than right, with the secret understanding that these thousands will be used for election purposes, is this not using the public money to bribe electors? In the case of Mr. Cauchon of Quebec, this has been proved, in the Beauport Asylum case, and it may be safely assumed that this is not a solitary instance of the kind.

The secret service fund may not have been used directly for Election purpose, but what guarantee have the public, that persons were not used in the secret service, for the very object of securing large subscriptions to election funds. This Beauport case reveals the modus operandi of obtaining it in Mr. Cauchon's case, and no doubt the work is done in a similar manner in the Dominion.

From the above it will be seen $1.06 per $1000 more than is paid in Montreal, and $2.50 per $1000 more than is paid in Toronto, Hamilton and Quebec, on goods in First Class Buildings. But what appears very strange, is that Brantford with its water Works pays just the same as Peterboro. What inducement therefore, can there be to undertake expensive Works, involving a debt of $25,000 or $30,000, if no better rates can be secured thereby?

We have again and again been met with the argument that by erecting Water Works insurers would save in their rates more than would pay the taxes entailed thereby. If, however, the above scale of rates can be relied on, so far as Peterboro is concerned the assertion is merely ad captandum vulgus, and was and is calculated to deceive the people into voting for Water Works without the least hopes of better rates following. We do not now write against Water Works, but against using arguments not based on facts.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The Council met on Tuesday evening in special session.

Present—The Mayor, and Messrs. Paterson, Hopkins, Lundy, Helm, Stevenson Robertson, Toole, English, Hall and Edmison.

The Mayor stated that his object in calling the Council together was chiefly that he thought the Council would like to make some arrangements for the reception of of Sir Hugh Allan and others in connection with the Quebec and Ontario Railroad There were also two or three other matters of importance which he supposed they would take up.

A communication was received from J.F. Dennistoun Esq for Messrs. Patton, Moir, and Co., raking for the portion of Bonus due under By-law 705, and an opinion from W. H. Scott, Town Solicitor, in reference to the coming elections, was also read and submitted, as follows:

Peterborough, Nov. 27th, 1872.

J. EDWARDS, Esq.,
Town Clerk.

DEAR SIR.—In reply to the resolution of the Council asking to be advised as to the manner of holding the Election for the ensuing year.

I have to suggest that the Proclamation extending the Limits will go into operation on the First Monday in January, and on that day the election will have to be held. (Sub Section 4 & 5 of Section 83.) There cannot, I take it, be any previous nomination, but the nomination and polling will have to take place on the same day for both Mayor and Councillors. The nomination is itself a part of the Election, and if therefore that took place before that date the Statute would not be obeyed. Besides the nomination may be both the beginning and the end of the Election, as for instance, if there were only the required number of Candidates and in that event the election would have been held before the extension became a part of the Town.

As to who may vote at the Election, I apprehend that the true construction to be given to the Statute is that as to the Limits that are proposed to be added, the residents thereof may vote in the same way as if these limits had been a newly erected Municipality for which there had been no separate assessment roll, (see Section 77.) That is, "Every resident male inhabitant thereof, natural born, or naturalised subjects of Her Mafesty, and of the full age of 21 years, having at the time of the election sufficient property to have entitled them to vote if they had been rated therefor may vote in their appropriative wards, and at the time of so voting they must name the property in respect of which they vote.

And as to that part that is included within the present limits the voting should be in the usual manner, namely, according to the Assessment Rolls, and upon the lists to be furnished to the Returning Officers.

I think, therefore, that the Council should name the Returning Officers and the places of holding the Poll by By-law in the usual way, and that the Election should be held on the First Monday in January in the same manner as when there was no separate nomination day.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Robertson—That the following members of the Council be a deputation to act with the Sheriff and Warden of the County in giving the Ontario and Quebec Railway Deputation a suitable reception, namely, His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Smith, Edmison, Toole, and the mover. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Edmison—That the Market Clerk be requested to classify all Wood measured by him as 1st, 2nd, and 3rd qualities and mark accordingly. Carried.

After some discussion on the subject of the approaching Municipal Elections, without arriving at any definite plan, it was agreed to leave the matter over to next meeting.

The Council adjourned

The Elgin Frauds

The people of Ontario have been treated by the Tory press to all sorts of slanders of the present Reform leaders. But especially has Mr. McKellar been singled out by them as the subject of the worst calumnies. There is no need that we should refer to the Elgin frauds again, as few, if any, have believed the charges against him. Mr. McKellar, however, spoke at the Welland Nomination, and in referring to this matter, said:—

"This was, he believed, the first time time he had had an opportunity of addressing an audience since some vile slanders had been hurled at him through the press. He had been accustomed to these things during the last fifteen years, and, when his friends urged him to reply to them, he said he would not go into a paper war with his opponents; but when the time came he should speak and act, (Hear, hear.) He could not enumerate all the slanders that had been promulgated against him. He believed the "Proton Outrage" was the first The evidence in that case was printed, and would soon be published, and the electors should judge for themselves. and now he had been charged with some misconduct in connection with the Elgin Association. He had taken a deep interest with Mr. King in the organization, of people in that section of the country where he had lived. A large number of the coloured people fled from bondage in the United States and settled around Chatham. There was a strong prejudice against admitting them into the white schools. Mr. King brought over a number of slaves that he had inherited through his wife. He might have sold them for ten thousand dollars, but he liberated them, and collected some money towards their education, and some 9,000 acres of land were purchased up there. He (Mr. McKellar) took an active part in that work, and he was charged with having embezzled some of the funds raised for that purpose. Fortunately, the documents were extant to meet those charges. He was also charged with going to England, and swindling the people out of some money which they gave to Mr. King. He went home with authority, which he would produce at the proper time. The whole trouble was that Mr. King in pushing the work forward, had been unfortunate as some others were, and lost the money. He (Mr. McKeller) had none of it, and every single farthing of that money would be paid to those people who had advanced it. (Cheers.) He was also charged with having gone home with Mr. King and raised a large amount of money to assist in building schoolhouses and churches. Mr. King was sent home by the Presbyterian Churches for that purpose. He (Mr. McKeller) happened to be in the old country for a few months while he was there, and met him once or twice. He never saw any of the money, never handled any of it, and yet he was charged with having embezzled that money as well. He did not know how many outrages he was charged with. He only asked the public to suspend their judgment, and he would be acquitted from these as he had been from every other that had been made against him. (Loud cheers.)

This should be sufficent to stop those slanders, at least, until a proper time for defence, when Mr. McKeller will be ready to free himself of blame.

After a slight reference to other matters, Mr. McKellar alluded to the public acts of the present government, and also to the Dominion Act preventing Messrs. Blake and McKenzie from sitting in the Local House. He said:

He remembered speaking in his rustic innocence in Parliament on one occasion against the meeting of the House early in November, and stating, among various reasons, that it would take some representatives away from their fall ploughing. An attempt had been made to ridicule that remark; but he had never said anything of which he was prouder; and he asked them, as sensible practical men, if there was any operation to perform in any nature of greater importance than that of fall ploughing. (Cheers.) If the land were not turned over in the fall for the spring crops, there would be a loss of millions of dollars annually to these Provinces. That was his experience and his conviction, and it was the solid truth, and the gentry of whom he spoke might laugh as they liked. He intended to do all he could in the position he occupied to promote agricultural interests. (Cheers) He recollected another statement made by one of those genteel persons not a thousand miles from Woodstock. He (Mr. McKellar) had been promoted to the position of Major, not for distinguished services he had rendered, but in anticipation for something to do in the future—(laughter)—and he did not find it convenient to attend a military gathering. (Laughter.) this genteel person said he supposed Mr. McKellar was engaged hacking his way. (Laughter.) (The "genteel person" alluded to was the editor of our local Progress paper, and Mr. McKellar's friends naturally looked around for the object of the allusion; but, a "vacant chair" indicated too plainly the "floating" nature of the "town hacking" article when brought face to face with a polished opponent.—Ed.) Of course that was a miserable occupation for a gentleman, but he considered he was engaged in that work and he could hack corn still. He could do more; whenever he could get hold of the character making these statements he could hack him to. (Cheers and laughter.) He would tell them, moreover, that he (Mr. McKellar) had now got all his corn hacked and garnered in his crib, and that he (the "genteel person") would not get a mouthful of it. (Great laughter.) He then alluded to drainage, which every farmer knew was one of the most important of farming operations. The measure by which open drains had been constructed with the assistance of Government loans upon municipal debentures had proved beneficial. He did not know but it would be advantageous to make such arrangements that the people could either do the drainage under their own municipal machinery or have the Government do it for them: and he hoped before many years to see extensive improvements effected in this way. He referred to the British Parliament for this purpose, a vote of which Scotland got the greater part, and put it down into the ground with the greatest advantage. They had an idea of a scheme by which the Government could give the farmers money for twenty years at four or five per cent. to put the drains in their farms. He thought a scheme with the object would do more to develope the material prosperity of the country than almost anything else that could be effected a scheme which would prove advantageous to the farmer, and prove perfectly safe to the country. In regard to emigration, he knew how much they required agricultural labourers to cut it and it was the same in almost every of the country. They had difficulty in getting labourers to this country because there was a keen competition going on in Great Britain on the part of the United States, Australia, and New Zealand. These countries were offering great inducements, and Ontario also had to offer inducements. Last year they had inaugurated a scheme for helping people in England to come here by giving $6 to every statute adult, and the results had been very satisfactory. They had in this way paid $15,000 out of the $50,000 alloted to the purpose. This year they were attempting a more complete system, by sending home agents with special instructions to choose skilled agricultural labourers, and to attract emigration from the rural sections in the proportion of 75 per cent. to 25 per cent from the cities and towns, and each statute adult who remained would receive $6. He also explained that it was intended to provide that by depositing $21 with the Government, to pay the passage of an emigrant, any person could secure the kind of labour he wanted. He described the operations of the Ottawa District Emigration Society, where farmers and others who wanted labourers contributed to a fund and sent home and collected emigrants of the class required. The society only lost about $300, and that was made up three or four times by the bonus given by the Government to those who remained. He thought that was an admirable scheme, worthy of the consideration of the people of this country. By adopting a transcript of the system a large number of emigrants of the required class could be brought out just where wanted. In conclusion, he thought it was a great source of satisfaction, that after some fifteen or twenty years' hard fighting the Reformers, though stigmatised by every name that was odious, had by adhering firmly to their principles secured Confederation, and the right to the people of Ontario of controlling their own local affairs, and the result of that independence to-day was that instead of having an empty exchequer, or worse still, a deficit of several millions of dollars, as was the case during the five years immediately prior to Confederation. Ontario stood before the world with her energy and enterprise and her five millions of surplus to be dealt out amongst the people. (Cheers.) Although the Reform party had long been in the cold shades of Opposition, and had neither power nor patronage, still they had sound and correct principles, which had in time prevailed—(cheers)—and to-day they could meet their friends or opponents and could say that they had done that which was right, and every one would admit this. (Cheers.) He could only refer to the gratification it was to him to see the unanimity with which they had come forward to elect Mr. Mowat: and he could say without flattory that Mr. Mowat's appointment met with more universal approval and satisfaction in Ontario than, perhaps any other man that could possibly have been put in his place. It was with the deepest regret that they had to part with their noble friends, (Mr Blake and Mr. Mackenzie), but they left a smaller Parliament to stand at the head of the Parliament of the Dominion, and this he believed would take place before the first of March next. (Cheers.)

AN INTERESTING piece of gossip current in financial circles in Montreal is that Mr. King, is "playing sharp" with Sir Hugh Allan, in the matter of the new bank issues. It is know that the directors of the Merchants Bank have extended the time for subscriptions to their new of $3,000,000 until the middle of January, owing to the tightness existing in September and October when the stock should have been taken up. Once this extension of time was announced the the Bank of Montreal came into market with $4,000,000 to be taken up at once. And the story is that in order to facilitate the operations this bank will give abundant borrowing facilities at low rates for a couple months to come; then, when the stock of of the Merchants is to be taken, the screws will be put on money tightened so as to embrace the expanding operations of the latter Bank as much as possible. These representations may or may not be correct; it is [illegible] to presume that great bankers [illegible] jealousies and rivalries as [illegible] in humbler walks, and [illegible]

Advertising.

The object in advertising is to increase business. An advertisement properly inserted in a newspaper is more effectual than any other method, because it is read when the reader is in a mood for it. No one will take the time to read an advertisement unless she has a passive inclination to do so. The great advantage of a newspaper advertisement is shown in this manner. In printed advertising, all transient methods, as circulars and the like are thrust upon us unsought—scarcely glanced at—flung into the waste basket and wholly forgotten. At some subsequent time, [illegible] of the article the circular represented, but we cannot recall the merits, terms, or address. Naturally we seek the newspaper and then is the specific time the advertisement that regularly appears in the newspaper wins. —Union Advocate, Atchison, Texas.

MANUFACTURING.

To those who have to them shall be given. Oshawa is already noted for its manufactories; we have eight important establishments now, and prospects for two or three more. A Tobacco factory, a Stove foundry and another malleable iron works are talked of. The right men have the matter in hand, and no doubt will bring things to a satisfactory termination. Success to them, we say. The present malleable works are progressing very favorably, and are being completed as quickly as possible. The boiler will be put in the first of next week, and operations will be begun at once. The foreman —a man who thoroughly understands the business, and several moulders, are in town waiting to begin work. The company are proceeding very cautiously, and have no doubts as to the success of the enterprise. The property, including buildings, etc., are said to be equal to any of the kind in the United States. We wish the company the success which it deserves.

The Hat Factory is progressing slowly but surely. Considerable trouble has been experienced in the erection of the building, but it is now nearly completed, and work will soon be commenced in it.

The Organ and Melodian factory is prospering beyond expectations. The instruments turned out have gained for the company a good name, and orders are being received faster than they can possibly be filled. We believe it is the intention of the company to erect larger and more commodius buildings in the spring.

Oshawa has to depend on its factories, and every man in the place should do all in his power to encourage them.—Reformer.

COUNTERFEIT BANK NOTES.—Mr. John Carvers, Manager Royal Canadian Bank, Galt, informs us that there are in circulation in South Dumfries some rather dangerous counterfeits. The note altered is the old Province of Canada $1 bill, and the alteration consists in the bill being altered from the original to a $10. The work is very clumsily done, the $1 in the corner being retained, and added thereto is a cipher, while the word "one" in the center of the bill is erased, and inserted in its place is the word "ten." No other part of the bill is altered, and a very slight examination of ten dollar notes will quickly discover the counterfeit. Let parties be on their guard.—"Galt Reporter."

California Letter

Anaheim Los Angles Co., Cal,
Nov. 27th 1872.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR—When I last wrote it was my intention to write next, on the Town of Anaheim. I think now, however, that I had better wave the description of the town for a little and give your readers a short description of the valley in which we live. Taking a map of the United States in view and glancing at the Pacific Ocean where it washes this State, away to the south of the Golden Gate some 500 miles you will notice a bay marked San Pedro. This is at present the outer harbour of Wilmington, the sea port of Los Angles County, and the counties further to the east. The steamships anchor in the outer harbour and transfer their cargoes to scows which are towed to Wilmington by a small steamer. There are no harbours except Sandiego, south, where steamers or large vessels can run up to the dock; and none between Wilmington and San Francisco, only small vessels can cross the bar. At Wilmington the Federal Government are now at work constructing a break-water there, and otherwise improving the channel, so that vessels of a large class can discharge on the dock. The lighterage charges form one half the cost of freight from there to San Francisco. Than about ten miles further south stands Anaheim Landing, a landing established by the settlers of the town, Commodious store houses are built here and another Lighter to convey grain and freight from the vessels ashore. The charge on produce from here to San Francisco this year is $3 the ton by steamboat, $1.25 literage by sailing vessels. The is all handled on this coast in linen sacks which will hold from 160 to 120 lbs of wheat and about the same of corn. The sacks are chiefly from Scotland. When filled by the farmer they are sewed up and sold and weighed with the grain and this forms no inconsiderable item in a large crop, as they cost in the neighborhood of twenty cents each.

Now turning to other objects, from the shore some twenty miles seaward we see the Catalina Islands riding on the bosom of the ocean. These islands appear to be

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with its dangerous ingredients. A remedy at hand for the many aches and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. It saves easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are Chilblains, Blood-boils, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Specific Burns, Fever Sores, Felons, Pimples, Erysipelas, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Dandruff, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Swollen Breasts, Itch, Scald Head, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the side gently, once or twice a day. Cures deafness by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples this acts like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning grey, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.
Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to let me take your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get sleep without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I see it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proud flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and sold by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY
Job Moses' Periodical Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

These Pills should not be taken by Females during the FIRST THREE MONTHS of Pregnancy, as they are sure to bring on Miscarriage, but at any other time they are safe.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Ayaerics, and Whites, the Pills will effect a cure when all other means have failed; and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel, antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved

JOB MOSES', NEW YORK, SOLE PROPRIETOR

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN-DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier, alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Pimples or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatism and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only thenty-five cents per bottle.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN AN INVALID for years with some Chronic Wasting Disease of the Lungs, Heart, Liver, or Kidneys, you need not flatter yourself that medicine is going to cure you immediately. Repair goes on slowly, and time is necessary to build up a broken-down constitution. Do not take every nostrum you read about, nor follow the advice of every friend who has a specific to offer you. Procure a remedy scientifically prepared that is the result of experience, that has a large amount of evidence of sensible people in favor of its reliability, and persevere in its use until the whole system undergoes a radical improvement and health is restored. DR. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALASAYA, a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, will meet your most sanguine expectations, as it combines everything necessary to perfect digestion, Nutrition, and the formation of healthy Blood, and to vitalize all the organs and tissues of the body. Sold at $1.00 per bottle.

THE FIELD LADY.

BY CARL SPENCER.

She is an Indian Princess,
Hi! to the manor born,
All ye that love a lady,
Come, bow you down to Corn.
Oh, thank her when you see her,
For she it is that spend
Her table in the wilderness,
Whence half the world is fed.

She is an Indian Princess,
Whence hath she such a grace?
Are these the native manners
That grow in royal place?
She blesses us with her courtesies,
So gracious and profound,
He stately bows, her waving plumes,
Her robes that trail the ground.

To her the subtle secrets
Of all the tribes are borne—
Hush whisperings, such talkings
Ran through a field of corn!
Oh, listen as you pass her,
Be quick to sigh or laugh,
For you might sing your life long,
If she would tell you half.

She is an Indian Princess,
The West Wind is her brave,
The Sun's her loving monarch,
The South Wind is her slave.
He creeps along the grasses,
They rustle at her feet,
She droops her dainty tassels—
In play she is so sweet.

Of all the powers have brought her
She makes a golden sheaf,
With precious silken folding,
And many a shining leaf,
And holds it up, proclaiming,
"I have a gift of peace!"
Now pledge her as you take it—
"A thousand years increase!"

ODDS AND ENDS.

A gentleman in company with Foote took up a newspaper, saying he wanted to see "what the ministry is about." Foote with a smile, replied, "Look among the robberies."

One of Hartford's popular drygoods merchants was asked the other day how he spent his evenings. His reply was, "At night I store my mind, and during the day I mind my store." He was alive at last accounts.

"Is Pat Flannigen on board this ship?" roared Nelson, during a lull in the firing at the battle of the Nile.—"I'm here, my Lord," said Erin's son, showing himself on deck. "Then," said the gallant Nelson, looking satisfied, "let the battle proceed. That story is Pat's.

A young lady who is studying French lately wrote to her parents that she was "invited out to a dejuner the day before, and was going to a fete champetre the next day." The professor of the college was surprised to receive a dispatch from the "old man" a day or two after, saying, "If you can't keep my daughter away from these blasted sideshows and menageries, I will come down see what ails her."

A modern girl living near Louisville has a city beau. When he rides out to see her on a warm afternoon, she calls the "old man" from the field and makes him keep the flies off her fellow's horse.

Success in any calling must be earned. To escape toil is too often the supreme wish, and the false notion obtains that there are pursuits which yield honor and profits without labor. This is often the fatal error with young men. They should enter upon life with the conviction rooted and grounded in them that there is no excellence without application. If they have not made up thier minds to work, they are wholly unprepared for any course of honest and useful living. Whatever men may gain by stealing, by speculating, by sacrificing honor and conscience, to accomplish any thing legitimately they must agonize. A determination to shirk hard work, to be suddenly rich, and to find an easy road to fortune, will prove a snare and a delusion. With these few plain principles to start with, the question, What to do? is greatly simplified. With religion as the basis of all, with the careful study of their own aptitudes and the fields of enterprise around them, and with minds made up to work for the prizes of honor, fortune, and usefulness, young men are not likely to miss the path for which they were providentially designed. We say to them, go to work at once. Take hold of something and do not wait for opportunities. These will open more certainly and favorably to the busy than to idle.

And start yourselves. Thousands are lounging about, pleading the want of means to begin, and perhaps there is nothing for them to do. Young men should begin by helping themselves. With health, strong hands, and a clear brain, they should feel equal to the duty of taking care of themselves, and of beginning life without asking favors of any. Energy, industry, and health are enough, and when to these are added the advantages of education, it is a shame to require more. Nothing to do too often means that they cannot begin at the top rather than at the bottom of the hill, and there is nothing for gloved hands and idle brains. There is always work of some sort for everybody, and work which will pay, if properly taken hold of. Life is no lottery. Its prizes are not subject to a fortuitous distribution, but men generally get what they earn, and reap what they sow. An inert gentility is the bane of many yong men, an idleness constrained by the pride of position, which keeps them back from independent and manly exertion. These false and unworthy notions must yield to better conviction that there is nothing meaner than idle dependence. Manual labor the severest of handicraft, the hardest drudgery which yields the wages of industry, are honorable and glorious in comparison.

Romance of the Rothschild.

A London letter to the World says: The very uppermost circles of society here are agitated by the report of the imminence of a very unusual and startling event. A daughter of the Rothschilds is about to married to a poor man—and this poor man is a Christian! The yound lady who is thus about to break with the traditions of her family and disregard the teachings of her religion is the daughter of Sir Anthony Rothschild, and the man upon whom she is resolved to bestow her fortune and her heart is the Hon. Mr. Yorke, a son of the Earl of Hardwicke. I hasten to nip in the bud the sympathy with which this news may be received by members of the society for the propagation of the gospel among the Jews by adding that Miss. Rothschild is not "converted," and that she is not going to embrace Christianity nor to renounce her own religion. She will remain a Jewess, and her husband will be, at least nominally a Christian. The disapproval with which the aged and excellent baronet, her father, regarded the match is said to be increased by his failure to discover in his prospective beaufils any qualities either of head or heart which could justify or even excuse what he regards as his daughter's infatuation; but then it must be remembered that he is not in love with Mr. Yorke, and his daughter is, and this makes all the difference in the world. The Rothschilds have long formed a sort of a royal family of their own—intermarrying only with their cousins—and it is said that every possible means of persuasion have been brought to bear in vain upon this young lady to induce her to abandon her resolve. The reluctant consent of her father, or rather of the withholding of his positive prohibition of the marriage, has at last been obtained, and the marriage, it is said, will soon be celebrated.

Royal Marriage Expected.

Private advices from England mention the proposed marriage of the Princess Beatrice with the Marquis of Stafford, eldest son of the Duke of Sutherland, whose mother was the Queen's earliest friend. The young princess was violently opposed to her sister's marriage with Lord Lorne. The said marriage has not, so far, justified the Queen's assertion that it was "the best thing she had done in the whole course of her reign." It has grown very unpopular, owing to the high and mighty bearing of the Princess Louise, who, instead of descending gracefully to the level of her husband, brings up the royal etiquette in her own person, and issues her invitations like the Queen. "Chaplain Campbell is commanded by her Royal Highness the Princess Louise to invite——to dinner," etc. The Princess Beatrice is shut out from the one Protestant nearest of royal husbands by her hatred of the Germans. During the late war her sister, the Crown Princess of Prussia, wrote to ask what she would like for a birthday present. Beatrice replied, "Send me Bismarck's head in a charger."

Good for one Pound.

It is said that in a dockyard in England, a ship of several thousand tons was once built, a great multitude had assembled to see the launching. The wedges were knocked away, but the immense mass remained motionless.

Before a feeling of disappointment began to manifest itself, a little boy ran forward and commenced pushing vigorously against the side of the vessel. His efforts excited the ridicule of the spectators, but he turned indignantly towards them, saying: "I can push a pound!" and continued his exertions. They were all that was needed to overcome the friction; and soon the huge ship yielded to his pressure, gracefully gliding into the waves.

So many a great and noble cause stands motionless, when perhaps the efforts of a child, would have overcome the obstacles that hinder its progress. A single grain will turn a nicely balanced scale. A single word or action a glance of the eye, may be fraught with inestimable consequence. We cannot be judges of the amount of our influence. We know not how much it accomplishes. We cannot be aware through what a wide circle it may spread.

THE LOST SOUL.

BY J. THOMPSON

'Twas even, and the sun had long
Retired behind the west,
When after prayer, and holy song,
I laid me down to rest.
My mind had been engaged all day,
Reflecting on the fate
Of sinners who are called away
In an unholy state.
In thoughts and visions on my bed,
I saw the gates of hell,
And thither was a being led.
Methought, I knew full well.
An angel had conveyed him there
Commissioned from on high.
So mild his countenance and so fair,
I ventured to draw nigh,
The being that in charge he had,
Far other sights displayed,
His pallid cheek with color fled
His inmost soul betrayed.
Upon the ground he fixed his eye,
His wasted form seemed beat,
He sighed and uttering plaintive cries—
Thus to his grief gave vent:—
"Cursed be the day on which 'twas said,
A child of man is born,
But oh, on me the curse be laid,
Why did I mercy scorn.
I heard of mercy—yes I heard,
But oh, I heard in vain,
Sin and destruction, I preferred
To everlasting gain.
Oh, wretched being that I am,
Why did I shut my eyes,
Why did I scorn a saviour's hand,
And shun a mother's sighs?
Oh, that I could to earth return
My life to live again,
But oh, too late it is to mourn,
Repentance is in vain,
In vain poor soul, forever thou art lost,
Forever thou must grieve,
In floods of fire and tempest lost
Forever thou must live,
My doom is fixed, the die is cast,
For closed is mercy's door.
Mercy is gone, poor soul thou'rt lost,
Sweet mercy thou'lt ne'er see more."
He paused, when thus the angel spoke:
I can no longer wait,
My Lord's command I must not break,
Press on towards the gate,
I dare not stay beyond the time
Appointed by my God,
For time is His, it is not mine
I tremble at his word,
O stay, he cried, one moment stay
It's all my soul would ask,
A moment's respite given, I pray,
Before thou end'st thy task,
And tell me, blessed spirit tell,
Canst thou no comfort give;
Is there no way to shun this hell,
May I repent and live?
Poor soul, he said, thy dreadful state
Cannot be altered now,
For here repentance comes too late,
Here justice bears no vow,
Look up and see at God's right hand,
The Lamb that died for thee.
He upward looked, and thus replied:
This seals my misery.
I know He died, I know He bled
To save my soul from hell,
But I to Jesus never fled,
This truth with same I tell.
Then condemnation is thy due,
The angel straight replied,
For when He mercy offered you
You basely turned aside.
While thus they talk'd mid grief and love,
A Seraphim drew nigh,
Your presence is required above—
Delay not, quickly fly,
I now must go, the angel said
Before the throne of God,
But by this angel you'll be led,
With that they onward trod.
And now before the gates they stood,
While thus the angel spoke:
Ye portals of the fiery flood,
Your ponderous gates now open,
Expand your gates, a soul receive,
In justice doomed to die,
Receive a soul, not fit to live,
In hell condemned to lie.
And now upon the brink of hell,
Poor soul he trembling stood,
And heard the bitter sigh and wail
Of those within the flood.
The smoke in awful volumes rise,
And flames burst from the gate,
The unhappy wretch would fain go back
But ah, it was too late.
Come on, the angel said, come on,
And enter on your state
For help he cried with cheek all wan,
But ah, it was late!
Upward he gave one last sad look,
Towards the realms of bliss,
His falling tears like volumes spoke
Their meaning none could miss.
Farewell thou blest abodes of joy,
Thou Lamb of God farewell,
That Thou for me should'st e'er have died
It's torment more than hell.
Mother farewell, no more thou'lt see,
The child thou lov'ed'st so well,
Blest parents think no more of me,
I am not worth your care.
Turo' flames and smoke he wing'd his way
And sank to rise no more,
While swiftly o'er such horrid prey,
Hell closed its outer door.
The angel filled with grief returned—
His awful task complete—
And to the abode of God flew up,
Some fresh command to meet.

"It's forty years, my old friend John since we were boys together." "Is it? Well, don't speak so loud; there's that young widow in the next room!"

"Ain't it wicked to rob dis here roost, Jim?" "Dat's a great moral question, Gumbo; we ain't got time to argue it now—hand down another pullet."

A man in Pittsburgh, Pa., who committed suicide, is advertized for indentification as follows:—"Deceased has a moustache, five feet seven inches long."

Keep sober and then you can talk straight. One of our druggists was quite surprised the other day to hear a fellow inquire if he had any of "Mrs. Soothlow's Winsling Slyr'p."

The following announcement appeared recently in an English paper: "St. James' Church—On Sunday next the afternoon service will commence at half past three, and continue until further notice."

THE ROBBIN.—The robbing has a red breat. They have a plaintiff song, and sings as though they was very sorry for something. They are natifs of the Northern States, but they go South in winter. They get their name for their grate ability for robin a cherry tree. They kan also rob a currant bush fust rate, and are smart on a gooseberry If a robin kant find anything else tew eat, they aint too fastidious to eat a ripe strawberry. They build their nest out of mud and straw, and lay four eggs that are speckled. Four young robins in a nest, that are just hatched out, and still on the half shell, are always as ready for dinner as a nusmboy is. If somebody goes near their nest, their mouths all fly open at once, so that you kan see clear down to their palates. If it wasn't for the birds, I suppose, of course, we should all be eat up by katterpillars and mair, but I have thought it wudn't be something more than human policeman for the robins tew let us have now and then just one of our own cherries tew see how they taste.—Josh.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientefic physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small portions which they may contain.

PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

The undersigned have entered into a co-partnership under the firm name of

MASON & BRADBURN

TO CONDUCT THE

Dry Goods & Grocery Business, heretofore carried on by THOMAS BRADBURN, at the Town of Peterborough.

W. J. MASON.
T. EVANS BRADBURN.

With reference to the above I would take this opportunity of returning to my many old customers my grateful thanks for their liberal patronage extended to me during the last Twenty-three years. I beg to commend my successors in business, Mr. W. J. Mason, so long and favorably known as my assistant, and my son, T. Evans Bradburn; as it will be their aim to supply the best goods the market will afford. I can confidently bespeak for them a continuance of the extensive patronage I have so long had the honor of enjoying.

THOMAS BRADBURN.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION

and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well-known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY does not dry up a Cough, and leave the causes behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

Beware of Counterfeits.

Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

One Dollar a Bottle. Six Bottles for Five Dollars.

PREPARED BY

SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass.,

And sold by Druggists and Dealers generally.

[illegible] BIG PILL PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or negligence of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence in often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels decidedly well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

"KING BABY."

His sceptre is a rattle,
His throne is a sister's arms,
He smiles a tiny tyrant,
In all his dimpled charms!
Yet round the royal presence
Our loving hearts entwine,
Detractors of the cradle
Are high by right divine.

Whatever be his mandates,
No courtiers dare rebel,
His mother's chief of the household,
Prime minister as well.
In you potentate's nature,
His downy ear of state,
Feasting, rosy monarch,
What triumps on him wait.

In purple, ease, and splendor,
Long, long he seeks to reign,
All hints of note disjointed
He smiles at with disdain.
Alas! that royal greatness
Should crush be discovered,
Here comes a tiny stranger—
King Baby to dethroned.

John Cutt's Secret.

"Is Mr. Cutts in?" asked a gentleman, who having knocked at the door, was saluted by a woman with, "Well, what's wantin' now?"

"Yes, he's in or about somewhere. I suppose," she replied: "but I'm Mr. Cutts when any business is to be done. He's Mr. Cutts eatin' and drinkin'; sleepin' sometimes."

"Well, my good woman," said the gentleman, "I think he will be Mr. Cutts for my business too. I wish to see him."

"What do you want of him?" asked the shrew, thrusting her head still further out of the window.

"To do something for me. But I must see him myself," was the reply.

"Is it real business, for pay, or only a favor you want, I can let your hoss have a peck of oats, or I can direct you to the shortest road to the Four Corners, or I can—I can—why I can do anything for you that he could, and a good deal more. I take the money and write the receipts, and pay the men, and I take off the produce. I am as good a judger of stock as he is, and I can't be beat on horse flesh."

"But," said the gentleman, drawing down his face solemnly, "you cannot take his place now. Find him out for me at once."

The shrew was baffled.

"Look-a-here, mister, maybe you don't know the circumstances of the case. This here farm is mine, and it was my father's afore me, and Cutts, he hain't no more claim to it than there hen down there has. And besides I'm seven years older than he is, a foot higher and weigh twenty pounds more. What's your business on my place, if I may be so bold?"

"To see and talk with your husband," replied the gentleman, getting out of his chaise and hitching his horse to a post, as if he meant to stay until he did see him.

"Be you a doctor? 'Cause there ain't a living thing the matter with Cutts. He's the wellest man in the town, and so be I," said this woman for the times."

"No, my good woman, I'm not a doctor. Do you think your husband will be in soon? Send that boy to find him," said the stranger.

The boy looked up in his mother's face—but he knew his own interest too well to start without orders.

"Then you're a minister, I suppose, by your black clothes. I may as well tell you and save your time, that we don't go to meeting, and don't want to. It ain't no use for you to leave no tracts for nothing—for I've got a big dairy and ain't no time to idle away readin', and I keep him about so early and late that when he's done work he's glad to go to bed and rest."

"I'm no minister, madam, I wish I was though for your sake," said the gentleman. "Send for your husband, I cannot wait much longer. I must see him at once."

The boy started to his feet again and looked in his mother's eye, but it gave no marching orders.

"Look here mister," now appearing at the door, and looking defiantly at him, "your a schoolmaster hantin' up a district school, and you think he's a committee man, but he aint this year."

"No, I'm not a schoolmaster either," said this visitor, "though I think I would not have to look far for pupils in need of teaching, if I were."

"Ma'am Cutts," as the neighbors called her, dropped her hands to her side and heaved a groan. She had found a man she couldn't manage.

"See here, now mister," she said, "I can read a body right through, and I knew what you was the blessed minute I clapped my eyes on you. I can tell by your everlasting arguin' that you are a lawyer. We hain't got no quarrels, don't want no deeds drawed or wills made, so if you're huntin's job of my husband, you may as well onhitch your horse and drive on. We know enough to make a little money, and I know enough to hold on to it."

"My good woman, you entirely misunderstand my errand. I can tell no person but himself what it is, and must tell him in confidence alone. If he choses he may break it to you the best way he can."

"O my goodness sake alive! Brother Lif's blowed up in the Mississippi boat I bet. O la me, the poor fellow! He's left a little something didn't he?"

"I never heard of him, and nobody's 'blowed up,' that I know of," replied the gentleman.

"I—now I know! You're the man what wants to go to Congress. We have come here huntin' after votes, but shall not vote for you! I hate politicians, especially them that goes 'gin women, and thinks they were made to drudge, and 'bothin' else! I go in for free and equal rights for white folks—men and women—for Scripture says, 'there isn't neither men or women, but all's one in politics.' I believe the day is comin' when such as you and me will have to bow the knee to women, before you can get the big places, and high pay that's eatin' us up with taxes. You can't see my husband. We are going to the polls on the way to the mill and I'll promise you that he votes right."

"I'm no candidate, and I don't know what you are talking about. Ah, there comes the man I want."

And the stranger went towards Mr. Cutts, who had just leapt a pair of bars which led from the potato patch into the lane.

Mrs. Cutts flew into the house for her sun-bonnet, to follow them, but by the time she got to the bars her mysterious visitor and Cutts were driving rapidly down the road.

The strong minded woman shouted after her husband. "You'd better come back, I tell you," but the wind was the wrong way, and carried her words into the potato patch

"Sir," said the gentleman to honest Cutts. "I have a very simple question to ask you, but I shall have to ask you in confidence. I will give you five dollars if you will promise not to repeat my words until to-morrow."

"Well sir," replied Cutts, "I should not like to answer any questions that would make trouble among my neighbors. I have my hands full, I can tell you, to keep out of scrapes now, I've done it, and hain't an enemy in the world, as I know."

"But, sir, you needn't reply to my question unless you are perfectly willing," said the stranger.

"Ask your question, and I will best repeat it," said Cutts.

"Well, Mr. Cutts, I am laying fences on Brisley place, that I have just bought, and I was directed to enquire of you where I could buy cedar posts. A fellow in the store said, 'Cutts can tell you, if his wife will let him, but she won't. She'll insist on telling you herself, and perhaps offer to drive you wherever you go to order the."

"I told them I would see you and ask you only, and the fellows bet on it. They are to give you ten dollars, and two or three widows in town a cord of wood each, if I succeed in asking you this question alone, and making sure your wife does not know my business until after breakfast to-morrow morning."

Cutts knew his wife's standing too well to feel very sensitive, and taking the bill from the stranger, he smiled and said:

"I'll go with you to look out cedar posts and keep dark for the jokes sake, but I don't know as she'll let me stay in the house to-night, I don't own it," replied the good-natured Cutts.

"Suppose you go to the place and see to setting the posts. I will send a boy to tell her you had to go off suddenly on a little business, and will be back in the morning," said the stranger.

"I'll do that, for I never quarrel with her, but let her have her own way. I don't want to worry myself about trifles," replied Cutts.

"Good man there are no trifles in this life. The smallest act is important and that easy goodnature of yours will ruin your family Baffle that spirit to-day, and next Sunday take your boys and go to the house of God, whatever she says, and be a real man—at the head of your own house and family." said the stranger.

"It is rather late to begin, said Cutts But I will try to begin anew for her good as well as the children's."

The boy was sent with the message, but he was not sharp enough Madame Cutts discovered the whereabouts of her lord, tackled up and went after him.

All the way home, and far into the night she used her eloquence, both in pleadings and threatenings, to find out the mysterious errand of that hatful town-talk that had come to separate happy families.

But Cutts yielded himself up to a dumb spirit for the night, and no measure could induce him to talk on any subject, lest she should pry the mighty secret out of him.

About midnight she wore herself out and went to sleep, but about break of day she began. He then ventured to say, "As soon as breakfast is over, I'll break the news to you,"

"You'll never eat a morsel in my house, I can tell you, cried Xantippe, "till you have told me what the man wanted of you."

"Then you'll wait a long time to hear it, for I have vowed I'd never tell it till I had first eaten my breakfast," said Cutts, and with these words he went out.

Madame Cutts endured the torture as long as possible, and then got breakfast. She called to the door to no one in particular, 'Come.'

But Cutts didn't come. After a while she went out and found him seated on an upturned half-bushel measure calmly peeling and eating a raw turnip.

"It does seem as if this here man had possessed you. Your breakfast is cool in' do come in."

It was a point gained.

Cutts went in, as requested, and ate his breakfast. When that was over, ma'am Cutts settled herself back in the chair, with her face full of eager expectation, and said:

"Now begin. What did that ar man want?"

"He wanted some cedar posts, and that was all," replied Cutts calmly without looking up.

If an arrow had struck Mrs. Cutts, she could not have manifested more surprise and shame.

"I'm the laughing stock of the town," added Cutts, "and from this hour. I turn over a new leaf. I am henceforth head of my family, and unless this place is made mine, I shall finish off a room in the barn—which is mine—and you will be welcome to share it with me. If not I will live there with the boys, and you will find a civil neighbor."

Madam Cutts' power was broken. Since then the farm has been called "John Cutts' place," and he's head of the house.

THE PAWNED WATCH.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

It was on a Wednesday evening. I had been that afternoon to the Globe to see "Claudi Melnotte" performed, and my way homeward I stopped at Langford's on Sunberry street, to look at an old violin. Langford was a pawnbroker, and I had known him years before; and, moreover, he was a good sort of a fellow, and liked to talk of old times. I looked at his violin, and, after due examination, made up my mind that either he must have misunderstood or misrepresented the Herr Von Schweitzenpelter who had left it in pawn, or, that the said Von Schweitzenpelter had told an untruth. Considering that Langford was an old acquaintance, I preferred to think that Schweitzenpelter had been the deceiver, and having put the violin back in the case, and seen the case put away, I took a seat by the stove, and entered into conversation with the broker.

We had been thus engaged but a short time when a lady entered. She was dressed in black, and closely veiled and as she took her place at the counter, Langford went to wait on her. I sat in the shade, in a back corner, and when the lady raised her veil I saw her face distinctly, as the light of the pendant gas-jet shown full upon it. She evidently had not seen me, though she had certainly glanced around the office with the view to ascertain if she was alone with the broker. As I have said, I saw her face, and knew it for the face of a woman who had lived very near me for several years, and who had served as nurse, at different times, in different families in the neighborhood. I had known her as Mrs. Warland, and had become interested in her because I knew very well that she had suffered under some heavy misfortune. She was a mild-faced, sweet spoken woman from forty to fifty years of age, and those who had occasion to employ her spoke of her in the highest terms. She had hired a small tenement—or part of a tenement—down by the Back Cove, where she lived in quiet seclusion, the only inmate of her family being a daughter of eight or nine years. She had lost other children and the one now living was far from being strong or well.

My sister had employed Mrs. Warland; and from her I learned something of the woman's history. She had had two husbands. The first—the love of her maiden heart, was a pilot, and was washed overboard, while trying to board a vessel in a storm, during the fourth year of their marriage. After that—some years after—she married again, this time taking for her husband Donald Warland. This Warland proved to be a hard, cruel man; and of the results of this cruelty was the away of little Jack, the pilot's son, then ten years old. The mother had loved this boy with all her heart, and though his absence cast a dismal shadow over her life, yet she could not but feel that it was better for him to be away. His step-father had been very harsh and unkind in his treatment of him. The years passed on. Children were born to the second marriage, but only one of them lived to run alone. Donald Warland drank hard—he gave misery to his wife while he lived, and he gave to her poverty when he died. A second time she became a widow, and since Warland death she had striven hard to keep a home for herself and child.

Having heard all this it was with feelings deeper than simple curiosity that I watched and listened on the present occasion.

Langford called this woman by name and asked her kindly what he could do for her.

With trembling hand she drew from her bosom a small buckskin pouch, and took therefrom a gold watch. The case was heavy, and richly carved, and I could see from my far corner, that it was a unique affair, unlike the watches of the present generation.

"Mr. Langford," she said, with an effort, "I feel sure you will deal fairly by me."

He would have answered her but she gave him no time.

"I have come to this at length. It is not mine, and yet I must leave it with you as a pledge."

"Not yours?"

"Do not misunderstand me," she said with a quick emotion "It was—it was—

"My dear madam," interposed the broker assuringly, "do not you misunderstand me. You have my fullest confidence."

"And yet," pursued the woman with trembling lips and moistening eyes. "I will tell you the truth, and then you will know how sacred is the charge I give. This was my first husband's watch—presented to him by the ship owners whom he had served—and when he died he left it for—for—

"For Jack," pronounced Langford, reading those words upon the buckskin pouch, where they had been printed with a pen.

Mrs. Warland started, and the broker pointed to the legend upon the pouch.

"Yes, yes," she said. "Jack was our boy—our son.—He went away—many years ago—and—

Here the woman broke down, and having recovered herself, she asked the broker to advance ten dollar on the watch.

"Ten dollars," repeated Langford, in surprise. He had opened the watch and looked into it. "Do you know its value?"

"I know that it cost a large sum sir."

"Certainly. It is a Harrison chronometer of the very best quality, and seems to be very little worn."

"It has not been wound up, sir, since John Bishop died. I have kept it hidden away all these years. And now I must leave it with you I have nothing else. But I will only take in return such sum as I know I can pay if I live. You will keep it sir—for a year if necessary—for more than a year—

"I will hold it sacredly to your order for five years if you wish."

The poor woman was thankful, and having received the ten dollars she turned to the door, but before she reached it she stopped and came back. She took the watch in her hand, and pressed it to her lips, and then with a struggle in which during a fond moment to from the network of her heart she laid it down and went away.

When she had gone I got up and went behind the counter to look at the pawned watch.

"Its worth three hundred dollars," said Langford.

"And she has pawned it for ten."

"I do not consider it pawned," he replied. "That woman has enlisted my utmost sympathy, and I will hold this watch for her while she lives."

I asked him if she has been to him before for money.

"Yes, I think she has, four and four, counted from hundred dollars [illegible] She has [illegible] she could [illegible] I was telling [illegible] of Mrs. Warland, when a customer entered. He was a seafaring man, and I recognized him as one whom I had seen that afternoon. He had sat very near to me, and I had noticed him particularly, because he was not to be seen without notice He was a young man with a frank, handsome, bold face; his hair of a dark brown, clustering about a large well shaped head in close glossy curls; and possessing a frame of marvelous strength and symmetry. His garments, though of a sailor cut, were of the finest quality, and manner, and it was plain to be seen from his tone and manner, he used to bolding authority. He had seen a sextant exposed in the window, and had come in to look at it.

Langford took the chronometer from my hand, and had started to restore it to its pouch, when the stranger interrupted him:

"Pardon me, sir, but will you allow me to look at the watch?"

The broker handed it to him. He took it, and trembled perceptibly.

"Where did you get this?" The question was asked with an effort;

"I had it of a customer."

"In pawn?"

"Not exactly: though it was left with me as a pledge."

The man had examined the richly engraved case of the watch, and finally his eye rested upon the buck-skin pouch. He picked it up, and saw the words which were written upon it. For a little time his frame shook as though tempest riven. Then he braced himself and spoke in an entreating manner.

"Will you tell me who left this here?"

A light dawned upon me. The man had interested me with something more than his grand beauty. There was something in his face familiar to me—something in its classic outlines, and in its lineaments of character like the face of a woman who had been my sister's nurse And while she the broker hesitated. I answered him:

"A lady left it here, and her name is Warland."

He looked at me quickly and eagerly.

"Has she has a husband?" he asked.

"No," I said. "Her husband died in New York several years since, and she has returned to the land of her childhood a widow.

A moment's pause, and then added,

"Mr. Langford has told you that the watch has not been really pawned. The poor woman said it wasn't hers. It had been left with her by her first husband —a dying gift to their boy—a boy whom she had not seen for many years."

The man reached over and took my hand.

"Can you take me to her?" he enquired.

I to him I could for the lived very near to my home.

He wanted to take the watch; but the broker objected, and he did not urge it.

And he went out with me into the street. His heart was full, and I did not disturb him with idle questions. On board the ferry boat he paced up and down the deck alone, and when we landed upon the Island side he took my arm as though fearful that he would lose me. When we reached the door of Mrs. Warland's dwelling, and were ushered into a small, scantily furnished sitting-room by the little daughter, who had recognized me.

"Mamma has just come in," she said; "I will call her."

I would have left but the man detained me.

Presently Mrs. Warland entered. The stalk in the cool, bracing air, had given color to her usually pale cheeks, and when she saw me she smiled a welcome. And then, following my glance, she turned to the stranger, who was gazing upon her with the whole of his heart and soul in his lustrous eyes. She started and tottered.

"Mother do you know me?"

And she stretched out her arms with a wild cry—she called him "Jack"—and with sobs of rapture she clung to him, was held in his bosom. I felt my presence to be a profanation, and I crept away.

But I called on the following day, and found the mother and the son happy and jubilant. And then Jack Bishop told me how he had heard of his mother last in New York; how he looked for her; and how he had been told that she was dead. He was in command of a ship just returned from India, and was making arrangements for another voyage; and but for the watch in the pawnbroker's he would have gone away with out knowing that his mother lived.

And so the widow had come from darkness to light; and that sacrifice which seemed to her as the rending of her very heart heartstrings had proved an offering upon the altar of fate which had brought back joy and pleasing. Is it a wonder that in the mystic influence of the pawned watch she traces the finger of a Divine Providence! For, so feeling, to God she gives the praise of her thankful heart.

The Sleepless Lawyer.

A lawyer, stopping at a hotel during the past summer, had a room on the ground floor, with a window on the porch. Soon after retiring, chairs were moved on the porch outside his window and directly he heard voices—low but earnest voices—principally a man's; and as he warmed to his subject it grew so loud that our friend not only was kept awake, but could not avoid hearing what said.

The young man was pouring out the tale of his admiration—his ardent love, as steadfast as the polar star, as fixed as adamant. She seemed to like it very well, but didn't say yes nor nay. So the scorer went on in the same strain—he happy that she would listen, she happy he did speak. This continued from twelve till two in the wee hours when the fair one made a move. The wretched man begged that she would tell him his fate then and there, but she would not. At last she said, "I will tell you in the morning."

Imagine their horror and surprise as a wild cry came from the sleepless lawyer's room:

"For heaven's sake, don't come back before one! Come back at ten, and I will be there to hear the rest."

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of six complete volumes cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost, and then there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when the "Aldine" assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support a sincere effort in the cause of Art.—The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of the "Aldine."

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition—"The Aldine" will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest, avoiding such as have become familiar through photographs or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1873, will reproduce four of John B. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will commend the subscription of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of "The Aldine" can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparalleled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to "The Aldine," who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. D. Ill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14x20 inches—are printed from 20 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep "The Aldine" out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found corresponding nly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a $5 periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for "The Aldine" itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos see New Year issue of "The Aldine.") will continue under the care of Mr. Richard Henry Stoddart, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of "The Aldine" always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

TERMS.

$5 per annum in advance with oil chromos free.

"The Aldine" will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of James Sutton & Co.

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 26TH, 1872

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

We seize the present opportunity of wishing our many patrons a cordial greeting. We wish them a happy New Year and we trust they have spent a Merry Christmas.

These festive seasons are always looked forward to with pleasure, as our anticipations are of meeting friends and dearly loved ones, who for a season, may have been separated from us.

The time honored custom of making Christmas and New Year's days, the occasion of friendly gatherings, affords an opportunity for cultivating the kindest feelings. And the expectation of meeting those whom only these seasons bring together are the strongest incentives to bequeath to those who succeed us the same desire for these festive gatherings.

In the midst of the joy and pleasure there are strong reasons to remember all that do not enjoy the same good cheer, although they might, and while the kind heart and charitable hand endeavour to supply the wants to them, let them not cultivate those customs that have produced the very thing they seek to alleviate. While cultivating social graces, we beg to offer our readers all the compliments of the season.

MONTREAL WITNESS.—Mr. A. B. Kidd is prepared to deliver the Montreal Daily and Weekly Witness at his store free of postage.

CONCERT.—Remember the Concert in the Music Hall on Monday evening in aid of St. Andrew's Church Organ Fund.

The profits of the manufacturers of Massachusetts were $102,000,000 in 1870 The amount paid to the employees was $18,000,000.

W. G. Fitzmaurice of Oshawa has been committed to gaol on the charge of burning his own store and contents. The evidence deduced at the inquest was of such a nature as warranted a verdict against him.

ANOTHER NORMAL SCHOOL.—It is stated that another Normal School is to be erected in Ontario and that Ottawa is to be the place for it. Ottawa is evidently too far east. It is also on the very boundary of the Province. It does seem to us as if Kingston is altogether more central, and should have the preference.

A collision occurred between two freight trains on the siding at the station at Nadanee on Friday evening last. Five cars were thrown off the track and considerably damaged. Traffic was not interrupted and no one was injured.

A SCHOOL MASTER'S TROUBLES.—The charge against a school master in Kingston, for giving a boy an excessive whipping for infringing the discipline of the school, has been dismissed by the Police Magistrate, on the ground that though the punishment was very severe, it was provoked.

PRESBYTERIAN SABBATH SCHOOL FESTIVAL.—A Festival in connection with the Canada Presbyterian Church Sabbath School will be held on Friday, (to-morrow evening) in the Basement of the Church, at 6 o'clock. A charge of 25 cents will be made; proceeds in aid of the Sabbath School. In this festive season, let there be a good turn out, as it is for a good purpose.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE, LAKEFIELD.—The Rev. J. J. Rice, Provincial Deputy G. M., I. O. of G. T. will deliver a Lecture in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Lakefield, on Friday next, at 7.30, p. m.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—A fearful accident took place near Westfield, New York on Tuesday by which a whole train went over an embankment into a ravine thirty five feet deep. Forty five persons were killed and 36 badly injured; of the killed many were burned to death, the train taking fire from the stoves.

PERSONAL.—We learn from the Globe of Monday, that Mr. John McCamus, who formerly taught in this County, has just closed his labors at New Hamburg, where he has been teaching about two years. His examination was a very successful one. Mr. McCamus is about to take charge of the Bobcaygeon school, the Trustees of which place have been very fortunate in securing the services of an efficient teacher.

The Oshawa Reformer favors Whitby as the place for the Ontario Agricultural College, on the following grounds:

"Some of the towns west are urging their claims for this institution, but none of them, we fancy, can hold out the inducements which Whitby does. They may have as good land up there, but can they furnish such a building and the same amount of land as Whitby can? We think not. Whitby is central, in the midst of a splendid agricultural country; and in many of seasons, both by land and water. The Commissioners have visited Whitby, and report the land to be all that could be desired, and we hope that they will, in justice to the Province, report in favor of Whitby as the place for the College."

The Commissioners of Agriculture will we trust select the best site, wherever it may be found.

CHILD FOUND DEAD.—On Tuesday about 11.30, a. m., one of Mr. Clegg's children had occasion to go to the shed for some wood, and in passing there she found the dead body of a newly born infant. An inquest was held on the body, and also an adjourned inquest by Dr. Kinsmid, to allow time for Dr. O'Sullivan to have a post mortem examination. The Dr. did so, and yesterday gave evidence, founded on the examination; that he believed the child lived after birth, and that it had arrived at the full period of gestation, and that it was his opinion that it had died from exposure or negligence after birth. It is a male child; part of the body, arms and face had been eaten by a cat or by a rat. The unfortunate mother of the child is not yet known but suspicions are against a woman that was well known to the Constables, and was known to be pregnant about three weeks ago, but when seen last by those who knew her, had been delivered. The placenta was found under a board in the shed, near where the child was found, where a woman was seen about three weeks ago, supposed then to be drunk, but now believed to have been in the act of parturition. The inquest is adjourned till Friday evening.

THE LADY'S FRIEND FOR JANUARY.—The engravings of this charming Magazine are apt to be above the usual common-place round which we see so generally, and this month we have a romantic picture of "The Last Ride of the Wild Huntsman," another quieter one of "Two Widows," and another called "With the Bloom on"—all handsome and successful pictures of their kind. In literature, Mrs. Henry Wood begins her new story, "The Master of Greylands," which, judging from the opening chapters, will prove one of her most successful stories. Besides this, there are "Una and her Prince," by Mo Miss. Muzzy; "Our State Dinner," by Amanda M. Douglas; "An Old Maid," by Florence Percy; "Heloise," by Emma B. Ripley; "Seeing and Believing," by M. C. Pyne; "The White Rose of York," by Elsie Polko; "Tibbie on her Wedding Eve," &c., &c. There is the usual piece of Music—this time it is the song "Only Be Kind"—with Fashion Cuts, Work Table Varieties, and other matters interesting to ladies.

Besides Mrs. Wood's story, novelets are also announced for this year by Daisy Ventnor, Miss Muzzey, Miss Douglas, and Fannie Hodgson. A beautiful Premium Chromo (Little Samuel, the Child-Prophet) is also announced, while a long list of Premiums—from Sewing Machines and Fold Watches to Plated Tea Spoons, &c.—are promised to those who get up lists of subscribers. Send for a sample number, containing all the inducements. Price, $2 00 a year, or $2.50 with the Premium Chromo. Four copies $6.00. Eight copies (and one gratis) $12 00. "The Lady's Friend" ($2.00) and "The Saturday Evening Post" ($3.00) for $4.50. A Premium Chromo or a large Steel Engraving is also given to the sender of every club. Published by DEACON & PETERSON, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

PETER'S MUSICAL MONTHLY FOR JANUARY has been received and as usual contains a fine selection of Music. The price is only 30 cents and the number contains the following pieces:—

"Do not turn me from your Door," Song and Chorus; "Recollections of Child hood," Baritone Song; "Farewell, Darling, till we meet," Song and Chorus; "Close the Shutters, Willie's dead," Song and Chorus; "Lord, my God," Sop. and Al. Solo and Quartet; "There is but one Imperial City," Four Hands; "Belisario," "Silver Spray," Caprice Mazurka; "Fleur des Champs," Valse Elegante.

It will be seen from the above that the publisher gives over $3.00 worth of Music for 30 cents, or in other words about $40.00 worth of Music to every yearly subscriber. It is published by J. L. Peters, 599 Broadway, New York. Price $3 per year; two copies for $5; and four copies $9. Bound copies for 1872, price $5 00.

CHRISTMAS MEAT.—The show of X'mas meat in the Peterboro Market was excellent. Mr. Winch had a splendid show, so had Messrs. Howden, Heather, Cox, Lepiant and Welsh. The Butchers of Peterboro spare no cost in supplying the best meat. Mr. Spence, Ashburnham, also had a good supply of the best beef, mutton, &c.

We clip the following from the Erie Dispatch:—

Mr. Thomas Hanlon, Clerk of the Select Council, who has been at his post at at every meeting of Council for about two years, last night received a furlough to visit his friends in Canada. Mr. Hanlon has proved himself a gentlemanly, capable official, and by his close attention to the city business has well earned the privilege of a brief season of recreation.

Mr. Hanlon is a brother of Mr. Jas. Hanlon of Otonabee, and has numerous friends in this neighborhood.

Mr. W. G. THOMSON has a splendid stock of fashionable goods.

W. FAIRWEATHER & Co. have a very large stock of fashionable and select goods, and are offering bargains. It would be a good idea to examine the goods and mark the prices, as they offer their goods at reduced prices.

AT MACDONALD & ELDER'S, you will find a varied and extensive stock of fashionable dry goods, and their Millinery and clothing departments are complete.

ROGERS & Co, Ashburnham, have an extensive stock of Dry Goods, ready made clothing, boots and shoes, groceries &c, and they offer them cheaper than any store in Town.

I ROBINSON & Co, have also a large and well selected stock, from which the most Fashionable dresses, and suits for the festive season can be selected.

A. HALL, confectionery has supplied himself with everything in his line for the holidays. And so has

MR. LEPERT, who spares no pains to procure large and fresh supplies in his lines, to suit his numerous patrons.

MR. D. LEMAY, also advertises this week a large supply of confectionery, toys, &c, &c.

IN THE BOOT & SHOE LINES

ATHEY RED BOOT.—Mr. McCullagh, has removed from Hunter Street, into one of Cox's new buildings George Street where he has an excellent stock of Boots and Shoes of all the newest styles, give him a call during the Holidays. He will gladly supply you with good understandings for the winter.

MR. S. WHITE, supplies all the newest and latest styles, and has also a large stock, give him a call.

W. J. LAMBOUR, George Street is also doing a large business in Boots & Shoes, give all these men who advertise a call as they want to show you their wares whether you purchase or not.

JAS. ROSE, Furniture Dealer, Undertaker & Embalmer, Simcoe Street, Peterboro' will exhibit stock of Boots and Shoes, and undertakes to order, as do all those in the Boot and Shoe trade in Town.

MR. LAMBE has an extensive stock of Stoves of all patterns, Lamps, Lamp Glasses, Coal Oil, and an endless variety of other things suited for all seasons.

J. R. OSMOND & Co. can supply any amount of Jewellery, for presents; Toys &c., &c.

Messrs Nicholls & Hall have a large stock of the best class of dry goods and groceries, and are continually receiving fresh supplies.

Read the advertisements and learn where to obtain all the luxuries of the season, as well as the necessities, and we advise our readers to give those who advertise a call, as they all deserve to be fully patronized.

The Maple Leaf Concert.

The concert on Friday evening under the auspices of the Maple Leaf Cricket Club, was a decided success. The parts of each were so successfully performed that it almost appears invidious to particularize.

The opening piece by the Club, "The Maple Leaf Forever," by Mr. Quincey, assisted by the Club was splendid. The singing of Miss Gerrie, Miss Kennedy and Miss Johnston was well received and deservedly encored.

Mr. Galletly sang "Afton Waters," in his usual masterly style. Mr. Anderson sang the "British Lion," and Mr. Green was loudly encored in his comic song.

Mr. M. Hall recited a very humorous Scotch anecdote.

The closing scene, in which the members of the Club took part, was very amusing, and well performed. The lady performers exhibited their usual tact in performing their parts.

The Quadrille Band consisting of Messrs Wells & Martin played some very pretty pieces during the evening in their well known masterly style.

The Hall was well filled, and all went away pleased with the evening's entertainment

THE RAILWAY.

In our last issue we gave the Speeches of Sir Hugh Allan and the Hon. Mr. Abbott on matters concerning the Canada Central or Ontario and Quebec Railway. The other speeches were merely individual views in favor of the road, and could afford no information as to the certainty or even possibility of construction. Sir Hugh himself gave no very hopeful assertion that the road would be built, but expressed himself as anxious to get the road built as soon as sufficient bonuses and capital could be secured to that end.

The Committee to whom was committed the duty of getting up By laws, have been at work and will in a few days be able to report to the County and Town Councils. When we hope to be able to give the condition on which the people will be asked to grant bonuses

THE AMOUNT OF BONUS

Asked from the Town and County is considered by some from the county as not fairly divivided, as they think the Town should give as much as the County. As this was settled by the joint committee appointed at the meeting in the Music Hall on the 17th instant, the question narrows itself to this therefore:—Is the amount, $250,000 more than the road is worth to the Town and County, or is it not? If it is, then a less sum should be named. If it is not, the amount should be voted at once so as to secure the advantages at the earliest possible day.

There is no use in denying the fact that if the bonus be granted the County will have to pay the interest, yearly, amounting to $9,000 and a percentage for sinking fund, and the Town will have to pay $6,000 a year interest and a sinking fund in addition to all other taxes.

It is also a fact that more than three per cent of a sinking fund must be raised yearly to pay off the principal in twenty years, or the debt will continue for almost an indefinite time. One per cent of sinking fund will require little short of a century to liquidate the debt. Three per cent would do it in twenty year. The granting of the bonus asked, therefore, implies a tax for two generations at least.

Every property holder too should look at it from the dollar and cent side, as well as from the fairer side, the advantages. The assessed value of the Town at present is $1,550,000. The rate on this amount, required at present would not fall short of four mills in the dollar, or $4 on every $1000 of the assessment. Suppose an assessment of $2,000 at present pays $20, if the bonus be granted he will have to pay $32, and so on in proportion to assessment. On the other hand it is believed that the Town would increase largely if the road should be built and the work shops erected and maintained here.

In ten years the population would no doubt be 12,000 or 15,000, and if property should increase in proportion to the population, then the assessment would amount to $3,000,000, and if so, the annual rate per cent would not be over two mills in the dollar for this road. It is not too much to believe that if the road should be constructed and the work shops erected the population would be doubled in ten years, and the value of property more than doubled, and in that case the increased taxation would not be felt, and a sinking fund of one per cent might liquidate the bonus in 20 years.

The present increase of taxes will be more than repaid to the mechanic and laborer by the continuation of high wages for at least five years, the time of constructing the road, and by that time the increase of property will be such as to keep the annual rate about the same as at present, or nearly so.

It is only a few years since mechanics were complaining that there was nothing to do, and that, in consequence, they would have to go to the United States. Now there is abundance of labor, high wages and ready pay. Now who would vote for a return of those dull times to escape the payment of a few dollars of taxes? Not one. There need be little fear for the defeat of the By-law in Town as the good sense of the people will not allow them to endanger the construction of the road which is sure to benefit the mechanic and laborer more than any other portion of our citizens.

THE COUNTY PORTION.

From the unanimity apparent at the public meeting, the observer would be ready to conclude that the County By-law is safe. Not a single voice or hand was raised against it at that meeting. There will, however, be opposition to it, and more, perhaps, than anticipated. Before forming an opinion every ratepayer should look at the matter fairly. The present assessed value of the County is $3,817,531 The rate on this amount necessary to pay the interest yearly would be 3 mills in dollar, or $3 on every $1,000 over and above all other taxes, for local improvements and to meet the present liabilities.

Any ratepayer can therefore easily compute his share of the liability incurred—30 cents on every $100, or $3 in every $1,000.

The Township of Monaghan would be called on to pay about $600 more than at present, Smith about $2,262, Otonabee nearly $3,000 more than at present Ashburnham and other Townships in the same ratio, according to assessed value. This rate would not be felt; as the value of property increases, the rate would decrease, and in all probability would are long be 2 mills in the dollar. This is on the supposition of [illegible] Let it be remembered [illegible] years. [illegible]

Hartford Insurance Companies.

From the Boston Post, Dec 6th 1872.

The Insurance Spectator for December has the following deserved and appropriate mention of the Hartford Companies. Certainly, they are entitled to all, and even warmer praise than uttered:

"There is something alm st sublime in the attitude of the Hartford companies at this trying time. Not a company is embarrassed, not one talks of discouragement, losses will be paid dollar for dollar as soon as adjusted. January dividends are stopped, of course, but otherwise the $5,000,000 lost is treated only as an incentive to new enterprise and braver progress."

"The

LADIES' [illegible]

On Thursday evening, 12th ult., at the close of the Presbyterian prayer meeting, Mr. W. D. Russell was waited upon by the members of his Bible class. They presented him with a very beautiful [illegible] and another large book, the title of which I did not learn; also the following address:

To Mr. W. D. RUSSELL,

DEAR TEACHER,—It is with feelings of deep regret, that we, the members of your Bible Class, have learned that you are about to leave us. We cannot allow this opportunity to pass without expressing to you our heartfelt thanks for the interest you have ever taken in our welfare. Not only in the class have we profited by your able instructions, but your conduct has always been such as to merit the regard and love of us all. Understanding that you are about to prepare for the [illegible] the noblest of all professions,—it is our earnest prayer that you will ever [illegible] the same interest in the spiritual welfare of others that you have in ours, and that Almighty God may abundantly bless you in your mission of faith and holy love.

We would ask you then to keep us of this, and would earnestly request you may long be spared to [illegible] the valuable truths contained [illegible].

Wishing you every success in your noble undertaking.

We remain,
Dear Teacher,
YOUR AFFECTIONATE PUPILS

Mr. Russell replied briefly in a few very appropriate remarks.

Mr. Russell being Treasurer of S. S. No. 6, Smith, held his public annual examination on the following Thursday. It was well attended; the Teacher and over 50 visitors were present. Mr. Russell being ill, the proceedings were conducted by Dr. Hodge, Mr. Scott and the several teachers present. It is enough to state that the examination in all that could be desired; and gave entire satisfaction. The examiners did their duty and the pupils acquitted themselves nobly; and by their prompt and correct answers reflected much credit upon their teacher. At the close of the examination two of the pupils addressed, and on behalf of the school, presented Mr. Russell with a very handsome and [illegible] Writing Desk, and the following [illegible]:

MR. RUSSELL,

DEAR TEACHER,

Having learned with regret that the ties existing between us as Teacher and Scholars are about to be severed, we cannot but express you our high appreciation of your [illegible]. Since you became our teacher you have laboured faithfully and ardently, have done all in your power to promote the welfare of the school. With pleasure we have observed the strict impartiality you have always manifested in your government, and, although we have frequently grieved and given you pain we sincerely hope you will kindly overlook many errors, and feel assured that you have gained and ever will hold the [illegible] high esteem of all your pupils.

We thankfully beg you to accept this, written, not as a recompense for your valuable services, for such is not in our power to do as a parting token from the many well wishers you leave behind.

Wishing you every success in the noble calling you have chosen,

We remain,
Dear Teacher,
YOUR AFFECTIONATE PUPILS

Mr. Russell then made a suitable reply after which the proceedings [illegible].

Mr. R. has indeed gained the high esteem of all. His career as Public School Teacher has been very successful and his excellent station of the Lakefield Presbyterian Sunday School is due in a measure to his untiring perseverance in the good work.

Mr. Russell carries with him the best wishes of all.

Lakefield Dec 23rd 1872

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Dec. 24th, 8:30 p.m.—A fearful accident occurred on the Grand Trunk road at three p m, at a point known as Prospect station. The train was in charge of Conductor Flanders and was due in Brockton at four o'clock to connect with the day express of the Lake Shore Road. The train, on crossing a trestle bridge, was with the exception of the engine, overturned while bridge into ravine, a distance of thirty-five feet. It is supposed at this time that the accident was caused by a broken wheel, as the engine parted from the train and passed over in safety. It is estimated that between 70 and 80 passengers were in the two cars, and of this number not half-a-dozen escaped death or serious injury. The wreck, taking fire from the car stoves, literally roasted alive many that were wounded before they could be removed. The death list including those killed outright and those burned to death, will exceed 45. Three women have been taken from the scene of the disaster, but are unrecognizable.

Among the passengers were several women with children. Twenty-one dead bodies have been brought into this place, but none have yet been recognized. Many cannot be recognized at any time, the ladies being so badly burned. There are thirty-one wounded, many seriously. Conductor Flanders is fatally injured, but is still alive. The railroad company are doing all in their power.

The train was moving slowly, the bridge being situated at the foot of a steep grade. At present no list can be given of persons killed and wounded. The baggage and mail were all burned, as well as the bridge itself, which was about forty feet long. The Cross-cut road runs from Corry to Brocton.

Prospect Station is situated between Mayville and Brocton.

The Windsor Mail contains an account of the attempt of Wm. Waterly, colored steward of the brigantine Union Star, of Parrsboro, to suffocate the captain and crew, and then to burn her. Captain Lockhart, after many struggles, succeeded in crawling out of his cabin, gasping for breath, and found the vessel on fire forward of the foremast and the mates and crew missing. After a search he discovered them concealed in the same manner as he had been himself, and with great difficulty succeeded in restoring them to consciousness. While getting the fire under, they found the steward lying on his back near the flames he had kindled quite dead. On arriving at Parsboro an inquest was held, and a verdict returned that the deceased came to his death from suffocation, produced by a fire kindled by himself. The cause of Waterly's attempt was that the captain refused to detain the vessel for a pair of boots which she steward wished to have made. The steward who was a vindictive man, swore revenge against the vessel and crew, and it is supposed that he sprinkled muriatic acid in the sleeping rooms of the vessel.

The Toronto [illegible] over an old Ledger we are a long list of names of former subscribers who have gone to [illegible]. Some of them moved away and are lost to sight—although not to memory dear. Others, carrying the contribution boxes in our most remarkable churches, and others again have died and are now angels in heaven, but they owe us just the same.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—On Tuesday morning last as Mr. Josiah Callard was crossing the ice on Lake Rosseau from his house to Tweedsmuir's point, when opposite Mr. Beasley's house the ice gave way and he was precipitated into the water. Mr. Beasley and a man named Clegg witnessed the accident, and saw the deceased several times attempt to obtain a footing on the ice, which broke beneath his weight. Messrs. Beasley and Clegg attempted to rescue him and obtained a long pole which they endeavored to push out towards the unfortunate man, but the ice was too rotten to approach near enough to reach him.

On Monday last Mr. Joseph Buller, station agent at Beaverton, was entertained at a supper prior to his leaving that town, for Peterboro.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve containing soothing and healing properties, with dangerous ingredient. As a remedy it has no superior for sores, aches, wounds and bruises which flesh is heir to. Is more easily applied than any other remedies, never producing a hard scab, and always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive practice of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Corns, Felons, Fever Sores, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Blisters, Felons, Scalds, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Cuts, Corns, Bites of Insects, Coughs, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Boils, Sore Throat, Sore Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, Piles, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well when first attacked three times a day. In several cases it has entirely failed. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been troubled for years have been relieved by a few weeks' use. For Inflammation it works wonders, allaying the heat from the beginning, and giving relief in a few hours. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve as soon as it is taken and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp one five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on the aged it produces a new growth of hair. Nobody should be without this invaluable article as a cheap and unequalled cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER:—I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you consented to let me take your Salve. I think I can do it with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to me. My husband has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours did. He has used two both found it to be all, and even a recommended it to be. We have had the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation. Send two dwelling, and done for him that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it makes it of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINE.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made to the Legislature of Ontario at its next session for a Charter to construct a Railway, having its Southern terminus at the Village of Trenton, and proceed northward by the valley of the Trent River to the Iron mines in the Townships of Marmora and Belmont, and thence northward to intersect the contemplated Pacific Railway in the valley of the Ottawa, with power to extend from Trenton, southward to Weller's Bay, on Lake Ontario, also with power to connect with the County of Prince Edward Railway, the Grand Junction Railway, and the Quebec and Ontario Railway.

Read Poetry.

"ROCK OF AGES."

Seldom have we read a more fitting tribute of the thoughtless and superficial way of viewing these progress days than this article, which we clip and subjoin to the following sensible verses, which we take from an exchange.—Ed. Plymouth Intelligencer.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me"
Thoughtlessly the maiden sang,
Fell the words unmeekly only
From her girlish, gleeful tongue.
Snatch me from the ills of sin;
Sang as sing the birds in June;
Fell the notes like light leaves down
On the current of the tune—
"Rock of Ages cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Let me hide myself in Thee;"
Felt her soul no need to hide;
Sweet the song as song could be—
And she had no thought beside
All the words unheedingly
Fell from lips untouched by care,
Dreaming not they each might be
On some other lips a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,"—
'Twas a woman sang them now,
Bore the song as storm tossed bird
Bent with weary wing the air,
Every note with sorrow stirred—
Every syllable a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me"—
Lips growing aged sang the hymn
Trustingly and tenderly—
Voice grown weak and eyes grown dim,
"Let me hide myself in Thee."
Trembling though the voice and low,
Ran the sweet strain peacefully,
Like a river in its flow,
Sang as only they can sing
Who life's thorny paths have pressed,
Sang as only they can sing
Who behold the promised rest—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,"
Sang above a coffin lid,
Underneath, all restfully,
All life's joys and sorrows hid.
Nevermore, O storm tossed soul,
Nevermore from wind or tide,
Nevermore from billows roll,
Wilt thou need to hide,
Could the sightless sunken eyes,
Closed beneath the soft gray hair,
Could the mute and stilfened lips
Move again in pleading prayer,
Still, eye still the words would be,
"Let me hide myself in Thee."

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; use root with other preparations scarcely all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small effects which they may contain.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY MEDICINE.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than has heretofore been known, than such as we are here combating. Almost every one needs a cathartic medicine to relieve the bowels of their sluggish contents, or to stimulate them into healthy action, and when such are needed, these Pills are sometimes required to operate thoroughly. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. The sugar coating renders them easy to take, even more pleasant than [illegible], while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity. Their operation is powerful in removing from the internal viscera the corrupt matter which, if retained, poisons the blood and originates disease. Nearly every species of complaint is benefited directly by this purgative, or by the relief it affords other organs of the body, in their struggles with disease. Many cures of apparently hopeless character, even after the failure of all other remedies, are daily effected by the use of these Pills. Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills speedily cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Pain in the Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it promotes the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

As an aid to other medicines, the stomach prepares them for more speedily entering into healthy action, restores the appetite and invigorates the system. Hence it is often useful in cases where no perform derangement exists, but where the patient is generally well, often finds that it does him good. Pills makes [illegible] feel decidedly better, from [illegible] and removing effete matter, on the digestive [illegible]

Select Poetry.

HEAVEN on EARTH.

If you'd live a happy life,
Work and sing, boys, gaily,
Joy will sweeten toil and strife,
Cheer you on hard daily.

Like the brothers do your part,
Showing good will and kindness,
Love unlocks the hardest heart,
Long shut up in blindness.

Winds are piping in the craft,
O'er the corn and clover,
Hear the skylark's song aloft,
Lightsome as a lover.

Nature's harp of countless strings
Thrills with tones of gladness,
He is wise who works and sings,
And charms away his sadness

Laughter loving lips beguile
Many a care and sorrow,
And the face that cannot smile
Makes a dark to-morrow.

Who can love a brow of gloom,
Lips no smile hath parted?
Be like birds 'mid leaves and bloom,
True and merry hearted.

Never, boys, for riches rave
But be prudent duly,
What you are, not what you have,
Makes you happy truly.

Habits of expense will grow
If you bow to fashion,
Pride of place, and love of show,
Breed a dangerous passion.

Dearest heaven begins on earth,
Clothed with moral beauty,
Soberness and manly worth,
Rectitude and duty.

Always keep your temper sweet,
Be not sad and dreary,
Let your hearts to music beat,
Cheery, cheery, cheerr.

CHAPTER I.

An autumn evening, gusty and bleak trees shuddering and tossing in the raw wind, a thick piercing mist, shrouded everything, and a moaning gray sea creeping up the lonesome gray sands, under a ghostly darkening sky—that was what Marian Wilde saw from her window, out of which she stood gazing an hour or more.

A handsome girl was Marian Wilde, tall and stately, with massive coils of shining black hair. The deep crimson dress she wore set off her dark, colorless beauty.

She stood alone in the room—her own—gazing with a fixed meaningless stare over the wide sea. Over the bed and chairs and dressing table lay spread the filmy bridal robes, for to-morrow was Marian's wedding day.

The gloomy evening grew gloomier, the wind rose to a gale and above its singing came the shrill shrieking of the sea-birds. The surf came rolling in with a dull roar over the beach, and the mist was turned to a steady rain. Still Marian stood with that vague stare over the sea.

"The lonesome, desolate, awful sea," she whispered to herself, "the wide, pitiless, cruel sea. Oh, my love, my own, my Willie. If I were only sleeping with you under those black waves. Better far than being the bride of Gilbert Owen to-morrow."

There was a tap at the door, she never stirred. The handle turned, there was a rustle of silk, and a woman's voice speaking in the dusk.

"Marian, are you here?"

The voice awoke her from her trance She turned half round from the window.

"Yes, Aunt Maria, come in."

"What an owl you are child—all in the dark. Why on earth don't you light the gas?"

"I don't need gas to think."

"Thinking, are you? A bad habit, my dear. Of what are you thinking? That you are the luckiest girl in the world, I hope."

"Not exactly, my good aunt. Just wishing it were not a sin to commit suicide. The sea down there looks very inviting, the distance is short and this November evening is just the thing for it."

She laughed a reckless laugh.

Aunt Maria, a buxom, comfortable lady, searching uneasily for the match box in the dark said:

"You crazy girl. If I did not know you of old for an oddity, I should box your ears for such a speech on the eve of your wedding."

"Precisely, auntie, that's why I make it."

"Now Marian, oh dear, where's the matches? Ah, I have them. Thank goodness for the blessing of light; things always look twice as bad in the dark. I'm afraid you're not properly thankful for your blessings, Marian."

"I'm afraid I am not, auntie."

"Now, here," said auntie, "you are blessed with everything your heart can desire—lovely dresses, and costly bridal presents. Now what more could any girl in her senses desire?"

"True auntie, but I do not know that I am in my senses."

"Nonsense child, don't be absurd. Is not Mr. Owen everything the most fastidious could desire—upright honorable, esteemed by all, and immensely rich?"

"I know it, a great deal too good for a reckless, loveless, perjured wretch such as I."

Aunt Maria gave a little scream.

"Good heavens, Marian, have you gone deranged that you use such vile language? Perjured. What on earth do you mean? But I need not ask, it is all about that unfortunate William Joyce."

The girl made a sudden motion to stop her, as if the name stabbed her like a knife.

"Auntie, auntie, pray don't. I can not bear it to-night. Leave me alone, I do not feel like myself."

"All the more reason why you should not be left alone. Come down stairs, Mr. Owen is there waiting for you."

"I cannot go. I will not go. Tell him so if you like. If Gilbert Owen is wise—if he wants a wife to-morrow—he had better leave me to myself to-night."

"To lament over the loss of Willie Joyce? Oh I'm not afraid of your flashing eyes, Marian. You want to be sentimental and romantic on your bridal eve, and mourn over your sailor boy lover, lost at sea. But I know you better than you know yourself, my dear, and I know if Willie Joyce could rise from the deep and claim your promise, you would not keep it. You like wealth and luxury as well as any of us, Marian; and you know the difference between the wife of a millionaire and the wife of a sea captain. I'll leave you alone, my dear, as you request. Be sentimental, if you please I'm not afraid to trust you. Shed all your tears to-night, and have your eyes as bright as possible to-morrow at the altar. Good night, my dear, don't sit up late. I'll tell Mr. Owen you have a headache and can't come down.—White lies, unfortunately are indespensable on these occasions."

With which Aunt Martha sailed away.

Marian looked darkly after her, without attempting to speak, and then back again over the wide sea.

"I deserve it all," she said to herself. "Aunt Maria is right. I am an inconsistent, mercenary fool and coward, giving my heart to the dead and my hand to the living. Why don't I tell Gilbert Owen the truth, and go out into the world and fight the battle of life for myself as other girls do? Ah! no, what a false, theatrical, weak creature I am, with neither courage to work or want."

The turned away from the window, and began pacing hurriedly up and down. Then, as if, seized by a sudden impulse to escape from herself and her own dark thoughts, she siezed her shawl and hat, and put them rapidly on.

"Once more," she said to herself, "once mire to visit the place of tryst before I am that man's wife. Here! Hero! where are you?

A big dog, asleep on the hearth-rug, rose up and shook himself ponderously. The girl knelt down and put her arms around his shaggy neck.

"You belonged to him, too, Hero, as I did- and you were his parting gift to me. My brave, handsome Willie! Oh, Hero! Hero! only to think of his lying under the sea, and to-morrow my wedding day."

The shaggy neck of the Newfoundland grew wet with her raining tears. Hero lolled out his great tongue, fully aware something was wrong, and tried to console her in his doggish fashion. Suddenly she started up, dashing away the tears.

"Come, Hero, before it is too late. —For the last time!"

A minute, and they were out in the wild, wet night. The cold wind fluttered her thin dress and chilled her very soul; blew bleak in her face, and darkness was fallin like an inky pall over the sea, and the rocky path leading down to it. But Marian Wilde knew it well, and could have made her way secure, in blackest midnight; and she followed Hero along the jogged, uneven road, fleetly and securely.

Down on a high boulder, garments fluttering and flapping hair escaping, and blowing back from her eyes, her face pald and wild, sad all wet with the rushing rain, her eyes strained in a vague, despairing stare over the tossing black sea, she looked, on her pinnacle, like the goddess of the storm, watching her work—a modern "Norma of the Fitful." Perhaps the man toiling laboriously over the rocks thought so—a young man, sunburned and handsome, dressed in a shaggy jacket and rough sou'-western hat. She never heard him—eyes and heart and mind were all far away.

"Marian!"

That voice. She give a cry, and almost fell from the slippery boulder. Had the dead arisen—was it William Joyce's ghost that stood before her?

"Keeping tryst Marian—my Marian I knew I should find my darling here."

The active young figure stood beside her on the wet rock. Ah, no ghost this—no ghost to clasp her in such strong arms, no ghost to press such rapturous kisses on her pale lips.

"My Marian, my beautiful dark-eyed darling. What a lifetime it seems since I saw you last."

She slid out of his arms, white as a spirit in the dying light, looking up at him, flushed, eager, impassioned, with wild dilated eyes.

"Alive and back again, and I thought him dead. Oh Willie, Willie," the pale lips murmured.

He raised her up, laughing boyishly at her frightened face.

"Alive. Of course I am, back again to be sure too. Why Marian, are you sorry to see me, that you wear such a face as that?"

"Sorry! Willie, Willie."

"Well, you said that before, and it's highly satisfactory, though not explanatory. Come, my darling girl, get over your fears, I am not a ghost, I assure you, but Captain William Joyce come over the wide ocean to make you my wife."

There was no reply. Her head dropped on her shoulder, and clinging to him, he could feel the slight figure shake from head to foot.

"Marian, what is it?" he asked, sternly.

"Have you forgotten your promise?"

"Oh, no, no."

"Don repent it?"

"No, no, no.

"Then what in heaven's name is it? my wife you promised to be—my wife you shall be, in spite of fate. They told me down in the town an absurd story about Gilbert Owen, a man who might be your father. Tell me it is not true."

"I cannot."

"Good heavens, you are not going to marry him, Marian—that old man."

"No, no, a thousand times no, not now, but I was. Willie, I thought you dead."

"My poor girl. And that dragon of an aunt badgered you into it, I know. And the wedding is to be to-morrow?"

"Yes.'

"Then I have arrived in the nick of time. You will not marry Mr. Owen to-morrow Marie, because you shall marry me."

"Willie!"

"I mean it, my darling. Down the path, there is the carriage I came in. Come with me, never mind going back to the house. I will take you as you are, and you shall be my wife. Rather hasty I allow, but necessity knows no law."

"But Willie, I do not know," she said, shrinking back.

The young man looked at her, his face growing stern.

"Then you are false, Marian Wild. You wish to wed Gilbert Owen, not me. He, the rich old millionaire, can give you servants, diamonds and luxury. I, the lover of your youth, nothing but a strong arm, a warm heart and a humble home. Well, go on, it is only the old story of a woman's treachery over again."

He turned to leave her but she clung to him passionately, despairately.

"No, no, take me with you. I will do whatever you say. I will be your wife. Oh Willie, I love you with my whole heart."

"My dearest, mine in life and in death, my wife, my own for ever and ever—come."

He passed his arm around her and drew her down the storm beaten path, in the thick gloom. A moment later and they were side by side in the carriage driving rapidly into town.

CHAPTER II.

Gilbert Owen's wedding day dawned in storm, and wind, and rain—dawned to find the cage empty, the bird flown. The bride elect had fled—why or whither who could say? There was no note left to explain—no clue to be found to her mysterious disappearance. If the earth had opened and swallowed her, she could not have vanished more completely.

Aunt Maria went into hysterics, that being the proper thing to do—through no great love for the wilful, lost girl, but because something of the kind was expected of her, and because she really felt keenly Gilbert Owen's disappointment.

As for the luckless bridegroom, he suffered and made no sign. He had loved her with a love as strong as it had been vain, he had lost her and he bore it with silent grief.

"If I only knew her fate, and that she were safe and well, I could bear it, but this suspense. Oh my poor little Marian," he groaned once to her aunt.

Aunt Maria had her own ideas, remembering that last interview. The haggard face, the reckles words, the last repentance meant something besides the girlish talk, after all. Under that stormy sea, rolling for ever mysterious and grand under the windows, she had gone in the storm and the darkness to meet her lost lover.

"She was mad enough and impulsive enough, and daring and foolhardy enough for anything," Aunt Maria said to the silent, despairing bridegroom, "that infatuated child, and I know just as well as I am alive that she has committed suicide I saw it in her face last night."

But Marian, mourned for as dead, was very far from death. Sailing over the sea with her sailor husband—her handsome, gallant Willie—she was happy as the day was long. Singing blithely on the sunlit deck, as their vessel glided along over tropic seas, she had no thought even for the man left behind in her native land, and whose heart she had almost broken. Willie was beside her—the lover of her girlhood, her lover husband now—and the world was Edan and she the happiest Eve that ever laughed in the sunshine.

So the years followed one another until three were gone, and a tiny baby girl toddled about the deck of papa's ship after mamma Marian. She had been over the world—through the tropics, across the wild Atlantic, thro' holy Palestine—and was now once more back in her native land. Handsomer, happier, brighter, statelier—that was all the changes these three years had wrought.

"My darling girl will stay at home this trip," Willie said, "as it is my last and baby Marian is too delicate to cross the Atlantic this winter weather. Only three months my love, and then to settle down with my wife and birdling in some cozy little country home."

So they parted—their first parting since the wedding day. Marian clung to him in passionate womanly weeping.

"I wish I were going, I wish I were going, Oh Willie, I am afraid, I am afraid."

"Little goosey, of what?"

"I do not know, but I feel as though something was about to happen—as if I should never see you again my own Willie."

"Foolish Marian, but you shall—Living or dead, I think I should have to come back to you. Keep up heart, and good bye."

Captain Joyce sailed that day for Liverpool, and Marian waited in the house where he had left her nursing her sickly child—waited in fear and trembling now—but it was wild wintry weather, with singing winds and fierce storms on the ocean.

Three weeks, and news came—the news she had trembled to hear. In a wild, wild storm; the ship had gone down, and every soul on board had perished.

She read the cold, brief newspaper paragraph in white, still despair, sitting by her child's dying bed. Before morning broke Marian Joyce was childless as well as widowed.

Three months later, a worn, pale creature came to Aunt Maria, as she sat in her comfortable parlor—wan and thin enough to be the ghost Aunt Maria thought her.

"Marian! great heavens!"

"Yes, aunt, Marian comes back poor and friendless and dying, to see if you will take her in."

"And you didn't drown yourself after all?" auntie cried aghast.

"Drown myself, no. Did you think so?"

I have been married, and I am a widow. Willie's——

A then Marian Joyce told her story humbly and brokenly, with pale trembling lips, and downcast face, very unlike the Marian of old.

"I have been very ill," she said in conclusion. "I think I have not long to live, and I have come to my old home to die."

Aunt Maria's womanly heart was touched, and Marian was kissed, and cried over, and forgiven. Even by Gilbert Owen, who came to see her at once, and in whose heart all the old love revived at the sight of the pale, patient face. And Marian did not die as the months passed; strength and life returned, and new life began to beat strongly in the almost dead heart in her old home.

And with the new life came new hope to Gilbert Owen.

Before the second anniversary of her widowhood came round, he had asked her to marry him once more.

"I love you better than ever, Marian," he pleaded. "I have loved you so long and so well, and my life is so lonely. Surely I deserve some reward."

"But I don't love you, Mr. Owen," Marian replied, very sadly. "I never can love any one like that again.—You cannot take a wife who tells you this?"

But Mr. Owen thought otherwise, and pleaded so hard, with Aunt Maria to back him that finally Marian yielded, and said yes for the second time.

That evening she wandered down in the ghostly dusk to the seashore, as she had once done before, when Willie came back. The evening was wild and wet, as that had been; and standing on the slippery boulder, she looked seaward, almost expecting to see the reproachful face of her drowned husband rising white from the black waves. At the thought a cold breath of air passed like a waft from the churchyard, and there beside her, at the place of tryst, she saw, or her vivid fancy painted to her, a pallid, bloodless shadow, the shadow of her lost husband.

"Living or dead, I promised I would come back," the well-known voice said, "here I am, Marian, you are mine, and must never be another's."

* * * *

Aunt Marian missing Marian an hour later, when Gilbert Owen called, in dire alarm they set off in search of her. Down to the shore, her favorite haunt, as they knew, they hurried, and there they found her, lying on her face on the ground, wet through, senseless, and white as death.

They bore her home and laid her on the bed, from which she never rose.—Whether it was an optical illusion, brought on by excited and strained imagination, or whether the spirit of the dead husband really stood before her, in the stormy twilight, it was all the same. On the day she was to have married Gilbert Owen, they buried Marian Joyce.

Twelve hours without Legs.

At the battle of Wagram, in 1809, a soldier was engaged in the fray, the ranks around him were terribly thinned by shot, and at sunset he was nearly isolated. While reloading his musket, he was shot down by a cannon ball. His impression was that the ball had passed through legs, below his knees, separating them from the thighs as he suddenly sank down, shortened, as he believed. The trunk of the body fell backwards on the ground, and the senses were completely paralysed by the shock. Thus he lay, motionless, among the wounded and the dead during the night, not daring to move a muscle, lest the loss of blood should be fatally increased. He felt no pain, but this was attributed to the stunning effect of the shock to the brain and nervous system. At early dawn he was aroused by one of the surgeons, who came around to help the wounded. "What's the matter with you my good fellow?" inquired the surgeon. "Ah, touch me tenderly," replied the wounded man, "I beseech you; a cannon ball has carried off both my legs." The surgeon examined the limbs referred to, and then, giving him a good shake' said, with a joyous laugh "Get up with you; you have nothing the matter with you." The man immediately sprung up, in utter astonishment, and stood firmly upon the legs he thought he had lost forever. He then remarked to the surgeon—"I had indeed been shot down by the cannon ball, but instead of passing through my legs, as I firmly believed it had, the ball passed under my feet and blowed a hole in the earth, at least a foot in depth, into which my feet instantly sank, thus giving me the idea that I had been thus shortened by the loss of my legs."

The enterprising individual who is organizing a brass band of twenty women says if they learn half as many "airs" as they put on, the experiment cannot fail of being a success.

There was once an independent old lady who, speaking of Adam's naming all the animals, said she didn't think he deserved any credit for naming the pig—any one would know what to call him.

After twenty-five years' medical experience, we have never met with a remedy worthy of dependence in any disease of the lungs, until the discovery of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites. This article really reliable, and successful in a majority of cases.

A large volume would not contain the mass of testimony which has accumulated in favor of "Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" as a safe, efficient and reliable remedy in curing coughs, colds and pulmonary disease. Many of the cures are truly wonderful.

An Irishman called at a drug store to get a bottle of "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" for the rheumatism; the druggist asked him in what part of the body it troubled him most. "Be me soul," said he, "I have it in every bone and corner of me."

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 2ND, 1873.

OURSELVES.

This issue commences the eighteenth volume of the "Examiner," since changed from the "Despatch."

The readers of the paper will remember that about eighteen years ago, the late Mr. Sawers changed the name, but the material, ownership, and office as well as the principles on which the Despatch had been conducted remained the same. The Examiner is therefore the oldest paper in the County, by several years.

About seven years ago it came into the hands of the present proprietor, and during that period it has more than doubled its subscription list, very few names having been withdrawn since—not an average of four a year.

The paper commences the year 1873 with brighter prospects than at any period heretofore.

During the year just closed, new presses and type were added to the office, and we have just received the invoice of a large quantity of News, Jobbing, and Fancy Type, and also of another New Fast Power Press, which will enable us to turn out work more promptly, and in the best style of the printer's art.

The outlay for the above has reached the sum of $2,000, which necessarily requires that we appeal to our numerous friends to aid us in making this effort to maintain the Examiner as the best paper in the County, and we feel assured from the support already accorded us, that we will not be disappointed.

In the past the Examiner has been the advocate of Liberal Reform principles, and this it will continue to be; but while claiming the utmost freedom of thought and action, politically and religiously, it will willingly accord the same to all others, entirely free from national or religious bias.

Our circulation is now very large, and is daily increasing, so that as an advertising medium it is equal to any in the County, and we are ready, at any time, to show our list to any advertiser and let him count and judge for himself. As we have no desire to detract from others, we can therefore afford to permit them, undisturbed, to write and talk as they please.

In a few days we will issue an Almanac to each of our subscribers, and as this will be in a style to be carefully kept by them, as a record of events of the year, it will be an excellent advertising medium and as we have room for two or three more advertisements, any one wishing to avail himself of it can do so any time during the present week.

We beg to return our sincere thanks to all those who have favored us with their patronage in the past, and to solicit a continuance thereof. No effort will be spared during the year to secure the latest and fullest information on all subjects of local and general interest to the public, and we feel assured that our labor will not be spent in vain.

We also solicit all those friendly to us, and who wish to have their local paper one of the best in the Dominion to send us all items of interest transpiring through out the County. This can be done at our expense, and will be received as a favor.

Again thanking our friends for the favors extended to us, we wish them many happy years.

The Anniversary services of the Wesleyan Methodist Church Sabbath School will be held on Sabbath First.

Commencing at the hour of nine o'clock in the morning and continuing till five o'clock in the afternoon and that Jonathan Stephenson shall be Returning Officer.

Christmas and New Year passed off very quietly. Many of the stores were closed, and business was generally suspended. The weather was very fine, and the streets were crowded with people, who seemed to enjoy themselves in their own way. The Salvation Army were out in force, and their meetings were well attended. The Volunteer Band played in the Market Square on Christmas Day, and the Town Band on New Year's Day. The Fire Brigade had a procession on New Year's Day, and the Hook and Ladder Company had a procession on Christmas Day. Prospectus for 1873.—Sixth Year.

THE ALDINE.

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost, and then there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when the "Aldine" assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support a sincere effort in the cause of Art.—The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as enfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of the "Aldine."

The publishers are authorised to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition—"The Aldine" will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest, avoiding such as have become familiar through photographs or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of "The Aldine" can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparalleled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to "The Aldine," who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14x20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep "The Aldine" out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a $5 periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for "The Aldine" itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos see Nov'r issue of "The Aldine.")

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT will continue under the care of Mr. Richard Henry Stoddart, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of "The Aldine" always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS:

$5 per annum in advance with oil chromos free.

"The Aldine" will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of James Sutton & Co.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Sores, Felons, Pimples, Erysipelas, Inflamed Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Sunburn, Breasts, Itch, Scald Head, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures deafness by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples this acts like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 6, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to let me take your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It heals it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proud flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made to the Legislature of Ontario at its next session for a Charter to construct a Railway, having its Southern terminus at the Village of Trenton, and proceed northward by the valley of the Trent River to the Iron mines in the Townships of Marmora and Belmont, and thence northward to intersect the contemplated Pacific Railway in the valley of the Ottawa, with power to extend from Trenton, southward to Wellers Bay, on Lake Ontario, also with power to connect with the County of Prince Edward Railway, the Grand Junction Railway, and the Quebec and Ontario Railway.

The said Railway to be called the Trent Valley Railway.

Trenton, Nov. 21, 1872. 48-6in

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE GREATEST KNOWN REMEDY

Job Moses' Periodical Pills.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all excess and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

TO MARRIED LADIES.

It is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

These Pills should not be taken by Females during the FIRST THREE MONTHS of Pregnancy, as they are sure to bring on Miscarriage, but at any other time they are safe.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affection, Pains in the Back and Limbs, on slight exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, the Pills will effect a cure when all other means have failed; and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel, antimony, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions in the pamphlet around each package, which should be carefully preserved

JOB MOSES', NEW YORK, SOLE PROPRIETOR

$1.00 and 12½ cents for postage, enclosed to Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., general agents for the Dominion, will ensure a bottle, containing over 50 pills, by return mail.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier, alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only twenty-five cents per bottle.

Newcastle, C. W
General Agents for Canada

Sold at Peterborough by Dr. Taylor, A. W. Kemp, Wm. Comber and Ormond & Walsh, Keene by A. Campbell, Campbell McNeil & Co., C. Britton, Lindsay, and all Medicine Dealers.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN AN INVALID for years with some Chronic Wasting Disease of the Lungs, Heart, Liver, or Kidneys, you need not flatter yourself that medicine is going to cure you immediately. Repair goes on slowly, and time is necessary to build up a broken-down constitution. Do not take every nostrum you read about, nor follow the advice of every friend who has a specific to offer you. Procure a remedy scientifically prepared, that is the result of experience, that has a large amount of evidence of sensible people in favor of its reliability, and persevere in its use until the whole system undergoes a radical improvement and health is restored. Dr. WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALASAYA, a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, will meet your most sanguine expectations, as it combines everything necessary to perfect digestion, Nutrition, and the formation of healthy Blood, and to vitalize all the organs and tissues of the body. Sold at $1.00 per bottle.

SORROW.

BY HARRIET P. STAFFORD.

Sorrow be all my sport!
Since here no breast
Lends me its own support
And heaven's rest.

Sorrow be all my stay!
For now no arm
Upholds me as I sway
From storm to calm

Sorrow be all my grace!
No smile there is
To ever sun my face
When flung from his.

O sorrow! Lift thy sword,
Whose lightnings shine!
Destroy me at a word,
For I am thine.

FALLEN LEAVES.

BY SIDNEY HYDE.

Though the Year must die,
And June's roses lie
Scattered with pale petals on the ground,
Shall not Spring once more
Come fair as before,
Fresh with bursting buds and blossoms crowned.

Though bright dreams be fled,
While sweet hopes lie dead,
That our lives with glowing garlands bound
Shall not the New Year,
Full of joyous cheer,
Bring us dearer pleasures in its round?

Roses come again,
We, alas, in vain,
Sadly for our golden hours yearn,
Dreams once passed away,
With the dead To-day,
Shall not bless us with their glad return.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A plain loaf—a visit to the prairies.

Plain sauce—an interview with an American hotel clerk.

To make a good jam—ask any Grand Trunk conductor.

To boil a tongue—drink some scalding coffee.

To make a good brief—leave a letter from one of your old sweethearts where your wife can find it.

How to make an Indian loaf—give him a gallon of whiskey.

How to make good puffs—send the publisher fifty cents a line for them.

How to make pi—jostle a printer's elbow.

To 'bone' a turkey—take it when the poulterer is not looking.

To corn beef—feed your cattle in the brewery.

How to select a foul—ask the umpire at a baseball match.

How to dress boots—a horse-whip is a good thing to dress boots with, especially if they be 'dead beats.'

An old Scotch lady had an evening party, where a young man was present who was about to leave for an appointment in China. As he was exceedingly extravagant in his conversation about himself, the old lady said as he was leaving, "Tak' guid care o' yoursel' when ye are awa', for mind ye they eat peppies in China."

A timid resident of Ridgefield, Connecticut, being unexpectedly called upon to address a Sunday school, rose to his feet in some confusion, and after several desperate but vain attempts to say something appropriate, hoarsely muttered, "Dear children, never fool with powder."

A Down-East editor, who was keeping a record of big beets, announces at last that "the beet that beat the beet that beat the other beet, is now beaten by a beet that beats all the beets, whether the original beet, the beet that beat the beet, or the beet that beat the beet that beat the other beet."

An absent minded man entered a Troy shoe store the other day, and wanted his boy measured for a pair of shoes. "But where is the boy?" said the dealer "Shunder!" said the man, "I've left the boy at home. I'll go and bring him," and off he started for his house, six blocks away.

In the Paris theatres professional laughers are employed who engage to indulge in the most contagious hilarity, the time of their merriment being previously arranged. A few nights since the programme was changed without the laugher's knowledge, and when he burst forth uproariously in the midst of a touching couplet about Alsace and Lorraine, the audience nearly killed him.

A lost cow was lately advertised by the following notice, which was posted on trees and fences near the owner's dwelling: "Strayed or Stolen—A large Red Cow, with Yaller Specks on her left side and a pair of white specks on her right ear. She is about seven or eight years and belongs to a poor widow with a short tale. Ten dollars will be given to any body who will turn her to Newark, June 17, 1970?3."

The negro is proving his capacity for getting a living in a variety of ways. A full-blooded specimen was caught a few days ago extracting bank bills from a bank through a small aperture by means of a long wire with a bit of tar on the end of it. He has a crude idea of the wire pulling necessary to extract funds from the banks, and only needs cultivation to accomplish it in the regular Wall street method.

A young beau, city born and bred, went out to a "big meeting" in an adjoining county. Being a stranger, he inquired of a gentleman, "Can you tell me the name of that very ugly girl on the end of that bench?" "Yes sir; she is my sister." "Oh! I do not mean that one, the next one?" "She is my sister, too." "Oh! not your sister, the next one, that unparalleled ugly one." "They are all my sisters, all on that bench. I have seven sisters." The youngster was fairly caught So he said: "Well, sir, I think you have more ugly sisters than any good looking man I ever saw."

Who was Richard the Third before he was "himself again?"

What is the difference between a farmer and a bottle of whiskey? One husbands the corn, and the other corns the husband.

A Cincinnati youth advertises for a situation, saying that: "Work is not so much of an object as good wages."

Irate parent to dandy son—"Oh! yer don't want to go into business, don't yer. O! yer want to be a clerk in the post-hoffice do yer? Post hoffice indeedy Why, all you're fit for is to stand hout-side with yer tongue hout for people to wet the stamps against."

An old philosopher hath said, "The woman that maketh a good pudding in silence is better than one that maketh a tart reply.

Consumption, so prevalent and so fatal to dreaded as the scourge of our race, and yet in the former stages all pulmonary complaints may be readily controlled by "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers." They will relieve the worst coughs in a few minutes and have a most beneficial influence on bronchial and pulmonary organs—but they must be taken in time. Public speakers and singers will also derive great benefit by using them. Sold by all druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the swell of Oils which they may contain.

The Carrier Boy's Address.

With the silent New Year's dawning
As the old one glides away,
And the dim and misty future
All allures from time's decay.

I come with New Year's greeting,
Hopeful as the new-born day,
That our usual friendly meeting
Shall not lack the usual PAY.

War, so cruel and relentless
Curses not our fruitful earth,
Where the war horse proud'd so proudly,
Are the scenes of peace and mirth.

True, the scenes of ancient grandeur
Bear the marks of Time's decay,
And the states of Greek and Roman
Show how nations pass away.

Men still wrangle over quibbles,
Non-essential, to our mind,
And they tax the mint and commain,
While to weighter matters blind.

Both in state and church what labor?
For their country? or their creed?
As true patriots; or for siller?
Don't forget Gehazi's deed.

While we prosper, all cares us,
In our daily course we're told,
If by men we'd be admired,
We must own or borrow gold.

Neither bench, nor bar, nor schoolmen,
Are quite free from love of gain,
About equity they prattle,
Yet their end is just the same.

It is gold; then do not wonder
At my race for wealth and gear.
O, how the "quarter" glitters!
May you have a happy year,
Is the wish of your CARRIER BOY.

A Terrible Tragedy.

A MAN STRIKES HIS WIFE WITH A LAMP AND SHE IS BURNED TO DEATH.

The town of Sarnia was thrown into an intense and painful state of excitement a week ago last Tuesday night, about nine o'clock, under the following melancholy circumstance:

At the hour mentioned the cry of fire was raised, the spot indicated being the residence of Mr. Arthur Smith, north east corner of Lochiel and Euphemia streets. On arriving on the scene we found the fire nearly subdued it being confined to a portion in the hall, which afforded an opportunity of extinguishing it with a few pailsful of water, and with but trifling damage to the house.

But it was not the fire in the house that caused the large crowd of people to linger in the street after it was overcome, but the knowledge communicated in bated breath and received by many in tears, that Mrs. Smith must have been fatally burnt, in a manner which sent a cold shudder through them all.

We learned from those who were first to render assistance, that Mr. A. Smith, who has been for some years the victim of intemperance—on several occasions verging closely on delirium tremens often destroying valuable property and furniture in his rage—was on the night in question extremely violent, that he was constantly calling for more drink, giving way to terrible fits of passion when refused.

Mrs. Smith and her cousin, Miss Fisher, were sitting in the dining room and Mr. Smith in his own room on the left side of the hall, his demands for liquor becoming more and more determined, his wife, fearing that he would commit some mischief, went into his room to pacify him. She told him he should have some wine in half an hour. A dining room lamp was burning on a small table near the window. The maniac—for he was nothing else—seized it. Mrs. Smith divining his object, called to Miss Fisher to run for help. Miss Fisher rushed out and gave the alarm. As she passed out of the hall door she saw a flash and heard some one fall heavily on the floor.

What took place at this moment can be only inferred from circumstance, and the inference is that Mr. Smith struck his wife with the lamp on the back of the head as she turned to get away from him, that she fell forward on her face stunned with the blow, the oil of the lamp blazing in her hair and over her dress.

Miss Fisher alarmed the neighbors, who rushed to the house.

In the meantime the servant girl, Fanny Foster, who was in the kitchen, hearing the noise, rushed in, and to her horror found her mistress all in flames lying on her face on the floor as above stated. She attempted to quench the flames, and in doing so got her hands badly burnt.

The neighbors by this time came to the sufferer's relief; they raised her up and extinguished the flames, tearing off such portions of her dress as were still smoking. She was able, with the aid of two women supporting her, to walk to Mrs. Fisher's. Her screams on her way thither are described as hear trending, those who heard them, say they will haunt them till their dying day.

Medical aid was promptly on hand and everything was done that skill and affection could suggest to relieve the sufferings of the patient. From the first the medical men entertained no hopes of her recovery, for the burning was too severe. Her beautiful hair was singed to a crisp, and her features destroyed beyond recognition.

She lingered until Thursday morning about a quarter past twelve o'clock when death put an end to her sufferings. Her last words were her husband's name pronounced three times. She died on his birthday, and the anniversary of their wedding day, in the 28th year of her age, deeply regretted by all who knew the goodness of her heart, cheerful disposition and amiable temper.

About 11 o'clock a.m. on Thursday, Coroner Fraser summoned a jury to investigate the cause of her death. The gentlemen composing the inquest were the most respectable and intelligent Coroner's Jury we have ever seen in this country. They met in the house of the deceased, and, after a most searching inquiry, returned a verdict of manslaughter against the madman that had committed the deed, who, we may remark, had been sent to gaol the day previous as a means of security to himself and others on a formal charge of assault.

He is now committed by the Coroner's warrant on a charge of manslaughter, for which he will be tried at the next Assizes in March or April.

We learn he is gradually returning to the reason with which God so well endowed him—for he is a man of excellent parts and good culture, and we are told his agony and remorse are terrible. We must do him justice—when he was himself he was a most affectionate husband, and doted upon her whose young life, in his drunken frenzy, he so ruthlessly destroyed.

The deceased having been our nearest neighbor, a family relation, and a daily visitor at our house, it is with the utmost pain that we have been urged, by our position as a journalist to write forgoin.—Ex.

A CALIFORNIA STORY OF A TELEGRAPH OPERATOR

The following story originated we believe with the San Francisco Post. We give it in the words of the California writer:

Many amusing stories have been told of the festive freaks of telegraph operators who whenever afforded an opportunity for the display of their penchant for a good joke, rarely fail to improve it. Almost everybody has heard of the operator in an eastern city, who on a hot summer day, desiring to borrow a chew of tobacco from one of his fellows seated in the same room, instead of making known his request by words of mouth, chose what he deemed the less exhausting manner of inditing a dispatch, which transmitted over a circuit of upwards of two thousand miles in two [illegible] to the surprise of the other chap, who blandly shied his tobacco box at the head of the jokist.

It often happens that telegraphers are called into service at the representation of a stage play, in which occurs what is known as a "telegraph scene," such as the one shown in Byron's "Across the Continent," or Boucicault's "Long Strike," and it is then that the operator behind the scenes manages to amuse himself by talking to the fraternity in the audience, unknown of course to most of those present, who find no meaning in the click of the instrument.

As an evidence that the operators of our city are not behind hand in the matter of having their fun, the following is related of Jim —— a well known attache of the Western Union:

During the theatrical season of last year, the drama of the "Long Strike," was produced at one of our theatres, and for the manipulation of the telegraph instrument, which plays an important part in the leading act of the play, Jim was engaged.

His position was such that he could see the audience without being seen, and when, upon taking his position, discovering in the audience a brother operator from Memphis, by name Pepper—who had that day arrived in town—he determined to have a little sport on his own account.

Accordingly when the time came for the sending of the first despatch, Jim loudly sounded on his machine, "How are you, Pepper?"

The quick professional ear of Pepper caught the words instantly, and wondering 'who the duce it was' straightened up and stared at the stage as if he would have given two dollars and a half to know something more.

"Pepper how's your mother?" came from the instrument, and Pepper, thoroughly mystified, tapped confidently to his fair partner to express his utter astonishment at the most singular circumstance.

As luck would have it, the auditorium held quite a delegation of telegraphers, who by this time saw that Jim was up to one of his old tricks and with one accord they began to look about the theatre for Pepper.

Jim saw the effect of his experiment and enjoyed himself hugely.

Pepper hadn't got through telling his girl all about it when there came another message.

"That will not do, old Pepper, I know you well, and you had not better be fooling that confiding creature with any soft nonsense."

This roused the telegraph boys to the very pitch of curiosity, and many of them stood up, gazing longingly about them as if their only object in life was to discover Pepper.

Pepper felt that they knew him, and the confusion which had been gradually covering his handsome features grew into mortification when he saw so many eyes evidently levelled at him, and at last culminated in his withdrawal from the theatre.

But Jim was bound to give him a parting shot, and as he faded from view he heard borne to his ears, "Good bye, Pepper. Put your trust in Providence, but keep your powder dry."

Those who appreciated the affair were much amused, and so indeed, was the victim himself, when on the following day, he learned who had so neatly captured him.

Meeting Death.

Bonaparte died in his military garb and his boots, which he had ordered to be put on a short time previous to his dissolution.

Augustus Cesar chose to die in a standing position, and was careful in arranging his person and dress for the occasion.

Siward, Earl of Northumberland, when at the point of death, quitted his bed, put on his armour, saying "that it became not a man to die like a beast."

A more remarkable instance is that of Maria Theresa, of Austria, who a short time before she breathed her last having fallen into a slight slumber one of the ladies waiting in attendance remarked that her Majesty appeared to be asleep. "Then, sleep it [illegible]

Polite Falsehoods.

All nations count all other nations whose vocabulary is more florid, and whose professions of friendship are more profuse than their own, insincere in proportion to the difference they make in the mode of saying the same thing.

If an Eastern says, "I am your sacrifice," and a Spaniard puts all he has under your feet, and a Frenchman swears he is enchanted at the honor of seeing you, and an Irishman calls you his dear friend, and protests by his soul that he is more glad of your company than if he had got a fortune, they all mean exactly the same thing as the Englishman's "My dear, Smith is coming to dine here to-morrow. He's an awful bore, I know, but I was obliged to ask him, so let's have a decent dinner for the old curmudgeon." And when Smith comes, and is received with distinction by both host and hostess, they enact their falsehood to such perfection that he has not the least idea he was the occasion of a conjugal quarrel just twenty-four hours ago, and that both had lamented the hard social necessity they were under of asking him to dinner at all, though the lady, perhaps, had been the more angry and outrageous of the two. To make up for it, she is probably the smoother and more gracious when the unwelcome guest does arrive, that being the way of women in general.

IS HE RICH?

How often the first question asked respecting the suitor of a daughter is this.

"Is he rich?"

Yes, he abounds in wealth, but does that afford any evidence that he will make a kind and affectionate husband?

"Is he rich?"

Yes, his clothing is purple and fine linen, and he fares sumptuously every day, but can you infer from this that he is virtuous?

"Is he rich?"

Yes, he has thousands floating on every ocean; but do not riches sometimes "take to themselves wings and fly away?"

And you consent that your daughter shall marry a man who has not anything to recommend him but his wealth?

Ah, beware! The gilded bait sometimes covers a barded hook.

Ask not, then,

"Is he rich?" but "Is he virtuous?" Ask not if he has wealth, but has he honor? And do not sacrifice your daughter's peace for money.

A LEAP YEAR FROLIC.

Almost every week for the last two years, says the Free Press, a husband has arrived in Detroit in search of a runaway wife, or a wife in search of a runaway husband, but the meanest case on record came to light yesterday. A man named Charles Williams, living at Rapid River, in the northern part of Michigan, arrived here with five children, the eldest of whom is only twelve years old and the youngest unable to walk. He was taking them to Dresden, Ontario, to give them in charge of his relatives, his wife having eloped four or five days ago. Mr. Williams is a well-to-do farmer, about forty-five years of age, and had a neighbor named William Rickman. Williams has five children and Rickman has four. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Rickman are both about forty years old, and very plain women. Notwithstanding old age and lack of beauty, Rickman fell in love with his neighbors wife, and the final result was an elopement, for which they had been making preparations for two or three months. The wife secured all the money she could lay hands on, and Rickman sold off considerable of his personal property and put a mortage on his farm. Last Thursday morning, while Mr. Williams was absent, his wife packed up her clothing got the children to [illegible] bed-rooms, and [illegible] wood [illegible] his absence [illegible]

By-Law No. ——

BY-LAW to aid and assist the Ontario [illegible] Railway Company by the granting of Bonds to the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company to the amount of One hundred and fifty thousand dollars payable as hereinafter mentioned and for the purpose of raising the said sum of money by the issue of Debentures therefor and to authorize the levying of a special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest thereon.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to aid and assist in the construction of The Ontario and Quebec Railway by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars payable as hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolved object it will be necessary for the said Municipality to cause to be issued Debentures to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the said Municipality and to dispose thereof in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred dollars to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality irrespective of any future increase of the same and also irrespective of any [illegible] to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned or any part thereof according to the last revised and equalized Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality being for the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy one was the sum of three millions eight hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred and thirty one dollars

And whereas the amount of the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is for principal the sum of forty two thousand dollars and for interest the sum of thirty thousand one hundred and twenty dollars and there is no part of such interest in arrear,

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and interest as hereinbefore mentioned it will require an equal annual special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough.

1.—That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the County of Peterborough for the time being to cause any number of Debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than one hundred dollars each and not exceeding in the aggregate the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough and be signed by the Warden and the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

2.—That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-Law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality and shall have attached thereto coupons for the payment of the interest thereon.

3.—That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the day hereinafter appointed for this By-Law to take effect which interest shall be payable on the first days of January and July in each and every year at the office of the Treasurer aforesaid.

4.—That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said Debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon an equal special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said Debentures.

5.—That this By-Law shall take effect and come into operation upon the twenty ninth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy three.

6.—That the Debentures so to be issued as aforesaid to the amount of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be delivered by the Warden of the said County of Peterborough for the time being to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company upon and subject to the terms and conditions following that is to say:

(1) That the proposed Railway of the said Company shall traverse the County of Peterborough from the Eastern limit thereof at the township line between the Counties of Hastings and Peterborough and pass through the Township of Belmont and the Town of Peterborough in the said County and thence to the Western boundary of the said County.

(2) That their said proposed road shall as to the construction of that part thereof within the County of Peterborough be actually and bona fide commenced on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three and shall be wholly completed between the cities of Ottawa and Toronto on or before the first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy seven.

(3) That the charges for freight by the said proposed Railway to and from any point within the County of Peterborough aforesaid and the City of Montreal shall not at any time exceed the charges for freight for the time being on the said proposed Railway to and from the City of Toronto and the said City of Montreal.

(4) That the said Company will erect and maintain their principal construction and repairing shops for that portion of their proposed Railway between the said Cities of Montreal and Toronto at the said Town of Peterborough,

(5) That Debentures to the amount of seventy five thousand dollars shall be so delivered over to the said Company whenever the said proposed Railway shall have been completely graded and bridged through the said County of Peterborough in the direction hereinbefore indicated and subject to the conditions herein contained and whenever the said Company shall have given security by their bond or covenant with a penalty to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the performance of the above conditions numbered three and four and that Debentures to the remaining sum of seventy five thousand dollars be delivered to the said Company when their said proposed Railway shall have been completed between the Cities of Ottawa and Toronto aforesaid Provided that the said Municipality may in its discretion instead of delivering the said Debentures as aforesaid as the whole or any part of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars sell and dispose of the said Debentures or any part thereof and pay over to the said Company in cash the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars or any part thereof.

(6) That the said Company shall not be entitled to and shall not receive interest upon the said Debentures or any of them except only from the time at which they shall be delivered to the said Company pursuant to the provisions of this By-law.

(7) That this By-law shall be inoperative and of no effect and no part of the said Debentures shall be handed over to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company unless the Municipality of the Town of Peterborough shall before the day hereinbefore appointed for the coming into force of this By-law have duly passed a By-law of such Municipality giving aid by way of Bonus to the said Company for the construction of such proposed Railway to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars.

7.—That unless the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway as to that part thereof within the said County of Peterborough be commenced as hereinbefore mentioned on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three this By-law shall be of no force or effect.

8.—That the votes of the Electors of the said Municipality shall be taken on this proposed By-law on Saturday the twenty-fifth day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three at the following places and before the following Returning Officers:

PETERBOROUGH, JAN. 3rd, 1873.

The Orangemen have really decided to have a new Church in Mr. Clarke's lot. We understand it is to cost $30,000 and to be ready next fall.

This Town. They are also erecting a new Church in the South Ward, smaller, but also beautiful. It is designed by Mr. Belcher, Architect, of this Town, whose good taste will insure a neat structure.

NOTICE.—We would refer our readers to Macdonald & Elder's, new advertisement of this week. Having done a good business during the season, they are now offering the balance of their winter goods at greatly reduced prices for this month.

That handsome building lot lying between the residences of T. M. Fairbairn, Esq., M. P. P., and Mr. Murray Smith, on Reid Street, is to be sold to-day, 9th of January, at 1 P. M., on the ground. This is the choicest lot now available for building in Peterborough. We hope it may fall into the hands of some one who will have taste enough to improve its natural beauty by sightly buildings

THE LOCKS BRIDGE.—The Town and County are at loggerheads as to whose duty it is to rebuild the bridge at the Locks. Meanwhile the Lawyers are making money and the business men of the town are suffering. The County only asked the Town for a few hundred dollars. The issue of the present law proceedings is anything but hopeful. Would it not be much wiser for the parties interested more immediately to subscribe a few dollars each. Let the Town give its five or six hundred dollars and the County will do the rest and rebuild the bridge, thus saving costs, time and fellowship, and letting the travel from the south find its old channel. Depend upon it this course will be the cheapest and best in the end.

SALE OF PROPERTY.—The old "Foley" place, one acre, has been purchased by Mr. Ullyot, at $5,500. As the buildings on it are not of great value, this is considered a good price. But the truth is that the beautiful building lots on the hills around the town are all picked up. Their fine situations, good soil and healthy atmosphere being now thoroughly appreciated, hence they command handsome prices. When, however, we consider that it costs no more to build on them than on the gravelly flats of the town we don't wonder that a few hundred dollars extra cost for land is treated as a small matter in comparison with the continued enjoyment of a beautiful and healthy home.

PORT HOPE.—Mr. Wright has been elected Mayor over his opponent Mr. Tempest.

COBOURG.—Mr. W. Kerr is re-elected over Mr. Jex.

BELLEVILLE.—Mr. Holden is elected Mayor over Mr. Flint the late Mayor.

ASHBURNHAM.—School Trustees, Messrs Bennett and S. Wright re-elected School Trustees for the ensuing term of office.

TOWN SCHOOL TRUSTEES.—Ward 1, Mr. Barlee. Ward 2, Mr. McClelland. Ward 3, Mr. Edmison. Ward 4, Mr. Rutherford. All elected by acclamation.

CANADIAN MONTHLY.—This excellent Canadian serial for January 1873, has been received, and this number fully sustains the past reputation of the Monthly. As a purely Canadian Enterprise it deserves an extensive patronage if on no other ground. But independent of this it is well edited; its articles articles are written with care, and although perhaps, not meeting the expectations of all parties, in the state, nor have they been entirely non-political, still it has obtained a fair circulation, and ought to be read by all canadians. It can be ordered through Mr. Kidd, or Mr. Menzies, and is only $3 00 a year.

Board of School Trustees.

The Board of School Trustees met on Tuesday evening. Present: Messrs. Scott Edwards, McClelland, Toole, Stevenson, Edmison and Dumble.

In the absence of Dr. Burnham, Mr. Scott was voted to take the Chair.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were then read and confirmed.

The Secretary read a communication from the Department of Education, stating that if reports based on the settlement of the proceeds of the school lot on London Street, had been made to the Department for 1871, it would have caused a difference of $56 in the apportionment for the Protestant and seperate schools for 1872.

Several accounts were then submitted and referred to the Finance Committee with instructions to order their payment if found correct.

On motion of Mr. Toole it was agreed to admit children from Ashburnham on the same terms as if residents of the Town.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Kidd,—The Secretary was instructed to advertise for a Janitor, and also to notify the present Janitor that his services will not be required after one month.

Mr. Kidd gave a verbal report on behalf of himself and Mr. Edmison, as to the state of the school at the last monthly visit, reporting as to the rooms, ventillation, heating and cleanliness.

On motion of Mr. Edwards, seconded by Mr. Dumble,—Messrs. Kidd and Edmison were asked to report to the property committee in writing, and the Property Committee was instructed to make the changes proposed as far as they deem advisable.

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Toole,—That the Education Department at Toronto having advised that the appropriation of the Protestant public schools of Peterboro would have been $56 larger for 1872, had the returns been made to that department. The Secretary is therefore instructed to communicate with the Board of separate school trustees in order that an agreement may be come to as to correct reports both by Protestant and separate school trustees to the Government, and to notify the Education Department as to the result.—Carried.

Mr. Dumble referred to the increased attendance and consequently increased labor in the management of the school, and thought that the Board should not delay to have a full discussion of the advisability of separating the public schools from the Collegiate Institute, and allow each to be managed by its own Board.

Mr. McClelland made a verbal report in regard to eligible sites for ward schools, (one in the South Ward, and one in the North Ward,) and thought very excellent sites could be obtained—one south of Charlotte Street, known as the Clement be taken to secure their erection next summer.

The Board then adjourned.

ELECTIONS.

ASHBURNHAM.

Reeve—H. Calcutt.

Councillors—A. H. Peck, John Burnham, H. Bennett and J. Stratton.

Mr. Ludgate being absent about a month, only returning on Tuesday last, since which he has been ill, gave his opponent a chance against him, and beer, too is stronger than reason. Mr. Brown was defeated by only 5. Although up to half past four he was ahead, but about 30 minutes to close of the Poll, those opposed to union came out strongly, gave plumpers for Mr. Bennett and thus secured him. He, however, is an old Councillor and an honest man. Except on the question of union, all would like to aid him.

TOWN.

Mayor—Geo. A. Cox, by acclamation.

Ward No. 1—A. Smith, J. English, W. Helm, elected.

Mr. Leonard, we regret, is defeated. He should have been elected.

Ward No. 2—J. J. Lundy, D. Hopkins and W. Patterson, elected.

Mr. McLelland and Mr. C. McGrath were defeated, both of these men deserve a place in the Council, but the fickle multitude have elected differently this year.

Ward No. 3—W Toole, W. H. Moore and Dr. H. C. Burritt, elected

Mr. Davis and Mr. Edmison were defeated. The defeated Councillors are as good men as those elected, but local and personal influences have decreed that they shall not represent the ward at present. Mr. Edmison was a good Councillor. Mr. Davis was untried but he would make a good Councillor. The new men elected may do well, we must wait and see.

Ward No. 4 There was no contest Messrs. Denne, Sperry and J. B. Dixon being elected by acclamation.

They are three new men, but will be found intelligent Councillors, we feel certain.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

Reeve—We understand that Mr. Collins is elected over Mr. J. Tully.

Councillors—G. Birney, W. Robson, W. Brownscombe and J. Howden.

Mr. Tulley, we learn, protested against those parties lately annexed to the Town voting, but a note from the Returning Officer informs us that after deducting all of them who did vote. Mr. Collins would still have a majority of 46.

Matchett	136
Kindred	101

The first three are elected.

THE RAILWAY BONUS.

The importance of this subject will be sufficient excuse for again bringing it before our readers and the Ratepayers of the County generally. It is admitted by all that the future prosperity of the Town and County would be largely ensured by the construction of the road, as it would be the great highway from the west for almost all the trade of that vast territory, and in that event must make Peterboro a great Railway Centre for distribution East, West and South, and if the Cobourg road should be extended north, then for distribution northward; to these views there are few dissentients.

The only obstacle in the way to an almost unanimous vote in favor of giving the $150,000 is the existence of the $75,000 By-law, known as the Grand Junction By-law. We are told on every side if this By-law did not exist, there would be an overwhelming vote in favor of the Ontario and Quebec road.

There is not a doubt in the minds of those who know what work is done at Hastings village, that the Grand Junction Company have forfeited their right to claim any portion of the $75,000. But independent of this, the moment the Ontario and Quebec Road is commenced in earnest, there will not be another shovel full moved on the Grand Junction between Campbellford and Peterboro, as to do any more would be throwing away money, and we do not believe that the Belleville people or the contractor will do this foolishly, if they know it.

A glance at the route of the two roads will satisfy any one of the correctness of this supposition as it is not certain what might be done.

Campbellford is 11 miles from Hastings village, and Hastings is 26 miles from Peterboro. The distance to Campbellford from Peterboro is about 37 miles. The cost of building and constructing 37 miles of road would be (at $45,000 per mile) $562,000, or over half a million of dollars. Now supposing that the Government should be foolish enough to give the Company $3,000 a mile, and that they should get the $75,000 from the county, neither of which is probable, the two amounts would only be $186,000. The Company and Contractor would have to find $368,000 somewhere to complete this only 9 miles from Havelock. It is said that the Ontario and Quebec Line will be between Havelock and "the narrows." To unite the Grand Junction and the other road from Campbellford would require only 8 miles of a road, thereby saving the cost of construction of about 29 miles of road, and by getting running powers on the Ontario and Quebec road, from that point, the G. J. Co., could get to Peterboro. The cost of constructing 29 miles of road is $435,000, and by saving this cost of Peterboro, it could be used to extend towards Georgian Bay.—Now suppose that by doing this they should forfeit the $75,000, there would be a net saving of $360,000 to the Company to enable them to proceed towards Georgian Bay, for unless they get to that point, their road will be a financial failure. From these figures, any man can draw his own conclusion, and we doubt not but that they will arrive at the conclusions we have, viz—That in case the Ontario and Quebec road be built, the Grand Junction from Campbellford here will not.

Now as to the debt of the County.

The present liability is $40,000, and interest thereon.

The Directors of the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Ottawa River Railway Company have changed their minds and are applying for amendments to their charter, to change the name and route, and hence are not likely to press to have the $45,000 By-law submitted, just now. It may be urged upon therefor as out of the way, And we may just as reasonably say the same, as we have shown, of the Grand Junction By-law. The question is therefore narrowed to the discussion of the $150,000 By-law.

If the By-law be passed by the people on the 25th instant, it provides for an annual rate of 4½ mills in the dollar to pay interest and sinking fund. This will provide a sinking fund of $7,500 annually. Let this sum be invested annually at six per cent per annum for 10 years and it will amount to $98,350. Invest this $98,350 at compound interest for the next ten years and it will amount to $177,930. By investing it in this way in Dominion securities, it would enable the County Council at the end of ten years to cease to provide any more sinking fund, and thus save $7,500 a year of taxes. The interest would require to be raised about 7 years longer only, as there would be $37,930 in reserve; enough to pay the interest of the three last years. In this way the County would not feel the payments after ten years. It is true, the Council can as soon as there is sufficient in reserve for a year's sinking fund and interest impose so much less rate; but an Act of Parliament providing as above would be better than depending on a vote of the Council, which, to say the least, is not always wise

Wesleyan Methodist Sabbath School Anniversary.

The Anniversary services of the above school were held on Sabbath, and recitations, music and short addresses on Monday evening. This being the week of general prayer there were very few ministers present, they being engaged in conducting the prayer meeting in the Bible Christian Church.

The Rev'd. Mr. Fish, Pastor of the church presided, and after singing by the children, Mr. Wright opened the meeting by prayer.

After some introdestory remarks by Mr. Fish, the Secretary of the Sabbath School, Mr. Thos. H. Robinson, read an excellent report, showing the school as to numbers, library, and average attendance, in a very excellent state and doing a good work.

The total number of pupils for the year was 416
The average attendance 236
The total number of boys 213
The total number of girls 203
Total classes and teachers 27

The finances of the school are healthy, but the report complains of irregularity in attendance of teachers, and, as a consequence, irregular attendance of pupils.

The adoption of the report was moved by Mr. Stratton, with a few remarks as to the general prosperity and efficiency of ...Sabbath School, but one that he would...

...prescribed in all Sabbath Schools, and...
...would be difficult to get clear of. He...
...remarked that there was good cause...
...for rejoicing at the number of scholars...
...who had been brought under the influ-...
...ence of the truth, and had connected...
...themselves with the Church—the number...
...being sixty during the year. This alone...
...was sufficient to encourage the Superin-...
...tendent and Teachers to go on in their...

Mr. Weir, Superintendent of the Bible Christian Sabbath School, seconded the reception of the report in a very appropriate speech, showing the advantages of Sabbath School training, and the duty of christians to aid in it to their utmost. He referred to it as a church work, and as an individual duty, and pointed out the reward in the salvation of the pupils, and in securing their labors for the Church and the Sabbath School.

The exercises were very instructive and pleasant; the children sang several beautiful pieces accompanied by Mr. Bradburn on the Melodeon. But the most interesting part of the evening's exercises was what was called, Building a Monument, in which a large number of the pupil took part, each portion was labeled with some rare christian grace, all ending in the top stone LOVE on which was placed the cross as emblematical of the Saviours work of Love for mankind. On placing each portion a pupil recited several passages of scripture touching on the particular grace or duty, thus storing the minds of the young people with a mine of scripture truths that cannot fail to be of lasting benefit to them.

The President, Mr. Mason, at the close proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs Bradbury and Miss Sanderson for their untiring efforts in preparing the children for the anniversary, and also to Mr. Everett who kindly lent them the excellent Melodeon for the evening. Mr. Dumble seconded this motion, which was unanimously carried.

County Council United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

We clip the following from a file report of a meeting of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, in the Port Hope Times. It is a portion of a report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges:—

"The report of Mr. Dinwoodie, on the Burnets Bridge, states that to make the Bridge efficient, it would require to be removed from low water mark, at a cost of $7,166, the half of which sum, as our proportion of the expense, would be $3,354, in addition to which first cost, we have to consider the wear and tear, and in addition there will have to be a man to attend to the swing portion, at a salary for the summer months, and considering the great length of the bridge, over 1210 feet, and that the whole of the superstructure would, in addition to the annual repair, require to be removed at least every ten or twelve years. Your Committee feel that should they recommend its removal, they would be recommending a future burden much larger than the original cost, and as only a few ratepayers of the Counties would be benefitted by the removal, we feel that we could not honestly recommend any action on the part of these United Counties."

A motion of the Reeve of South Monaghan, seconded by the Reeve of Cavan,—Recommending joint action by the United Counties, and Peterborough was lost.

Public School Examination

The examination of the Auburn school was conducted by a written examination during last week, and on Friday of the same week the pupils were orally examined in their several classes, in the presence of their parents and others. At the close of the examination the general prize consisting of a silver mounted writing stand, which was presented by the teacher to the pupil who obtained the highest marks for the year in attendance and deportment was carried off by James Blackwell, and he also distributed twenty dollars worth of books between forty-seven of his pupils. Those who received prizes were as follows:—

Fourth Class.—James Blackwell, Catherine Akey.

Third Class,—Charles Curtis, Albert E. Curtis, James N. Sutcliffe.

Senior Second Class.—Catherine Reid, Emily Trollope, Ellen M. Reid.

DEAR PUPILS,—I very cordially thank thank you for the kind manner in which you treated me on the day of our public examination by presenting me with a very handsome eight-day clock, writing desk, and volume on the Holy Land. I thank you because I believe its through you and my kind friends and well wishers, if I may so express myself, that I receive these beautiful articles as tokens of friendship and love. From your hands I except them as tokens of esteem and love you have for me as your teacher. Dear pupils, I will look on these presents which you have presented me with as esteemed friends and faithful presenters; trusting that I may be better able to discharge my responsible duties next year than I have done this, I remain your teacher,

G. A. MITCHELL,
Auburn

Council

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Reeve in the Chair.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A Petition signed by Matthew Johnston and twenty-two others, praying that road allowances between the 10th and 11th concessions be opened and cleared of logs before the drain is made, was received and read. On the motion of Mr. Robson, seconded by Mr. Howden, it was resolved—That the Reeve and Councillors Brownscombe and Birney, with the mover and seconder, be appointed a committee to examine said road and report to next meeting of Council.

Orders for salaries were given in to the Treasurer and left with the clerk for distribution. Mr. Stratton, printing, $6.23; Mr. John Lynch $1.50, school rate charged in error; Mr. John McLennan, $1.80 Statute labor performed.

Mr. Charles Brasly informed the Council that he had collected the entire amount of the Resident Roll, and paid same to the Treasurer of the Municipality whose receipts he presented. Of late years there had been many very close approaches towards what Mr Brasly has done, but we believe this is the first time it has been accomplished.

Council adjourned sine die.—COM.

LINES on the YEAR, 1873.

We hope the year now come,
Hath hid for us in store,
Rich blessings that will cheer us
While we its months explore

And hope the past hath taught us
In whom we ought to trust,
Who hath kept death from laying us
Amid our kindred dust

We hope more peace and union
'Mong brothers there shall be,
And all in life prepared
More for eternity.

For the past year hath shown us
Some do what they ought not
Instead of love and kindness,
They gall at each other plot

How many of their actions
Show forth their ruined state.
We pray for grace to change them
Before it be too late.

That lip who reiseth over
Show forth his power to save
Them all from death eternal
Ere they pass to the grave,

Formula by Druggists everywhere. 26-6m

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy to be for the future in both cases used instead of the many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain. Try it once.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive practice most of the time, for nearly twenty years, and found it to be the best remedy ever discovered for the following diseases:—Rheumatism, Piles, Erysipelas, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Sore Throat, Fever Sores, Felons, Fresh Wounds, Salt Rheum, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Chilblains, Sore Lips, Sore Nipples, Scalds, Burns, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Frost Bites, Corns, Bunions, Coughs, Colds, Bruises, Cramps, Cramp in the Stomach, Colic, Bruises, Cramps, Cramp in the Limbs, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In severe cases it has cured in a few days. Piles: If it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allays the heat and pain and subduing the poison. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure in one application only. Let those with Fever Sores, Old Sores, and Ulcers try it, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. Try it. The best Salve ever known for Fever Sores and Sore Nipples. So very infectious, but sure to relieve pain. Sore or Weak Eyes: Rub it on the side nearly, once or twice a day. Corns destroyed by putting in the cone on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples this cure like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

But among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beautiful effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without these invaluable articles as an indispensable ornament for the toilette. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you consented to let me have your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an economy to me. I cannot say as to correct yet along without it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that benefited his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we never found its equal. I use it for a wash basin, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and has tried a cripple to-day, & he has and found a remedy in your Salve. Believe it tested, and taken out the inflammation, proved blood and swelling, and done for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome to it.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send twenty-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Druggist, Sole and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me.

A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

NOTICE.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier, alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phythisic or Asthma, and restores torpid activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only twenty-five cents per bottle.

THE STOMACH AND ITS DERANGEMENTS are the common cause of most of the Chronic Wasting Diseases for which invalids are constantly seeking specifics. When the food is imperfectly digested and assimilated the blood becomes impoverished, and all the organs and tissues of the body debilitated by want of nourishment. This general depravety of the system manifests itself in some constitutions by disease of the Lungs, Heart, Liver or Kidneys, and in others by Scrofulous enlargement of the glands, eruptions of the skin, ulcers of bone and flesh, seminal weakness, irregularities, exhausting discharges, nervous prostration, mental anxiety, neuralgic and rheumatic pains, all of which arise from depraved nutrition. To invigorate the Stomach and perfect digestion, and the formation of healthy Blood Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixer of Phosphates and Calisaya is of great efficacy and reliabiability, being harmless to infant or adult, and prompt and permanent in its effects. Sold by all Druggists.

THE CLYDE.

BY S. KENNEDY.

Let ellos nations sing fondly and grandly
The worth of their rivers in soul-stirring lays
Yet, though we've no wish to be proud or unfriendly,
We sing of a river as worthy of praise
'Tis a fountain of health, and a fountain of wealth,
And a fountain of hard-handed labor beside
'Tis Scotchmen's own river, and nothing can sever
Our Scottish hearts never from loving the Clyde.

O Clydesdale! thy valleys with bleak descends teeming,
And strata of iron, like treasures untold,
Are precious to Scotland beyond our esteeming,
And more to be valued than mines full of gold.
Thy gardens, fruit laden, could vie with old Eden,
The fame of thy draught horse is known far and wide,
And no waters on earth ere gave iron ships birth,
That can equal these launched on the waves of the Clyde.

Proud Glasgow, the Star of our northern nation!
The warehouse of Scotland and workshop beside,
With commerce wide stretching as man's habitation,
The cradle that nursed you, we own, is the Clyde!
Long, long may our shipping, with time onward flitting,
Flow inward and outward with each rolling tide,
While hands o'er the ocean admire with devotion
The labor achieved 'on the banks of the Clyde.

When summer's in bloom, and the brave sons and daughters,
That all the year round weave the web of thy fame,
Seek out sweet retreats by thy more seaward waters,
To spend the scant holiday labor can gain,
Those sweet days of pleasure, their memories treasure,
That are spent 'mong thy banks and thy braes on each side,
They thank the Good Giver, are proud of their river,
And linketh forever their hearts to the Clyde.

Give England the Thames, and give Ireland the Shannon,
Give Germans the Rhine, and give Frenchmen the Loire,
Of the big Mississippi the Yankees may gammon,
Still Clyde to the Scottish is dearer by far.
'Tis a fountain of health, and a fountain of wealth,
And a fountain of hard-handed labor beside
'Tis Scotchmen's own river, and foemen can never
Our Scottish hearts sever from loving the Clyde.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Words cannot heal the wounds that words can make.

Religion of the heart is the heart of religion.

Real glory springs from the silent conquest of ourselves.

There is no fault in poverty, but the minds that think so are faulty.

Nurture your mind with great thoughts. To believe in the heroic makes heroes.

The completion and sum of repentance is a change of life.

Only the love that is life can make life what it ought to be.

The worst misfortune is to be unable to bear misfortune.

There is no poverty so degrading in its effects as that of the heart.

Danger should be feared when distant, and braved when present.

A quiet mind, like other blessings, is more easily lost than gained.

If laughter is the daylight of the soul a smile is its twilight.

A clear conscience is the best law, and temperance the best physic.

Truth is violated by falsehood, and it may be equally outraged by silence.

Many adorn the tombs of those, whom living, they persecuted with envy.

Minds of moderate calibre ordinarily condemn everything which is beyond their range.

A good word is an easy obligation, but not to speak ill requires only silence which costs us nothing.

If we are good, example is the best lustre of virture; if we are bad, shame is the best step to amendment.

Trust him little who praises all, him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent about all.

The fixed purpose sways and bends all circumstances to to its use, as the wind bends the reeds and rushes beneath it.

Flattery is like a flail, which, if not adroitly used, will box your own ears instead of tickling those of the corn.

Say nothing respecting yourself, either good, bad, or indifferent; nothing good, for that is vanity; nothing bad, for that is affectation; nothing indifferent, for that is silly.

Lieutenant Lynch in his voyage to the Dead Sea found a hugh pillar of Salt on the shore, and the Arabs informed him that it was Lot's wife; for our part we are much inclined to doubt it, though we have no hesitation in saying that the best thing to cure coughs, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, bowel complaints, &c., is the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," to be had of all medicine dealers for 25 cts per bottle. Try one!

There are thousands of poor horses dragging out a miserable existance, suffering from a variety of diseases, rendering them almost worthless, that would be restored to a healthy and sound condition, and a value given to them of which their owners never dreamed, would they but use the means within their reach. From one to three packages of "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" will in all cases produce a satisfactory result: hundreds have testified to the fact. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ontario, proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

For loss of cud, horn ail, red water in cows, loss of appetite, rot, or murrain in sheep; thick wind, broken wind, and roaring, and for all obstructions of the kidneys, in horses use "Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders."

To persons employed in constant mental toil, studyor anxiety, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is especially adapted, namely to Teachers, Clergymen, Editors, Lawers and impecunious business men.

Is your throat sear, or are you annoyed by a constant cough? If so use promptly "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers." They will give you instant relief. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

That iron is valuable as a medicine has long been known, but it is only since its preparation in the particular form of Peruvian Syrup that its full power over disease has been brought to light. Its effect in cases of dyspepsia and debility is most salutary.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are kown, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientefic physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certian fixed proporations of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights almost by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirements of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Select Poetry.

The Old Man in the Stylish Church.

Well, we drive down to church to-day—
Been to seat stylish one—
And seeing you can't go from home,
I'd tell you what was done.
You would have been surprised to see
What I saw there to-day,
The sisters were fixed up so fine,
They hardly bowed to pray

I had on these coarse clothes of mine—
Not much the worse for wear—
But then, they knew I wasn't one
They call a millionaire!
So they led the old man to a seat,
Away back by the door,
'Twas bookees and me reckoned—
A sit reserved sacred for the poor.

Pretty soon there came a stranger,
With gold ring and clothing fine,
They led him to a cushioned seat,
Far in advance of mine.
I thought that wasn't exactly right,
To seat him up so near
When he was young and I was old,
And very hard to hear.

But then there was no accounting
For what some people do,
The finest clothing now-a-days
Oft gets the nicest pew.
But when we reach the blessed home,
All undefiled by sin,
We'll see wealth begging at the gate,
While poverty goes in.

I could not here the sermon,
I sat so far away,
So through the hours of service
I could only watch and pray—
Watch the deeds of the Christians
Sitting near me round about,
Pray that God would make them pure within,
As they were pure without.

Stanley's Discovery of LIVINGSTONE.

CHARACTER OF DR. LIVINGSTONE.

Dr. Kirk, pitying the weariness under which I was laboring called me aside to submit to my inspection a magnificent elephant rifle, which he said was a present from a Governor of Bombay. Then I heard eulogies upon its deadly powers and fatal accuracy; I heard anecdotes of jungle life, adventures experienced while hunting, and incidents of his travels with Livingstone.

"Ah, yes, Dr. Kirk," I asked carelessly, "about Livingstone—where is he, do you think, now?"

"Well, really," he replied, "you know that is very difficult to answer, he may be dead, there is nothing positive whereon we can base sufficient reliance. Of one thing I am sure, nobody has heard anything definite of him for over two years. I should fancy, though, he must be alive. We are continually sending something up for him. There is a small expedition even now at Bagamoyo about starting. I really think the old man should come home now. He is growing old, you know, and if he died, the world would lose the benefit of his discoveries. He keeps neither notes nor journals, it is very seldom he takes observations. He simply makes a note or dot, or something, on a map which nobody could understand, but himself. Oh yes, by all means if he is alive he should come home, and let a younger man take his place."

"What kind of a man is he to get along with Doctor?" I asked, feeling now quite interested in his conversation.

"Well, I think he is a very difficult man to deal with generally. Personally, I have never had a quarrel with him, but I have seen him in hot water with fellows so often, and that is principally the reason, I think, he hates to have anyone with him."

"I am told he is a very modest man, is he?" I asked.

"Oh, he knows the value of his own discoveries, no man better. He is not quite an angel," said he with a laugh.

"Well now, supposing I met him in my travels—I might possibly stumble across him if he travels anywhere in the direction I am going—how would he conduct himself towards me?"

"To tell you the truth," said he, "I do not think he would like it very well. I know if Burton or Grant, or Baker, or any of these fellows were going after him, and he heard of their coming Livingstone would put a hundred miles of swamp in a very short time between himself and them. I do, upon my word I do."

This was the tenor of the interview I held with Dr. Kirk—former companion of Livingstone—as well as my journal and memory can recall it to me.

Need I say this information from a gentleman known to be well acquainted with Dr. Livingstone, rather had the effect of damping my ardour for the search, than adding vigor to it. I felt very much depressed, and would have willingly resigned my commission; but then the order was "Go and find Livingstone."

Besides, I did not suppose, though I had so readily consented to search for the Doctor, that the path to Central Africa was strewn with roses. What though I were relished, as an important interloper in the domain of Discovery, as a meddler in things that concerned not myself, as one whose absence would be far more acceptable to him than my presence—had I not been commanded "to find him?" Well find him I would, if he were above ground. If not, then I would bring what concerned the people to know, and keep.

ORGANIZATION OF THE EXPEDITION.

I was totally ignorant of the interior and it was difficult at first to know what I needed in order to make an expedition into Central Africa. Time was precious, also, and much of it could not be devoted to inquiry and investigation. In a case like this, it would have been a godsend, I thought, had either of the three gentlemen, Captain Burton, Speke, or Grant, given some information on these points; had they devoted a chapter upon "How to get ready an expedition for Central Africa."

The grocery of the present day, as it was then, is to receive how I knew it, that other travellers coming after me may have the benefit of my experience.

Beads, I was told, took the place of cloth currency among some tribes of the interior. One tribe preferred white to black beads, brown to yellow, red to green, coarse to white and red. Thus, in Unyamwezi, red (sami sami) beads would readily be taken, where all other kinds would be refused, black (bem) beads, though currency in Egypt, were positively worthless with all other tribes, the egg (susumazzi) beads though valuable in Ujiji and Uguhha, would be refused in all other countries, the white (merikani) beads, though good in Ujiji and some parts of Unyamwezi and Ugogo, would certainly be despised in Usagahha, and Ukonongo. Such being the case, I was obliged to study closely and calculate the probable size of an expedition in the several countries, so as to be sure to provide a sufficiency of each kind, and guard against any great overplus. Burton and Speke, for instance, were obliged to throw away as worthless, several hundred fundo of beads.

My anxiety on this point was most excruciating. Over and over again I studied the hard names and measures, conned again and again the polysyllables, hoping to be able to arrive some time at an intelligible definition of the terms. Finally, however, I came to the conclusion that if reckoned my requirements at fifty khete, or five fundo per day for two years and it I purchased only eleven varieties I might consider myself safe enough. The purchase was accordingly made, and 22 sacks of the best species were packed and brought to Captain Webb's house, ready for transportation to Bagamoyo.

After the beads came the wire question. I discovered after considerable trouble, that Nos. 5 and 6—almost of the thickness of telegraph wire—were considered the best numbers for trading purposes. While beads stand for copper coin in Africa, cloth measures for silver, wire is reckoned as gold in the countries beyond the Tanganyika. Ten frasilah, or 350lbs. of brass wire, my Arab adviser thought would be ample.

Having purchased the cloth, beads and wire, it was with no little pride that I surveyed the comely bales and packages lying piled up, one above row in Captain Webb's capacious store-room. Yet my work was not ended, it was but beginning. There were provisions, cooking utensils, tents, rope, twine, tents, donkeys, saddles, sheeting, tar, ammunition, guns, ornaments, buttons, medicine, presents for the chiefs, in short a thousand things, actual or purchased. The ordeal of chaffer up and haggling with steel-hearted Banyans, Hindis, Arabs and half-castes was most trying. For instance I purchased twenty-two donkeys at Zanzibar, $10 and $50 were asked, which I had to reduce to $15 or $20 by an indomitable amount of argument, worthy I think of a nobler cause.

As was my experience with the donkeys, so was it with the boats, the purchase of which, at any price, was a matter of great difficulty. Indeed, in the solving of many of Africa's mysteries, time and patience

[illegible] covered boats were to me useless, to be obtained in Zanzibar. I always without pack-saddles were of no use whatever. I invented a saddle which I manufactured myself, and guaranteed to carry four frasilah, or 250lbs. of bale-

Now is the time to subscribe for the Examiner. Any person subscribing now and footing up dispositon can give it up at the close of three or six months by signifying to us their intention to that effect in writing.

Mather's Corners.

The Soiree at the opening of the New Temperance Hall, Mather's Corners, on New Year's Day was a complete success. The net proceedings were $126. There is still a small debt of $70 on the building, but this will be paid off this season.

Gas.

The Gas Company has changed hands Mr. Perry having sold out his interest in it to Messrs. Stevenson, Clauzon, Bradburn and Dumble, and they have taken possession. We need not now refer to the history of the Company; let us hope a bright record is in the future will atone for the past

White, basket of Provisions.

Omitted in November, a parcel of new Cloth from Messrs Paton & Moir, Auburn Mills.

North Douro.

We regret to learn that the Examiner parcel did not reach the North Douro office last week, we have tried to find out where the irregularity exists, but have failed, so far. The annoyance to subscribers and to us readers is necessary that the matter be ferreted out and a step put to it, we feel assured that those in care of the Post Office at Lakefield, are ready to aid us in the matter. We trust that in future, there will be more care.

Furious Driving.

Very many who are fond of showing off fast horses appear to forget that pedestrians have any right on the streets at all. To such a degree has the nuisance increased that Chief Constable Johnston, will be under the necessity of forcing some of those Jehus to file an appearance before the Grand Cadi, to answer for their trespasses on the rights of their brethern who happen to be on foot; not even ladies are safe in crossing the streets unless they keep a sharp look out. Every driver should be taught to come to a walk at street crossings, and so racing should be permitted on any of the streets. The Chief Constable cannot be omnipresent, nor will he require to be after an appeal to the Police Magistrate.

A Free Education.

Now that the Town limits are so enlarged as to take in all the Park Lots, very few pupils from outside the limits will be found in attendance at the Collegiate Institute, and as that Institution has been receiving and is receiving large Government grants, we may reasonably ask the Trustees to throw the school open to all who pass the entrance examination, on the same terms as the Public Schools—say ten cents per month for stationery and incidental expenses. The Canadian system of education is pre-eminently a free one, and we feel certain that the very liberal Board in this Town will place no barrier in the way of the poorest man's child in the Town or County, receiving the best education our Institution can afford, free. Hoping that this hint will have its due effect, we drop the matter for the present.

Concert.

Mr. D. D. Galletly will give a Concert in the Music Hall on the 24th instant. He will be assisted by the principal musical talent of the Town, and no pains will be spared to make it attractive and successful. Mr. Galletly deserves a full house. Mr. G. has ever rendered his services willingly and on all occasions, and we bespeak for him a bumper house on the 24th. It is due to him. The programme will be a good one

The Locks Bridg

In the interests of both the people of the Town and farmers the Locks Bridge must be rebuilt. In case the Iron Bridge should give way whilst the river is open how would farmers get in with wood, and farm produce, and if they cannot get to Town whence will supplies be procured? The Town Council has been higgling about a grant of two or three hundred dollars towards the fixing of the Locks Bridge, while they have agreed to pay the cost of a suit pending but likely to go against its promoters. If, instead of their opposition to a small grant, they had come forward and said, "build the bridge and we will pay in proportion to our valuation," the bridge would now be passable, the public would be accommodated and there would be very little more to pay. Some of the Town Council imagine that long speeches about the derelictions of the Warden are sufficient to vindicate the interests of the Town and meet the wants of the citizens. The Town and County interests are so interwoven that they cannot be separated, and should the County Council hold out a few months longer, the Town Council must of legal necessity pay its share of the cost of construction. Why not do it at once, and thus show a readiness to meet the County Council in all fairness. We had an example of this same kind of work in the matter of the Iron Bridge but very soon the Town Council had to "cave in" and pay their share. They might as well have done so gracefully at first; and it will turn out the same way in the matter of the Locks Bridge also. The Town and County cannot afford to contend about trifles.

South Monaghan Agricultural Society.

At the Annual Meeting the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, David Truscott; Vice President, Wm Rutherford; Secretary, John Riddell; Treasurer, Holden Crossley; Directors, Jos McCallister, John Heaslip Joseph Fisher, Robert Poe, Senr., J. W. McBain, Wm. Adams, Joseph Clark, D. Baxter and John Lightfoot; Auditors, Edward Kerr and J. A. Turnbull.

Peterborough Horticultural Society.

At the Annual Meeting of the Horticultural Society held on the 14th Inst., the following Officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, Rev. V. Clementi; Vice President, A. W. Kempt; Secretary & Treasurer, George Barlee; Directors, Messrs. Jas. Hall, R Kingan, D. W. Dumble, C. Ormond, E. Beatty, John McClelland, R. Romaine, James Edwards. James Best.

A Centenarian.

A man named Hylliard, died at Streetsville, on Saturday, who was 100 years of age. He appears to have lived alone, as his feet, legs and hands were frozen, when found by a Mr. Edwards, who paid him a daily visit.

The By-Law.

Discordant opinions on the fate of the $150,000 By-Law reache us. One part of Smith will vote against it, while another part, it is said will vote in its favour. Eastemore is divided in opinion, but the majority is said to be against it. The same may be said of Harvey. Douro will give a larger vote for it, than for any other road hitherto asking a bonus. Otonabee will give a majority against it, while Asphodel will give a majority for it. The same is claimed for Dummer and Belmont. Ashburnham being about to seek a divorce should not meddle in the domestic matters of the County. If a vote should be taken in the Village it will be altogether for the By-Law, Summing the whole matter up, it is difficult to divine the fate of the proposed bonus. There can be no two opinions on the advantage of the road to Peterboro, and to the County also, and it will be matter for deep regret if any coarse policy should endanger it.

The New Roman Minister.

It is now understood that Mr. T. E. Gibbs is to be Finance Minister in the place of Mr. Tilley, who has been sent home to resign. Mr. Gibbs possesses neither the ability nor the experience to be a successful financier. He may be a successful merchant but he is a very unscrupulous politician and will be ready to do the bidding of John A. Macdonald—Tupper and Co'y. Sir Francis had some ability, but now that he is going, the Moribund Ottawa Clique must needs prepare for dissolution.

New French Catholic Church.

We understand that the French Canadians of this Town have determined to erect a new Roman Catholic Church in the South of the Town, opposite the Furniture Shop of Mr. Poole. The Church will face George street on the corner of Sherbrook street. A meeting of those favorable to it was held on Monday, at the residence of Er. Brault, when a committee was named to carry out the object and subscriptions have been taken up for the purpose. The cost will be about $2,000 to $3,000. The following Officers have been appointed—Mr. D. Lemay, Chairman: N. Laplante, Treas. H. LeBras, Sec. and a large committee, who are going to work immediately, so as to secure the erection of the building during the approaching summer.

UNITY IS STRENGTH!

The Brantford Courier glorying in the introduction of politics into Municipal matters, under the caption ["Unity is Strength," says:

> No better exemplification of the above axiom can be given than the result of Monday's contest. It was fought at disadvantage on the Conservative side. The party had for years been afflicted with a chronic state of inertia—powerless to put itself in fighting order. Every position having the least vestige of patronage or power has for years been in the possession of our bitterest opponents. The assessment roll has been manipulated to our disadvantage systematically. With a view to compelling the Riding, the Grits have never ceased to work inadvisedly against the Conservative majority in Brantford—so much so, that at last they thought it safe openly to consume the Moderate party. Notwithstanding these manifold drawbacks, to-day the Moderates are completely triumphant. Practically we have made a clean sweep. Grit influence in this town is gone with a vengeance—gone forever we trust. Let the party see to it that we be not again deceived by specious pretences of fair play. Let every Conservative in Brant County take new heart of grace from last Monday's work. It teaches the lesson of unity in subsequent language. Next year not the least vestige of Gritism will be left in the Municipal Council of Brantford. Systematic vigilance and careful attention to details is all that is required to place the Moderate party triumphant in every constituency in Ontario within the next five years. The verdict just pronounced by the electors of Brantford is but the beginning of the end. There is a charm in success which drawes to it wavering into line and attracts even the defeated. We have judged the present time most opportune to remind the Moderates of the causes of former defeat and of present triumph. Vigilance should be the watchword of the party from this time forth.

The same game has been tried wherever there was the least hope of success, the end justifies the means in the eyes of conservatives, just read the Brantford Tory Organ, "systematic vigilance and careful attention to details, is all that is required to place the Moderate party triumphant in every constituency in Ontario within the next five years." The fight is to go on for the next five years, in every constituency. The good sense of the people will spare the ravings of such instruments of corruption.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.

The Belleville Intellegencer of Friday last, contains the following:—

> The Provisional Board of Directors of the Pacific Junction, of which Thomas Kelso, Esq., is a member, was held last week, and we learn upon very good authority that the Ontario Government is prepared to aid in the construction of the road, commencing at Sault St. Mary and running east, connecting with the Ontario group of Railways at Lindsay or Peterborough, upon condition that the Northern Pacific Railway Company extend their line from Fort Garry to Sault St. Mary. The aid to this great enterprise on the part of the Ontario Government upon the conditions mentioned, is, we believe, $1,500,000 in cash and a grant of 20,000 acres of land per mile.

Should the road be built from Ottawa here with a branch to the Pacific line, Peterboro must become a place of importance almost at once, and this should be borne in mind by every Ratepayer in Town and County, in casting his vote on the 25th instant.

DEATH OF NAPOLEON III.

Napoleon the third and ex-Emperor of France is dead, his funeral took place yesterday from Chiselhurst. In despatches it is said the French Government will permit the final interment of Napoleon's remains in France. The funeral is made strictly private and the deceased is buried as ex-Emperor and not as an Emperor. The ceremonies must be simply of a religious character. The President is understood to have conferred with the Minister of the Interior and the Prefect of Police with the object of preventing the funeral if it takes place in France, being made an opportunity of political manifestations.

An eventful life is thus ended, report says from chloroform administered to assuage pain. Those Generals and men of distinction whose fortunes were linked with his during his palmy days, as well as in his decline, were present at his funeral.

A despatch to the agent of the Associated Press, from a friend of the Imperial family of Chiselhurst, gives the following description of the scene there:

> The remains of the late Emperor have been placed in the coffin. The corpse is dressed in the uniform of a field marshal. The upper lip is bare the moustache having been cut off to facilitate the taking of a plaster cast. The beard, which remains, is brown and bushy, the features are stern and careworn, and have an expression of pain. The grand cordon of the Legion of Honor lies across his breast. The hands, which are ungloved, are disposed in an easy and natural manner, the right clasping the left. On the fourth finger of the left hand is a ring with several diamonds, which was placed there by the Empress. A small silver cross of exquisite workmanship lies on the breast, and on the corpse are a pond three sprigs of holly. Over the head a crown of violets is suspended. At the foot of the coffin is the brass camp bedstead on which the Emperor died. Seated on either side at the lower end of the coffin are priests and relatives. The furniture of the room, as well as of the whole mansion, is simple and unostentatious. The body will lie in state on Tuesday in the entrance of the hall of the chapel. The general public will not be admitted to view the remains. No change has been made of the time and place of the funeral and burial as last announced. The ceremonies will probably begin about noon on Wednesday. The Empress is overwhelmed with sorrow, and her prostration is so great as to alarm the attendants. The Prince Imperial does all in his power to comfort her. The Empress has received letters of condolence from the Emperor of Russia and the King of Italy. Although none but the relatives and intimate friends of the deceased are admitted, Chiselhurst is crowded with visitors. Religious services were held this morning in the chapel, which was filled. Princess Mathilde, Bacciochi and Piedmont Dm. Clermont and Corvisart were present. Baron Corvisart attended to preach, but was overcome by his feelings, and was called to leave the pulpit. M. Benedetti arrived today at Chiselhurst, and was received by the Empress. M. Ollivier and Marshal Bazaine are expected to-morrow. Princess Murat and suite arrived this afternoon. Great numbers of people from France are expected at the funeral. The South-eastern and the Northern Railways of France have reduced the rates of fare for the persons attending the funeral. It is reported that the Prince Imperial has already assumed the title of Napoleon IV. This report is doubtless incorrect, but it is true that the Prince is addressed as "Sire" by all the visitors at Chiselhurst. The Imperialists is gaining ground that the Emperor died from the effects of chloroform administered to assuage pain.

THE IRON BRIDGE.

The new Iron Bridge across the Otonabee River, was found defective on Thursday last, and in order to fix it, travel over it was suspended. The cause of the present trouble was the breaking of some of the links, or chain which ties the bridge lengthwise. The whole weight of the structure and also of all loads crossing comes on these links, and hence any weakness either in quality of material, size of links, or in fact any defect whatever, soon shows itself. The frost too is believed to have an influence on iron, and the excessive frost of last week is said to have caused the break in the links. The Town Council have put on men and repaired the defective part, and Mr. Belcher, of this Town, who is an able Engineer and Architect, is appointed to examine the whole bridge and report as to the strength of the bridge and what is required to make it durable. He will report in about a week and then the whole matter will come before the County and Town Councils.

There was some discussion in the Town Council on Monday evening relative to it; some condemning the whole thing as unskilled to our climate, others condemning the style of structure, and a few instructing that the iron used in the structure was of inferior quality. We cannot judge of these things, nor do we feel inclined to say a word against the bridge because a particular firm may have had the contract. There are some who are jealous of their neighbors, or over friendly to their friends, and perhaps say things not entirely warrantable. There is one feature in the affair that all must condemn, and that is, we understand that there is no guarantee of the bridge, not even for an hour after it was taken off the hands of the Contractors. The building of an iron bridge at such a cost should have induced the Committee to demand a guarantee or warranty of the material and work, at least for two or three years after construction. And since they did not do so, the Town and County must put up with it as it is, whether good or bad. We do not believe that any inferior quality of material has been used. Messrs. Whyte & Davis would not attempt such a thing not knowing but that the committee might bring on an Engineer and condemn the whole thing and leave it on their hands. If there is any cause for blame, it is in the specifications, and then in taking the bridge off the hands of the contractors without testing it to the utmost. The contractors are not to blame for neglects of the Committee, if there were derelictions of duty over the bridge has more to do with the present defects than any thing else. There is not a day passes but from twenty to sixty, and even more, teams and vehicles drive furiously over it, and not one team in five is ever pulled up till about the middle of the span.

This no doubt is the cause of its giving way, in connection perhaps with the lightness of the links, or the length of the spans. Some means must be adopted to bring those who drive fast over it to punishment, and half a dozen cases of fines of $20, each and costs will bring people to their senses, and put an end to fast driving over it in future. John Barleycorn has his share in the blame too. Men become over-jolly just as about leaving for home, the consequence is that often the poor horses as well as the iron bridge are put on their mettle for a show off. This is a daily occurance and should be put a stop to. The Bridge Committee will now appoint a man to watch the bridge and bring offenders to justice

PARLIAMENTARY.

The Ontario Legislature is now in session. Nothing very important has yet transpired.

The spiteful party headed by Mr. Lauder are again at work, but with no effect. Not satisfied with picking up pieces of paper out of spitoons during last Session, in the interim they have been taking letters from the Post Office and misrepresenting them. Nothing can be more disgraceful than this using the servants of the Post Office to further their base ends—and that Mr. Lauder, or his friends should use these letters, after almost abstracting them from private boxes, is enough to condemn them in the eyes of right thinking men. It shows what they will resort to when driven to desperation.

The speeches on the address have not been marked by any genuine ability on the part of the opposition, side issues being the only stock in trade of that party.

The mover and seconder, Mr. Cardwell and Mr. Wells, referred to the prosperous state of the Province and to the advan ages arising from having control of our own Local affairs. The Government proposes dealing with several very important questions, during the Session, as for instance—The Municipal Loan Fund, the School Law, the Railway Bounses, additional Normal Schools, an Asylum for Inebriates and one also for Idiotic Children, for the purposes of affording them suitable instructions. The Bills referring to these several matters will soon be brought down, and then the public will be enabled to judge of the Government schemes.

We shall endeavor to give full Parliamentary news during the Session.

Ontario & Quebec Railway.

Some boys who seem to have grown (not brought) up lately set fire to some buildings in Lindsay, merely "for fun," or to see the fire engine brought out. It is said that they did it so as to have an opportunity of robbing the post office, or other offices in the excitement. The Lindsay Post says:—

"The trial of the boys charged with incendiarism has established the guilt of two, and has revealed the existence of a sad and deplorable state of things. That the youths concerned in these affairs belong to respectable families is an aggravation of the offence; and it is earnestly to be hoped that in future there will be maintained such strict discipline as will prevent the recurrence of such dangerous freaks. The boys appear to have set fire to the buildings from wanton mischief; "to have some fun" as one said, and "to call out the fire engine." But fun of that kind must be stopped, and while the penalty inflicted will deter mischievous youngsters from further indulgence in incendiarism, either for fun or for revenge, it would be well for many parents to exercise stricter supervision over their boys, and see that their evenings are properly spent. This duty seems to have been neglected in some families, and boys have grown up like "Topsy," in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday evening 13th Jan. 1873.

The Council met. Present:—the Mayor and Messrs. Toole, Edmison, Robertson, Stevenson, Patterson, Landy, English, Helm, Smith and Hopkins.

The Minutes were read and confirmed.

Accounts submitted and referred to Finance Committee.

W. H. Scott, Solictor	192 08
Thos. Poole, Coffins	32 00
R. White	9 00
John Turver	130 00
James Stratton, Printing, &c.	34 00

The Finance Committee reported as follows:—

REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

To the Mayor and Town Council.

The Finance Committee beg leave to report the correctness of the following accounts, and to recommend the payment of them:—

Michael Boulton	2 00
Adam Dobbin	5 50
Mckee & Davidson	142 37

Your Committee cannot allow the claim of A. Dobbin $5.50 for broken axle.

The Committee further recommend your Treasurer to instruct the Commissioners to sell Debentures to pay Paton, Moir & Co. the amount of Bonus now due them, viz Two thousand five hundred dollars.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. SMITH, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

A Petition for union of Ashburnham and the Town was read a first and second time.

A Petition to the Legislature on the matter of the Municipal Loan Fund, was read a first and second time.

The report of the Street and Bridge Committee was submitted and adopted.

The Mayor stated that Messrs. Armour and Col. Chambliss were present, and wished to lay something before the Council.

On motion Mr. Armour addressed the Council—asking for an extension of the time for completing the Railway to Mud Lake.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole,—A By-law, to extend the time in which the Road to Mud Lake was to be completed, was read a first time.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Robertson,—That the Petition to his Excellency the Lieut. Governor and Legislature in respect to the union of the Village of Ashburnham, be now read a third time and passed, and that the Mayor do sign the same, and the Clerk countersign and affix the Corporate Seal, and that the 28th rule of the Council be temporarily suspended for that purpose.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Edmison,—That the Collector be instructed to remit the taxes of J. Spencely, Senior,—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English,—That the Mayor, Mover, and Messrs. Edmison, Stevenson and Landy, be a Committee to confer with the Council of Ashburnham, anent the Union of the two Municipalities, also to draft an act of Parliament to be forwarded to the Legislature of Ontario, or for any other matter necessary to carry out said Union.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Robertson,—That the Petition to His Excellency the Governor in Council, in respect to the Municipal Loan Fund, be now read a third time and passed, and that the Mayor sign and the Clerk countersign and attach the Corporate Seal thereto.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Edmison, seconded by Mr. Smith,—That Mr. Toole be and is hereby directed to instruct Messrs. Whyte & Davis to repair the Iron Bridge so as to render it safe fot travel, provided such repairs can be made for $60, and that the County Council be requested to pay one half of the amount of such repairs, the Warden having declined to take any action in regard to the matter until the meeting of the County Council.

Moved by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Helm,—That Mr. Belcher be appointed by this Council to examine the Iron Bridge over the Otonabee River, and report to this Council at its next meeting whether it requires a second chain of links or not, or whatever he may think necessary to make a permanent job of said Bridge.—Carried.

LAKEFIELD CORRESPONDENCE

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC RAILWAY.

A meeting in the interest of the above Railway was held in the School House, Lakefield, on the 8th Inst. Insufficient notice having been given there was rather a small representation of the Ratepayers present.

The deputation from Peterboro, numerically speaking, was also small, Mr. Carnegie being the only one who filed an appearance.

J. Fitzgerald, Esq., was elected Chairman, and at once called upon Mr. Carnegie to address the meeting.

He began by excusing Messrs. Hall, Scott and others, who had been expected to be present. He then said the object of the meeting was to lay the By-law before the people and thoroughly discuss the matters relating to the proposed Railway. He greatly eulogized the people of Lakefield and vicinity for the lively interest they had already taken in railways, and hoped they would still continue to do so. He said the great question with the people is: Will it pay them to grant a bonus of $150,000 towards the Ontario and Quebec Railway. The speaker at some length proceeded to show that the farmers especially, would, in a comparatively short time, be amply remunerated, as the price of all produce would, inevitably, greatly increase. An opinion was expressed that if the County granted its bonus, and the Town of Peterborough should fail in voting its bonus, and the railway be proceeded with, then the County would be bound to grant the company the amount of $150,000 although the Town would have nothing to pay.—The speaker then stated that if either the County or Town be unsuccessful in voting the bonus, then the By-law will fall to the ground. By request Mr. Carnegie read the whole of the By-law, and satisfactorily explained each clause.—Some thought if the County voted the proposed bonus, not only would it have to be paid, but also the amount voted to the Grand Junction. He then referred the unlikelihood of the Grand Junction being extended to Peterboro. If the Ontario and Quebec Railway should be proceeded with, as the former would not be able to successfully compete with that latter. He also showed the necessity of the two roads amalgamating, on the score of the Grand Junction not having the Villages of Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, and were the Ontario and Quebec Railway to take the route of the Grand Junction to

The Governor's Speech.

At three o'clock the Lieut. Governor proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Legislative Assembly, and being seated on the throne was pleased to open the House with the following speech:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I rejoice that in meeting you again, to deliberate on the affairs of the province, I am able to congratulate you on the continued prosperity which the Province has enjoyed during the past year. We have now had six years' experience of the working of the system of Confederation, which the people of Upper Canada frankly accepted, and from which they anticipated much advantage, and I am confident, you will agree with me that their expectations have been fully realized. In some of its details the act of union may have been less than just to this Province, and incidents to be regretted have occurred as in first establishment of all new constitutions; yet the general effect on the local affairs of Ontario has been eminently beneficial. The administration of our local affairs is now in our own hands, and our revenue has enabled us without taxation, not only to defray all charges of the Provincial Government, and to afford essential aid to numerous railway enterprises and other public works and improvements, but also to accumulate a surplus now amounting to more than four millions of dollars. The policy to be pursued with reference to the surplus will doubtless engage your attention during the present session. I hope that the existence of this fund will enable you to place on a satisfactory footing the debts owing to the Municipal Loan Fund and the same time to do justice to the rest of the Province. I earnestly recommend to your attention such measures for these purposes as may be laid before you.

The works on nearly all railways, to which, during last session you approved of giving aid, have been prosecuted with vigor. Some of these railways have been so far completed that they are now open for traffic, and extensive sections of the country have by means of your grants secured permanent railways, which already exercise a most salutary influence on their industrial interests. The claims of other railways will be presented to you during the present session. I hope it will be found that without any unhealthy stimulus being given to railway enterprise, and without any undue exposure on the part of municipal corporations, every part of the Province may at no distant period obtain railway facilities adapted to its requirements.

The benefits which have arisen from aiding the drainage of swamps and wet lands in different parts of the Province point to the advisability of your considering further provisions for bringing, by this means, into profitable cultivation, an extended area of valuable lands.

In the recess I have adopted additional means for promoting increased immigration of agricultural laborers and others into the Province, and I am happy to say that I have reason to believe that means taken will have valuable results during the ensuing season.

I recommend to your careful consideration measures which will be laid before you for the improvement of our educational institutions by providing additional means for obtaining a sufficient number of competent trained teachers giving increased efficiency to the Council of Public Instruction, and for the good and cheap, and of asylum for the blind will be submitted for your consideration. No provision has hitherto been made in this Province for teaching of idiot and imbecile children, a class which I regret to learn is in numbers enough to require on the part of the Legislature, the same attention which has already been amply given to other afflicted classes of population. Experience in other countries having shown that by proper means the condition of these children may be greatly ameliorated. I commend their case to your favorable consideration. I recommend to your attention the propriety of adding to the institutions under Government care, an inebriate asylum where those unfortunate persons, who, by long indulgence in habits of intemperance, have lost their self-control, may have the opportunity of being restored, by proper restraints and influence to the position of useful members of society.

There will likewise be submitted, for your attention, measures for promoting the better administration of Justice in the Courts of the Province, for giving an increased efficiency to law and for making various amendments which experience has shown to be desirable in our school laws.

Bills for the consolidation of Public and High School laws, a Bill for regulating the Toronto School of Medicine, for which the Legislature has already made provision, and a Bill for giving to the graduates of the Provincial University a direct influence in the management, and other educational measures to which your attention will be called. Measures for the management of the Asylum, trial of controverted elections, and for consolidating and amending the laws relative to our municipal institutions.

Since we last met negotiations have taken place between the Dominion Government and myself on the subject of the Northern and Western boundaries of this Province. The correspondence will be laid before you. Meanwhile I have directed investigations to be made which were necessary to the establishment of the rights of Ontario, and a mass of evidence in favor of boundaries claimed by Ontario has been accumulated, which will I hope prove abundantly sufficient to secure a favorable result.

The Government of Quebec still maintains its objections to the award of the arbitrators appointed under the Act of Confederation for the settlement of all questions arising between the two Provinces, and the Government of the Dominion having declined to recognize the award until its validity shall be determined by some competent tribunal, I have endeavored to expedite the preliminary proceedings necessary to bring the matter before the Privy Council in England. Some progress to this end has been made, and I hope that no obstacle will be found to prevent a satisfactory decision being arrived at during the present year.

A Joint Commission has been appointed for surveying the boundary between Ontario and Quebec, and they have commenced operation.

I have given directions that the public accounts shall be placed before you. You will learn with satisfaction that the revenue for the past year was in excess of the sum estimated, that the expenditure has fallen short of the amount anticipated, that a considerable additions has in consequence been made to the accumulated surplus previously on hand. The estimates for the present year will be submitted to you. You will find that they have been framed with every regard to economy, compatible with the efficiency of the public service. I now leave you to your important duties, in full confidence that you will apply yourselves to the performance of them with patriotism and earnestness.

May the Almighty Ruler of all nations guide you in deliberations that they may result in promoting the prosperity and happiness of the country.

THE WARDEN.

MR. EDITOR, SIR:

As the time is at hand for the election of Warden for this thriving and prosperous County of Peterboro, I take the liberty of assuming that a few thoughts, respectfully submitted, on that subject might not be out of place. I may premise generally, that in all representative systems of government, either municipal or parliamentary, the people cannot [illegible] too much [illegible] the [illegible] of their votes and to exercise the [illegible] of the country. By attending to [illegible] in the exercise of public [illegible] we would soon be freed from the [illegible] tamperings, and the despicable trickery which too often disgraces our municipal elections; and also, would very soon get rid of that whole brood of political hacks, who aspire to office for plunder and for pay.

Thoughtful men of all shades of politics deplore the fact that all the avenues to public offices are thronged by a desperate crowd of unprincipled adventurers,—and it is the game of these men to make the strife of politics so fierce and brutal, and so destructive of all self-respect in worthy men, that sensitive and delicate minded persons shall be kept aloof, and they, and such as they, be left to battle out their own selfish views unchecked.—And thus this lowest of all scrambling fights goes on, and they who in other countries would, from their intelligence and station, most aspire to make the laws, do here recoil the furthest from that degradation.

Some good and true representative men are found in all our municipalities, who by their virtue and integrity form the life-blood of our political institutions.—To this pleasing fact all must willingly and cordially bear witness. But it is also to be deplored that those worthy men are few, and are often rendered powerless by the loathsome herd of political adventurers who jostle, and scramble, and howl, and bully, and bribe their way into office.

Now, all know that as a general rule it is not the most thrifty, the most industrious and the most well doing of our citizens who are the most greedy aspirants for municipal honors; but on the contrary we too often find that the most ambitious candidates in this line are those who have nothing to lose—men whose own affairs from neglect and extravagance are in a doubtful condition.

Any man answering to this description should be carefully excluded from the Wardenship, for surely a man who has not enough of prudence or of honest principle to manage his own business ought not to be trusted with a casting vote in the affairs of this wealthy county.

I may also suggest that seniority as a Municipal officer can hardly be taken as an evidence of fitness for the office of Warden. For we can all at this moment call to mind many men who have become grey in the service of their country, as Councilors and Reeves, and yet these men would make but a sorry figure in the Warden's Chair.

One might even go so far as to say that the number of votes which a Reeve secures in his township, can furnish no evidence that he is a fit and proper person to discharge the duties of Warden. For it is apparent to every one that a Reeve may encounter the

MATHEW'S CORNERS.—Presentation.

On the occasion of the re-opening of the school in Section No. 7, Otonabee, the pupils presented their Teacher, Mr. Duff, with a beautiful and costly volume of Sir Walter Scott's poems. After the presentation their teacher addressed them in the following terms:—

DEAR PUPILS:—It gives me great pleasure to receive this token of respect and esteem from the hands of those among whom I have labored for the past two years. On entering the school room this morning, this, the beginning of another year's labor among you, I certainly did not expect to be the happy recipient of so elegant a gift as that which lies before me. It is a sign to me that my labours among you in the past have not been wholly unappreciated; it will also be an encouragement for me to work for your advancement in the future. When so kindly a feeling as is exhibited by your conduct this morning exists in the pupils toward their teacher, success is certain. We must work together; you cannot advance in education without the assistance of your teacher, neither can he render instruction profitable without the hearty co-operation of his pupils, but working together we'll march onward until No. 7, Otonabee, be the best school in the County. Again I thank you for your handsome present.

Dominion Monthly.

The Dominion Monthly for Jan'y 1873 is before us, and promises to maintain the excellent and moral tone of that Journal in the past. All the publications issuing from the Witness Office deserve a place in every family.

PRESENTATION.

The following address together with an Album and Hymn Book were presented to Mrs. Hunt, teacher, S.S. No. 3, Smith, by her pupils.

Dear Teacher,—We the pupils of your School, beg to present you with the accompanying Album and Hymn Book, as a small token of respect for your earnest and energetic efforts to instil into our minds that knowledge which will be useful and necessary to our future welfare, and trust that you will in the future, as in the past, bear with our failings and imperfections with patience and forbearance.

We remain, dear teacher,

YOUR PUPILS.

REPLY.

Dear Pupils,—It is with much pleasure that I receive this very handsome present from you, as a token of your regard, and I sincerely trust that I may be enabled so to discharge my various duties that these feelings may be strengthened and increased, and that my labor among you may be blessed to your good, not only mentally, but morally and spiritually, that you may be the better prepared for high, important, and useful positions in society.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

Prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Scalds, Wounds, Felons, Pimples, Blotches, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Swollen Breasts, Itch, Scald Head, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Sciatica, Coughs, Croup, Crossed Lips, and Sore on Children.

Sore Throat to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. Do not hesitate, but call and get a box. Price only 25 cents. Sold by druggists on the side county, once or twice a day. Cures continue by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples this acts like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of MISS SAWYER'S SALVE are its beautifying effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable accessorie for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you calculated to let me have your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to my friends, as I do not always attend at it. He has tried everything else and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have much found it to be all, and even more, than you recommended it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a wash bath, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and usually had be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proof flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not named, for I use it for everything. I have been in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome to it.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents or five dollars, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Square Boxes at 50 cents each County Rights sold. Prepared by C. SAWYER, and put up by T. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale Agent for Portland, Me., to whom all orders should be addressed. Send for circular. Sold by T. M. Robbins, Portland, Me.

By-Law No.

A BY-LAW to aid and assist the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and to issue Debentures therefor and to authorize the levying of a special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest thereon.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to aid and assist in the construction of The Ontario and Quebec Railway by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars payable as hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipality to cause to be issued Debentures to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the said Municipality and to dispose thereof in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred dollars to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality irrespective of any future increase of the same and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned or any part thereof according to the last revised and equalised Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality being for the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy one was the sum of three millions eight hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred and thirty one dollars.

And whereas the amount of the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is the principal the sum of forty two thousand dollars and for interest the sum of thirty thousand one hundred and twenty dollars and there is no part of such interest in arrear,

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and interest as hereinbefore mentioned it will require an equal annual special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough.

1.—That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the County of Peterborough for the time being to cause any number of Debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than one hundred dollars each and not exceeding in the aggregate the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough and be signed by the Warden and the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

2.—That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-Law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality and shall have attached thereto coupons for the payment of the interest thereon.

3.—That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the day hereinafter appointed for this By-Law to take effect which interest shall be payable on the first days of January and July in each and every year at the office of the Treasurer aforesaid.

4.—That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said Debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon an equal special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said Debentures.

5.—That this By-Law shall take effect and come into operation upon the twenty ninth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy three.

6.—That the Debentures so to be issued as aforesaid to the amount of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be delivered by the Warden of the said County of Peterborough for the time being to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company upon and subject to the terms and conditions following that is to say:

(1) That the proposed Railway of the said Company shall traverse the County of Peterborough from the Eastern limit thereof at the boundary line between the Counties of Hastings and Peterborough and pass through the Township of Belmont and the Town of Peterborough in the said County and thence to the Western boundary of the said County.

(2) That their said proposed road shall as to the construction of that part thereof within the County of Peterborough be actually and bona fide commenced on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three and shall be wholly completed between the cities of Ottawa and Toronto on or before the first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy seven.

(3) That the charges for freight by the said proposed Railway to and from any point within the County of Peterborough aforesaid and the City of Montreal shall not at any time exceed the charges for freight for the time being on the said proposed Railway to and from the City of Toronto and the said City of Montreal.

(4) That the said Company will erect and maintain their principal construction and repairing shops for that portion of their proposed Railway between the said Cities of Montreal and Toronto at the said Town of Peterborough,

(5) That Debentures to the amount of seventy five thousand dollars shall be so delivered over to the said Company whenever the said proposed Railway shall have been completely graded and bridged through the said County of Peterborough in the direction hereinbefore judicieed and subject to the conditions herein contained and whenever the said Company shall have given security by their bond or covenant with a penalty to be amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the performance of the above condi ions numbered three and four and that debentures to the remaining sum of seventy five thousand dollars be delivered to the said Company when their said proposed Railway shall have been completed between the Cities of Ottawa and Toronto aforesaid Provided that the said Municipality may in its discretion instead of delivering the said Debentures as aforesaid as to the whole or any part of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars sell and dispose of the said Debentures or any part thereof and pay over to the said Company in cash the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars or any part thereof.

(6) That the said Company shall not be entitled to and shall not receive interest upon the said Debentures or any of them except only from the time at which they shall be delivered to the said Company pursuant to the provisions of this Bylaw.

(7) That this By-law shall be inoperative and of no effect and no part of the said Debentures shall be handed over to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company unless the Municipality of the Town of Peterborough shall before the day hereinbefore appointed for the coming into force of this By law have duly passed a By-law of such Municipality giving and by way of Bonus to the said Company for the construction of such proposed Railway to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars.

7.—That unless the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway as to that part thereof within the said County of Peterborough be commenced as hereinbefore mentioned on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three this By-law shall be of no force or effect.

8.—That the votes of the Electors of the said Municipality shall be taken on this proposed By-law on Saturday the twenty-fifth day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three at the following places and before the following Returning Officers:

WM. McCULLAGH.

Towards night, the scene having reached its acme of unpleasantness, the rain ceased, and the natives poured into camp from the villages in the woods with their vendibles. Foremost among these, as in duty bound, came the village sultan—lord, chief or head—bearing three measures of matama and half a measure of rice, of which he begged, with paternal smiles, my acceptance. But under the smiling mask, bleared eyes and wrinkled front of him was visible the soul of trickery, which was of the meanest kind. Responding under the same mask adopted by this knavish elder, I said, "The chief of Lingara has called me a rich sultan. If I am a rich rich sultan why comes not the chief with a rich present to me that he might get a rich return?" Said he with another leer of his wrinkled visage "Kingara is poor, there is no matama in the village." To which I replied that since there was no matama in the village I would pay him half a shukka, or one yard of cloth, which would be exactly equivalent to his present, that if he preferred to call his small basket-tal a present, I should be content to call my yard of cloth a present. With which logic he was fain to be satisfied.

Girls and their Mothers.

Does any parent ask, What would you have your little girls do? We reply, Learn in earliest life to help to be useful, to wait on others, rather than be waited on. They should learn to be thoughtful, to take care, to accept responsibility, to live a life as serious as their mental powers, and their social, domestic, and individual affections are pure, dignified and exalted. If any we have over-colored the statement of the case, and girls are not brought up in idleness, frivolity, and dissipation, we are glad, for the sake of those who deny the picture that their daughters are better educated. We do not write for their instruction, but for the instruction of those who neglect that moral education of their children, which is not to be found in sermons and Sunday school lessons, but in the actual service of life, that moral education which is to keep childhood pure, sweet and holy, and make it strong for the purpose of existence.—Christian Register.

Slates to be Abolished.

A general war is being waged against the use of slates in the schools of Germany. There is scarcely any sound more offensive to the human ear than the grating of the pencil on the slate, and when this is multiplied by numbers in the school, the effect is said to be extremely injurious to the nerves of many children, and leave evil influences for life. In addition to this, the use of slates is attended with many other disadvantages. Children acquire a heavy hand by their use, and accustom themselves to a vicious holding of the pen. Physicians say that the sight is injured by it. The slate is heavy and is easily broken, and is a noisy implement in the school-room, besides being quite inconvenient to carry with books. In short, the slate ought to be abolished entirely, in the verdict. But it is a necessary evil, without a substitute. Many ingenious minds have been seeking for years for a satisfactory remedy, and at last a practical teacher thinks he has found it.

Mr. Wagner comes forth with a sort of pasteboard that presents all the convenience of the slate, with the advantages of writing on paper. Pen and ink are used, as on ordinary paper, but the writing can easily be effaced, and the same board or card used an indefinite number of times. The Saxon Board of Instruction have granted Mr. Wagner a patent for his invention, and he details the following as the advantages:

It is more easy to write on these cards than on paper, and a great economy of paper is thereby effected in favor of the poor children of the People's Schools. It is easy with them to acquire an excellent hand in writing. As proof of their durability, a school of one hundred and sixty children spoiled only four in ten weeks. Practice and experience prove that it is more easy to learn to write well with them than with paper. They are light and elastic, and not the least noise needs be made in handling them. They seem, in short, to be a great step in advance of the many patent slates on which pencils are used, and will doubtless, in many respects, prove a blessing to multitudes of school children, storekeepers, accountants, and others who need to use quantities of paper for temporary purposes.—Ladies' Repository.

For loss of cud, horn ail, red water in cows, loss of appetite, rot, or murrain in sheep; thick wind, broken wind, and roaring, and for all obstructions of the kidneys, in horses use "Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders."

To persons employed in constant mental toil, studior anxiety, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is especially adapted, namely to Teachers, Clergymen, Editors, Lawers and impecunious business men.

Is your throat sore, or are you annoyed by a constant cough? If so use promptly "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers." They will give you instant relief. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price 25 cents per box.

That iron is valuable as a medicine has long been known, but it is only since its preparation in the particular form of Peruvian Syrup that its full power over disease has been brought to light. Its effect in cases of dyspepsia and debility is most salutary.

Lieutenant Lynch in his voyage to the Dead Sea found a high pillar of Salt on the shore, and the Arabs informed him that it was Lot's wife; for our part we are much inclined to doubt it, though we have no hesitation in saying that the best thing to cure coughs, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, bowel complaints, &c., is the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," to be had of all medicine dealers for 25 cts per bottle. Try one!

There are thousands of poor horses dragging out a miserable existance, suffering from a variety of diseases, rendering them almost worthless, that would be restored to a healthy and sound condition, and a value given to them of which their owners never dreamed, would they but use the means within their reach. From one to three packages of "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" will in all cases produce a satisfactory result; hundreds have testified to the fact. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ontario, proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that we know, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Whosoever applied you get the benefit of every drop, whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

Ayer's Ague Cure

For Fever and Ague, Fever and Ague, Periodical or Intermittent Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does cure all such complaints, and does it surely. Containing neither arsenic, quinine, nor any mineral whatever, it is entirely harmless on the most delicate constitution, while its powers over the disease are wonderful. No one suffering from the influence of the poisonous exhalations of the [illegible] can long escape their effects, unless they counteract them by the use of this antidote. Travellers and temporary residents should not be without it. For [illegible] Remittents, and Liver Complaints, it is a specific, and when a cathartic is required, should be taken in connection with the Pills.

PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all druggists in the world.

PRICE $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

WHAT BURNED FARMER BROWN.

BY JOHN H. YATES.

Well, wife, the end has come at last! Old farmer Brown is dead!
The neighbors bound him in the house, stretched cold and stiff in bed;
Beneath the rags that covered him, held firm in a death-clog,
They found, with every drop drained out, his old brown whisky jug.

How sad to live a life like his, how sad like him to die
Alone, in a deserted house, no friends or kindred nigh.
To stagger down from manhood to the gloomy river's brink,
The bargeman of earth and heaven to sacrifice for drink.

And what was farmer Brown, dear wife, a few short years ago?
An honest, lolling, sober man, kind to both friend and foe.
There was no better farm than his in all the neighborhood,
Well fenced, well watered; the barns and horses good.

His wife was happy and content, singing from morn till night,
For everything upon the farm and in the house went right.
Until the tempter came, and said, "You have much goods in store,
Now eat and drink, rich farmer Brown, let toiling days be o'er."

He listened to the tempter, and that was his greatest sin.
He hired men to sow the wheat and reap the harvest in.
He left off following the plow, he gave all work a frown
And hitching up his finest horse, drove often into town.

Men put him up for office, and learned him all the tricks,
That constitutes a scholar in the school of politics.
This brought him often to the bar, where whisky is the thing,
And smoother strong Goliath fell a victim to the sling.

From that date things went downward, as by a whirlwind's arm,
And Brown was soon a drunkard upon a ruined farm.
The fences down, a leaky house, no crops to gather in,
No goods in store for future want, in opulence turn to sin.

One cold and dreary autumn, when the leaves were falling down,
His wife died broken hearted, and was buried by the town.
The well there is an after life, made up of perfect bliss,
For broken hearted, weary wives, who find no joy in this.

And now the end has come at last, as it doth quickly come,
To all who bind upon themselves the cruel chains of rum,
He left the world to others, for the bar-room in the town,
And that, dear wife, was surely what ruined farmer Brown.

Debate on the Sale of Crown Lands.

From the Globe of the 11th inst.

In answer to Mr. CAMERON.

Hon. Mr. SCOTT said he had not intended to make any observations upon the Address, but several hon. gentlemen having incidentally drawn attention to his management of the Crown Lands—some of them in the most kindly manner—he thought it desirable to give some explanations in regard to the territory, and the motives which induced him to recommend the sale of the timber limits thereon. He had occasion last summer to visit the Lake Superior region, and he found the territory north of it and Lake Huron a bleak waste for the most part. He found on turning up the records that nearly the whole of that territory had at one time been put under licence to the friends of the Government of that day, none of whom, with one or two exceptions, were connected with the lumber trade. All that was charged was a ground rent of fifty cents per square mile. He held in his hand the report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands for 1856, which contained a long list of the names of the gentlemen to whom the territory was licensed. It showed also that the Government received that year from thes ground rents only about £600. The parties who had the licences, not understanding the lumber trade, declined to pay even the small ground rents, and consequently the limits came back to the Government. He found also that an effort had been made to settle that country. In 1862 the land was offered at 20 cents an acre but in the ten years from that date only about 200 acres a year were sold. The attempt to induce settlement failed. He was familiar with the settlement of Maine, as well as the Ottawa Valley, and recognizing the importance of settling that territory, he believed the only way to accomplish that was to enlist the active co-operation of gentlemen engaged in the lumber trade, who, by purchasing the timber limits, would have a direct interest in the settlement of the territory. He had first intended to sell a much larger block, but subsequently reserved two large townships, which contained far the best timber. Had he sold these he would have received over a million more than he did receive. His hon. friend (Mr. Cameron) had observed that he had sold all the territory on Lake Huron. Had the hon. gentleman, when he was Commissioner of Crown Lands, made himself acquainted with this territory as he ought to have done, he would have known that he had sold only a very small slice of it. He had been charged in the public press with having been actuated with sordid and selfish motives in putting this territory under license. When all the facts were known and the whole policy explained he did not think there would be a man in the country that would not acquit him of this charge. Had he desired to favor those with whom he had been long associated—the people of the Ottawa Valley—he might have placed under license a territory one mile of which was worth one hundred miles of the territory which he had sold. He could have put up a block of land on which he could have got a bonus of five millions of dollars. He spoke of what he knew when he made that statement. So far as the timber was concerned, he considered the land sold was probably the least valuable of all our timber lands. Up to the time of their sale the whole extent of our timber limits was 12,000 square miles, from which a revenue accrued last year in dues alone of $659,000. He should have added, to these 12,000 square miles, fifty per cent, for what was known as the Ottawa Valley. There were 5,700 square miles there, and he did not hesitate to say that if that territory was put in the market they could get a bonus of five millions. He estimated the value of that block of land for the timber alone at twenty-five million dollars. Talk about the surplus of the Province—it was very little compared with the value of our immense timber limits. His object in putting a small portion of the territory in the market was not so much the accumulation of money but rather the settlement of it. By that policy he had secured the direct interest in the settlement of some 40 or 50 capitalists of this country, who would invest on an average at least $50,000 each in that territory, so that in a few years some three or four millions would be invested there in saw mills, roads, and farms and general improvements. That land at present was perfectly impassable to settlers, but in the hands of those men, who knew how to get money out of its timber, it would soon become settled so that in the next decade it would be filled with flourishing villages and fine cultivated farms. The lumberman must grow his own hay and oats and create a little colony around him, he must have a body of workmen, and therefore it would be his interest to take steps that would lead to the settlement of that country. He would repeat that the territory sold was the least valuable of all our timber berths. He could have put up one-fifth of the quantity and it would have realized double the amount.

It being six, the House rose.

After recess,

Mr. SCOTT resumed: His hon. friend from East Toronto had criticised the Government for having sold these timber berths without having first submitted the question to Parliament. He had stated that before offering that territory to public competition, they should have submitted the scheme to the House. He (Mr. Scott) was not aware that this had been the practice in the past.

Mr. CAMERON wished to correct the hon. gentleman. What he had stated was that considering the course which the party with which the hon. gentleman was now identified had taken in demanding that the location of a building which would not cost more than $20,000 or $30,000, should be submitted to Parliament, they should not have disposed of public property worth millions without the consent of Parliament.

Mr. SCOTT said he was not aware that gentlemen on his side of the House commented in any way upon the action taken by the late Administration when they offered for sale the Muskoka territory. That was some fifteen months ago. That territory contained probably the very best of our timber berths, inasmuch as they were more accessible to a market than any other section. It was quite true that the unlicensed portion of the Ottawa valley up the Mattawa river, and on both sides of Lake Nipissing, was very valuable for its timber. But it had this disadvantage, that it generally took two years to get the timber down to market. In the Muskoka territory the facilities were such that the timber was invariably brought out the first year. That territory was placed in the market by the late Government in November, 1871. He was not aware that any member of the then Opposition condemned the course taken in offering that territory for sale. It was quite true that the Government of the day was subject to a good deal of criticism for offering for sale a territory which was then in the hands of settlers. It would be remembered that deputation after deputation came down from Muskoka and protested against the sale of territory occupied by farmers, and under the pressure of public opinion the Government of that day withdrew from the position they first assumed. They passed an Order in Council a few days before the sale, withdrawing from the sale all the lands located up to a certain day in that year—some day in September, he thought—giving to settlers the right to purchase the timber by paying the Crown dues. That regulation applied only to those who had been located. Unfortunately a very large number of people who had gone into remote townships, and who did not get the newspapers, were not aware of the Order in Council and had not taken the trouble to locate believing that the Government, as in times past, would recognize the right of the first settler. These settlers found subsequently that their lands had been placed under license. His attention had been painfully drawn to this state of affairs, and it had led to very serious embarrassment in the administration of the affairs of the Crown Land Department. He might mention one case and ex uno disce omnes—from one learn all, a man had taken up 300 acres in one of the remote townships, had cleared more than 60 acres and made a number of improvements in the way of buildings, &c. He had failed to locate himself, and his timber was sold to Cook Bros., under the Order in Council. He had been on this farm some six or seven years. He came down to Toronto and remonstrated against the impropriety of selling the timber on the land upon which he had been so long a resident. This was a case of very grievous and cruel wrong, and he felt it would be the duty of the department to revert from the lumberman territory which had been so long a time occupied by honest settler. That was only one instance of hardship arising from the Government having sold territory that was largely occupied by settlers. The true way in all cases was for the lumberman to precede the settler. He gave employment to the settler and provided a market for him. He knew there were some farmers in the Nipissing country who got $30 a ton for their hay. He could himself recollect the time when the hay for the Upper Ottawa was purchased in Glengary, Ottawa and other sections and by the time it was taken to the shanties it cost $50, $60 and even $100 a ton. It required therefore, no argument to convince hon members that the lumberman, the moment he commenced his operations, was interested in indemnifying settlers to come in with him. He never discovered that there was anything inimical in the position of the lumberman and the settler coming together and developing the great interests of this country—the stronger man helping the weaker. He knew it had been urged against himself that having been intimately connected with the lumber trade, not pecuniarily, but as an advocate, he was not the proper person to assume the administration of the Crown Lands. Hon. gentlemen would remember that he was assailed in the newspapers, and was charged with being the paid advocate of the lumbermen. It was alleged that he took office for the purpose of giving the lumberman an advantage over the settler. His answer to that charge was to be found in a retrospect of the past year. He would ask the House to compare the results of the past year with previous years and say whether he had in a single instance taken the side of the strong against the weak. (Hear, hear.) His sympathies had always been with the settler. The lumbermen were wealthy and quite able to take care of themselves, and when his report came down, as it would in a few days, he believed it would show that he had sheltered the settler, while at the same time he had served the interests of this country by realizing a larger revenue from the Crown Lands than was ever realized in this Province. He had with him the report of the Commissioner for 1867 and having compared it with other years he found the largest revenue was obtained in that year. It should be remembered that at that time the Crown Land Department embraced the Crown, Common and Grammar School Lands of the Provinces. It embraced the mines and the ordnance lands. From all these sources the revenue from both Provinces amounted in 1866 to $1,350,760. He would now read these by way of comparison, the amount received by the Crown Land Department in 1871 and 1872. In 1871 the proceeds of the Crown Lands were $180,000, and in 1872 $193,000, Clergy lands, 1871, $85,000, as against $121,000 in 1872; Common School lands in 1871, $77,000, and in 1872, 80,000; Grammar School lands in 1871, $6,000, and in 1872 $12,000. The total sum received in the land branch was, in 1871, $349,000 and in 1872, $407,000. The proceeds of the Woods and Forests branch were in 1872, $570,000, and in 1872, $1,191,436. The total receipts for 1871 were $869,000, and for 1872 $1,416,000 This was exclusive of the notes that were held on account of half of the sales in October. On the morning of the sale, finding that the banks were stringent, he agreed to take one half the purchase money in notes. This would make the total receipts in 1872, $1,696,000. He might add that the number of patents issued in 1872 was nearly one-third in excess of 1871, and nearly double of 1870. He had not made this increase out of the settlers, as would be seen by the figures, the sale of Crown lands in 1871 being 78,000 acres, realizing $180,000, and in 1872, 113,623 acres, realizing $193,000 showing that the people paid less for their lands by a considerable sum in 1872 than in 1871.

Mr. WOOD—Where are those lands chiefly situated, on Lake Superior?

Mr. SCOTT—No. The lands on Lake Superior are called mining lands. These lands are all over the country. They were townships surveyed and returned to the department of Crown lands. Last year the mining lands of Lake Superior amounted to 320,000, this year they would amount to $150,000, which he believed was in excess of all the land ever held on Lake Superior. He observed that the press representing hon. gentlemen opposite called him to account for the reckless manner in which he had sold the mining lands on Lake Superior. They might have commenced their criticism nearer home. The Dominion Government, following the course adopted by the late Government, had offered their mining lands in the North west at $1 an acre. The Dominion Government adopted almost the very words of the statute passed by this Legislature in 1870. When the Local Legislature first met there was a great deal of interest taken in the mines on Lake Superior. His hon. friend from Niagara, who was then Commissioner, seemed to think that the only way was to hold on to the lands, at any rate, if any one did spend anything in developing them he must at least divide the profits with the Government. If he failed he had to bear the whole expenses, but if he succeeded he must divide with the Government. The result was that not a single location was made on Lake Superior. But the pressure of public opinion was so great that the following year his hon. friend had to reverse his policy, but still he held on to the pine. Patentees could get the mining land at $1 an acre, but they could not get the pine. That was all very well had there been any pine to reserve, but unfortunately there was none. Some hon. gentleman had suggested to him that it would be wiser so have a survey of the country made by mineralogists. He differed entirely from that view, it would throw upon the Government a very serious responsibility. They all knew that veins were sometimes discovered which seemed to prove hopeful at first, but after a large expenditure of money they would suddenly give out occasioning great loss. Suppose that a mineralogist employed by Government should come upon one of these veins and report that the locality was likely to prove valuable, then the location would be put up for sale, and sold for a good sum, and after a large expenditure it was found of no value. The Government would be held morally responsible to the purchaser who had invested his money in the venture on the faith of the report to the Government by the mineralogist. Besides, just fancy the charges of corruption and favoritism that might be urged, it would be simply impossible for any officer to deal with the matter and keep his skirts clean. The fair way was to throw the territory open to the world, and the first man that complied with the conditions, got the property. They had sold 150,000 acres, but that was only a very small fraction of it. At least they had 100 townships of mineral lands, and these would for many years continue to realize a very important revenue. The only fear was that it might cause embarrassment in connection with the question relating to the balance as between the other Provinces It Ontario secured one of them for western boundaries, and secured enormous mineral wealth, it might create embarrassment in this direction, and it might be that this boundary question would therefore have to be settled upon a semi political basis. Before the recess he had made a few observations as to the charge that he had wantonly and recklessly disposed of the timber berths. His object was not to favor the lumberman but to open up the territory. Had his object been to add a very large sum to the revenue, he could have placed under license, in the Ottawa valley, lands, one acre of which was worth ten acres of the Lake Superior country. They had 5,750 square miles of territory yet in the Ottawa region that was not under license, on which not a tree had been cut, and which contained some of the finest pine on this continent, perhaps this side of the Rocky Mountains. That land lay north of townships sold to the Canadian Land Co., up to the Mattawa river, to the southeast and southwest of Nipissing, and northward to the Montreal river. He was not aware that fire had yet passed over those lands, or that they were in any way deteriorated in value. He ventured to say that if they chose to sell that territory out and out they could get twenty-five millions for it, and the purchasers could make twenty-five millions more out of it. We could prove that statement by figures. There were under license, in Ontario, a fraction over 12,000 square miles.

Mr. WOOD—Does that include the late sales?

Mr. SCOTT—No. Taking the Ottawa Country, the country behind Belleville, and the Muskoka territory, there were in all 12,000 square miles. The accruals from these lands in 1872 were over $600,000. The Ottawa agency produced $332,283; the Belleville agency, $117,772, and the Western section including Muskoka, $140,759. Then there was about $40,000 from smaller sources, making in all, the accruals in 1872, $638,000. A portion of this was from territory which had been under licenses for upwards of 25 years. Hon. gentlemen could, therefore, estimate what must be the value of territory on which no revenue whatever had yet been realized, and which was equal in extent to one-half of the land under license. They could also estimate from these figures the value of the timber trade of the country, and what it will yet become. In 1867, when he brought the matter before the House, he computed the export trade in lumber to Ontario at seven millions. This year he estimated it at twelve millions, and this trade was worth, to this Province, upwards of one million. He had a different idea from some hon. members as to where our surplus came from. At the time of Confederation, when the subsidies to each of the Provinces were arranged, it was assumed that the Crown Lands Department would only pay its expenses, including the expenditure on Colonization roads, &c. No revenue was ever expected to arise from that source. He had already shown by figures that the dues alone were considerably over half a million in excess of the estimated sum in 1865; and there was where the surplus came from, and where it could come from for the next twenty-five or thirty years, if these lands were properly handled. In addition to this, a large share of our prosperity was due to the money that was brought into this country from abroad in exchange for timber and lumber. Valuable as no doubt the agricultural interests of this country were, it from any circumstance this trade was stopped for one year the effect upon the whole Province would be perceptible to an extraordinary degree. In no trade was the money received from it so generally disseminated among all classes of society. There was scarcely a man in the community that did not, in some degree or other, reap the advantages that we receive from the sale of our timber in the United States and Europe. The trade gave employment to the labourer and a market to the farmer. It would surprise hon. gentlemen if they would take a run up to some of the northerly counties and see that there was scarcely a mill in the Province that was not represented by the brands on the barrels of flour for the lumbermen. They would find consignments of corn and pork, &c., from the various hamlets and towns of Ontario. He had himself seen at Sand Point, in November, when the supplies for the winter were being collected at the railway terminus, a line of barrels of pork and flour over half a mile in length and 40 feet in width, from Bradford, Paris, London, Galt, and almost every part in Ontario. He did not desire to weary the House with these statements, but when his whole course was impugned before the House he trusted they would see that the charges made against him at the time when he undertook the administration of the department had not in any degree been sustained. He thought the figures would bear him out in stating that at no time and under no circumstances had he sacrificed the interests of the settler. On the contrary, he had endeavoured to favor the settler wherever he could, and to remove the many grievances that had arisen in past years. He saw the statement made in the press that they had sold this vast territory on which they had only sold the timber berths. Those gentlemen who had bought the timber berths and paid over half a million did so for the purpose of being elected guardians over it. They could not occupy a foot of the land without paying for it. They were to pay $2 per square mile, and just such dues as the Government of the day might think proper. It the Government had to watch that territory for the next ten years it would not be worth one thousand dollars. He had been told the other day on the cars by Mr. Cook that the receipts he had from Lecture, W. M. Church.

We understand that the Rev. Mr. Dewart, editor of the Christian Guardian, will deliver a lecture in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, here, on Tuesday evening, 28th inst. Subject—"Characteristics and Tendencies of the Time." The Rev. Gentleman is a good speaker and lecturer and will attract a full house. All should hear him. The proceeds will be in aid of the Young Peoples Church Extension Fund.

Popular Lecture.

The first of a series of lectures provided by the Teachers of St. Andrew's Church Sabbath School will be delivered in Hill's Music Hall, on the evening of Wednesday the 29th inst., at 7.30 p.m., by the Rev. J. Allister Murray. Subject—"Heroes, and Hero-worship." Tickets of admission (price 15 cents each) can be had at the door.

Sabbath School Convention.

We direct the attention of Ministers, Sabbath School Superintendents, Teachers and all interested in the success of Sabbath Schools to the third of the advertising Counties to day advertisement which appears in our columns to-day of the approaching County S. S. Convention. Circulars have, or are now being sent out as far as known to all Ministers of the Gospel and Sabbath School workers. It will be seen by the circular that arrangements are being made to furnish homes for all delegates and visitors from a distance. This provision ought to induce a very large representation and we hope that the friends will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity. We will at another time refer to the value of S. S. Conventions.

MECHANIC'S INSTITUTE LECTURE.

We are glad to learn that the Lecture Committee of the Mechanic's Institute have made arrangements for a course of Lectures of a high class during the remainder of the season. The first lecture will be given on Thursday next by Mr. Bernard Bigsby, late of the London Graphic on "Life in the Netherlands."

Mr. Bigsby's lectures are spoken of in the highest terms in the Press of those places where he has lectured and we can safely promise that those who hear him on this occasion will be amply repaid.

The Toronto Mail in noticing this lecture in Toronto says:

"Last night Mr. Barnard Bigsby gave his so called "Lecture," which was really almost amusing as well as instructive chat upon Dutch life and manners, called "Down among the Dutchmen." Mr. Bigsby is one of the few men emphatically "cut out" for the peculiar role of a public lecturer, and those who might have been present and were not, lost a treat which we had not anticipated, and in which we would willingly be sharers a second time. Mr. Bigsby, late on the staff of the English Graphic, possesses all the natural qualifications to make an able lecturer. In personal appearance, voice, and manner he is all that an audience could desire, and the alternate fits of laughter or seriousness into which he compelled his audience last night proved his power conclusively.

As the Committee will be under considerable expense in securing these lecturers it is hoped that the Public will show their appreciation of their efforts by turning out in goodly numbers.

THE BONUS IN CAVAN.

Mr. Fowler is holding meetings in Cavan, Manvers and Cartwright, agitating bonuses for the Ontario and Quebec Railway.

The first meeting was held in Millbrook, on Monday, Mr. W. Sowden, Reeve, in the Chair.

The meeting was well attended, about 300 persons were present, chiefly farmers from all parts of the Township.

Mr. Fowler first addressed the meeting, by referring to the object of it, and his being asked by Sir Hugh Allan to pass through those Townships and find what bonus they would give. He showed what advantage would accrue to the people along the line of the road, when built, by placing them in as favourable a position as to the great markets of the Dominion and of Britain, as they who live in the vicinity of frontier towns. He also referred to the charges from Millbrook to Port Hope, amounting to about four cents per bushel on grain, and showed conclusively that the Ontario and Quebec Road would enable every farmer to secure just that much more for every bushel now sold and delivered at the Millbrook Station.

Mr. Claxton followed Mr. Fowler, and as a grain dealer, entered at length on the causes of lower prices at Millbrook than at Port Hope, viz: The freight to Port Hope, 6 cts. The cost of transhipment there 1 ct., or about 6 cts. per bushel. And then at Port Hope it was no nearer Montreal, the great grain market, than when at Millbrook. The Grand Trunk was wholly unfit or unwilling to remove the grain in any reasonable time, and the consequence is that buyers had to allow a margin for any anticipated change in the prices before he could get his grain to market. All these things had to be considered, and had their effect on prices. He said that at present Spring Wheat is $1.40 in Montreal, in Millbrook $1.10 to $1.15. The cost of shipment to Montreal is about 17 cts. If the grain buyer could get it away as soon as purchased he could afford 4 or 5 cts. a bushel more than he does pay. But he had the full wheat purchased months ago in his store house yet, and could not secure a car to take it away, hence what was the use in buying more to be there, he did not know how long. Mr. Claxton then went on to show how a competing line would tend to remedy this, by endeavouring to secure the trade of the country along its route, and as two roads could do more than one, the country business would be better attended to.

Some one from the Township being asked to address the meeting, Mr. John Thorn did so. He complied that the road would be a curse to the Township, and hoped it would go by way of Lindsay instead of by Cavan, and, contrary to the Statutes and the assertions of Mr. Fowler, declared it was Stock that they were asking, not a Bonus, as the Statutes said so. The only inference reasonable men could draw is that Mr. Thorn does not read the Statutes.

Mr. Sing said the road would be a curse to the Township.

Mr. A. Garnett, one of the largest Ratepayers in the Township, was in favor of giving a bonus, and believed that every farmer in the Township would be ten-fold repaid before 20 years.

Mr. John Swain also spoke in favor of the road, and said that it only required about $3,000 a year from the Township to pay it off, and he felt sure that the Township would be repaid, amply, in ten years for the whole thing. He was not of Mr. Sing's opinion that railroads were a curse, for he once had to take an oath on the matter and he had to honestly swear that they were a benefit to any country, and he was of that opinion still.

Mr. W. H. Scott also addressed the meeting, and at some length explained that it was a bonus they were asked for, and that they could attach their own terms in their By-law.

Mr. Stratton followed in a very few remarks, as the evening was far advanced, adducing evidence of the advantages of the road, to farmers especially, as all or almost all the extra profits would be reaped by them, and urged them to consider the matter intelligently, not with prejudice for or against, and having formed an intelligent opinion, then to act, and act earnestly, whether for or against the bonus, and whether gained or lost, the gain or loss would be theirs.

Mr. Holland, of Port Hope, asked permission to address the meeting, and did so from a Port Hope stand point, although not delegated for the purpose. He, however, did more to convince the people that it was to their interest to secure the Ontario and Quebec Railway than anticipated.

At the close of the meeting the following resolution was carried, only 4 hands being raised against it:

Moved by A. Garnett, seconded by M. Gardiner,—That having heard the explanations of the Deputation, this meeting is of opinion that the construction of the Ontario Road through the Township, with a Station at or South of Cavanville on the Gravel road, would be a great benefit to the Township, and that to secure this a liberal bonus should be given towards the construction of it.

Mr. Thorn said he would propose an amendment. The Chairman said they could vote the resolution down. The resolution was then put, only 4 hands being lifted against it.

After a vote of thanks to the Chairman the meeting broke up.

THE MANVERS MEETING.

On Tuesday, at two o'clock, another meeting was held at Bethany; Porter Preston, Esq., Reeve in the Chair. The day was very stormy, notwithstanding which about 100 farmers were present.

Mr. Fowler opened the meeting by stating the object of it, and showing the advantages of the railway to the people of Manvers, as there would be a Station at or near Bethany, and also in the west of the Township. It would place Manvers very favorably as to communication with Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. It would enable them to take advantage of the best markets at as little cost as now takes them to Port Hope, and would permit them to leave home in the morning, go to Toronto, and remain there five to seven hours and return in time for tea, saving the cost of stopping over and an extra day's loss. Toronto might become their chief market for all the beef, mutton, butter, &c., they raised, and they thus would realize more on these small articles than would pay their taxes.

Mr. Stratton next addressed the meeting at considerable length, showing that the rate would only be for about $4000 a year, or about $6.50 to $7.50 on a farm valued at $1000. And for this they would receive directly increase prices for grain, pork, beef, mutton, wool, wood, &c., more than five times the amount yearly. He also pointed out the madness of allowing the present opportunity to pass, as such another might not offered again: for if the Road went by way of Lindsay they must put up with a tax of six cents a bushel of freight to Port Hope for ever, or drive their produce to Lindsay or some other market not so advantageous as it would be in their own township. He next pointed out that the cost of constructing the road 10 miles through their Township would be not less than $100,000, this would be spent among them for labor, produce, lumber, timber, ties, &c., and thus they would receive in a few years three times what they would be called on to pay in twenty years.

Mr. Scott followed, and in an able speech summed up all the arguments in favor of the bonus, and urged all to honestly and intelligently consider the matter at home and vote for it, as it would ten times repay them before a cent of the bonus should be asked from them.

Mr. A. Garnett, of Cavan, also addressed the meeting in favor of aiding the Road, and placed the matter before them as a farmer should do in their own interest, asking them to investigate the matter, and then he knew they would vote for it.

It was then moved by Mr. Wm. Johnston, and seconded by Mr. D. McMullen, and unanimously carried,—That after hearing the explanations of the Deputation, this meeting believes that the construction of the Ontario and Quebec Rail Railroad through this Township with a station at or near Bethany and another station at the west side of the Township would be a great benefit, and that a liberal to recommend to be given by this Township towards the construction of the road.

The Chairman was loudly called on for his opinion, which he gave in a very lucid and satisfactory manner. He said he was in favor of the road and of giving a liberal bonus. He thought the matter was very fairly and honestly placed before them, and they must see that the road would repay them five times every year. He had opposed the bonus to the Bowmanville road, because he saw that to go only to the Village of Bowmanville was no advantage to the people Manvers. This bonus he would vote for and favor because it placed Manvers as favorably as any Port Hope, and Cobourg. They would then be on the direct line to the great grain markets, as well as the markets for pork, beef, mutton, &c., and stations being in their township would place them right on the front, so to speak, and would be of great advantage to them. Manvers, therefore, is alive to its own interests and will carry the bonus.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday at Noon, and the Clerk declared that all had made and subscribed the necessary declaration of qualification, and declaration of office.

The Council organized, the minutes were read and confirmed.

Messrs. J. J. Hall and R. Pearce were appointed Auditors, and Messrs. Smith, Toole, Lundy, Deane, and the Mayor were appointed a Committee to name Standing Committees.

The Council again met in the evening, all the members present.

The minutes were read and confirmed.

A communication from R. A. Harrison, to Mr. W. H. Scott, on the Fire By law, was read and submitted. He advises amendments. The By-law at present is defective.

Also a communication from Mr. Belcher, stating that owing to press of business he was unable to report on the Iron Bridge this week, but would do so by next meeting.—Received.

From Owen Dowling, asking for an increase of the sum granted him weekly; referred to the Finance Committee.

From Benjamin Elliott, asking for a Tavern License. Referred to the License Inspector.

Accounts from Robertson & Walsh for $38.70, and from Mr. J. Doherty, for $27.75, were referred to the Finance Committee; also a communication from Mr. Romaine, as to the Map of the town.

The committee appointed to strike the standing committee reported, as follows:

Finance Committee—Messrs. Smith, Lundy, Moore and Deane.

License—Messrs. English, Hopkins, Burritt and Sperry.

Streets and Bridges—Messrs. Lundy, Toole, English and Dixon.

Charities—Messrs. Helm, Patterson, Burritt and Sperry.

Printing and Petitions—Messrs. Smith, Hopkins, Moore and Dixon.

Appointments to Office—Burritt, Hopkins, English and Sperry.

Court of Revision—Smith, Dixon, Lundy, Moore and Toole.

Fire—Helm, Burritt, Patterson and Sperry.

Water and Gas—Toole, Lundy, English and Deane.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English, the application of Benjamin Elliott was referred to the License Inspector, with power to grant the same if he finds the house a proper one for that purpose.

An amendment by Mr. Sperry, seconded by Mr. Dixon to refer it to the License Committee was put and lost. The original motion was then put and carried.

Moved by Mr. Patterson, seconded by Mr. Lundy,—That the License Committee be instructed to revise the License By-law, and report to this Council before the First of March.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Moore, Mr. Armour of Cobourg was heard before the Council in reference to the extension of time for completing the Railroad from Cobourg to Chemong Lake, and urging the Council to give an expression of their opinion whether they were in favor of extension of time or not.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Burritt,—That this Council agrees to submit, subject to the approval of the Town Solicitor, a By-law to the people for the purpose of extending the time for completing the Cobourg, Peterboro & Marmora Railroad from Rice Lake to Chemong Lake from the first of April to the first of July, provided the said Company will not ask the first $40,000 in debentures until they have completed their road from Cobourg to Chemong Lake, so as to enable them to run trains from Cobourg to Chemong Lake.—Carried.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

THE TRUTH.

Members of the Town Council more than once have stepped aside to get a fling at John Walton, Esq., Warden of the County. Their doing so would not be worth referring to did they not commit their ideas to the shape of motions. At the last meeting of the Council but one they stated by motion, that the Warden had refused to do any thing towards the repairs of the Otonabee Bridge until the County Council meets

Believing this to be incorrect, we made enquiry and found that the Warden ordered payment to Messrs. Whyte and Davis (and they had received it) to the amount of $56.30, being for iron for Bridge 428 lbs at 10 cents, $42.80, 3 days work of Mr. Boyd at $2.50, $7.50: 4 days work of man at $1.50, $6.00. Total, $56.30.

And Messrs. Whyte & Davis have filed the receipt for the above amount in the County Treasurer's office.

We found in searching the Town accounts that Messrs. Whyte & Davis had received just $40 for iron for clamps and work, as follows:—

For 375 lbs. iron at 10 cts.....	37 50
1 days work of Mr. Boyd.....	2 50
	$40 00

And the receipt for this is also filed.

This shows that the County by order of the Warden has paid $16.30 more than the Town on account of recent repairs to the Otonabee Bridge, he believing the sum to be the same as the Town paid. But we found also that on the original construction of the temporary bridge and also of the new bridge the County paid $113.96 more than the Town, so that the County has already paid $130 16 more than the Town on account of the bridge. This will show that Mr. Walton has never refused to do what was right in the matter of joint jurisdiction over the bridge, and, not only so, but it proves that while members of the Town Council have been abusing him for not paying more, they themselves were not paying their just share.

"THE SPEAK NOW" SCANDAL EXPLAINED.

"Out of mine own mouth I condemn thee, thou wicked servant."

Mr. Cameron, leader of the Spittoon Brigade, guilty of appropriating the dirty scraps, and afterwards lying about them.

Mr. Ferguson, in the House on Friday brought up the "speak now" scandal and declared that Mr. Cameron, (not he Mr. F.) had taken the torn scraps of paper from Mr. E. B. Wood's seat and put them together again.

Mr. WOOD said it was unfortunate that some members of this House had thought fit to bring up this matter again. He should not refer to it at all were it not that some members were not familiar with the facts. He should be verry sorry to be in a position in which he would need commendation or a plea for fair play from the hon. member for South Simcoe. If he ever should be placed in that position he certainly should tremble for his reputation. He would not pretend to answer the attack which had been made upon him in the coarse, low style that pervaded so congenial to that gentleman. (Hear hear) He would simply make a statement of the facts. This note which had again been brought up to-day he had entirely forgotten, until in conversation with the member for Niagara some time after the defeat of the late Government it occurred to him that the charge that Mr. Blake had been writing to [illegible] to defeat him. He [illegible] and he did not believe entertained an unkind thought towards him. He told him that he was going to speak, and Mr. Macdonald asked him not to do so, that of course he knew the Government was gone, and recommended him not to speak. He therefore said he would not say a word, and he said nothing. He was sitting on one of the back seats and in the course of the evening, when there was a lull in the debate, one of the pages handed him a slip of paper. He opened it and found on it those memorable words which afforded such exceeding consolation to the member for Simcoe, which he had no doubt had been lithographed and framed by all the leaders of the Conservative party and hung up as an ornament in their houses, an heirloom to be handed down to their children's children to third and fourth generation. [Laughter.] They had taken the trouble to lithograph it, so that each member of the party might have a copy; and perhaps the member for Simcoe, being a shining light in the the great spittoon party, had been entrusted with the keeping of the original document. [Laughter.] How that might be he did not know, but it was one of those exceeding rare treasures that no doubt would form one of the permanent documents of the great party of which he supposed the hon. member had not hesitated to pronounce himself the leader, namely, the great spittoon and water-closet spoliation party. What he [Mr. W.] did with this paper he did not know. He believed he tore it in two pieces and threw it on the floor. That was the whole foundation for the charge of the hon. gentleman. Persons might infer from that just precisely what they chose. But what the hon. gentleman charged was that while he was a member of the Government, and sitting upon the Treasury benches, he received a note from Mr. Blake, telling him that was the proper time to rise and make his resignation. That was the charge. If that were not the charge, there was no pertinence in it. He gave that an emphatic and strong denial, and if there had been words in the English language stronger than the words he used he would have used them and stamped the person making that charge with that infamy he deserved. [Loud cheers.] That gentleman's hairs would be white with the snow of 80 winters before that stain would be wiped out of his character. Those who knew him [Mr. Wood] for many years would know whether or not a prison he could be guilty of such a charge. The hon. member had nevertheless so far forgotten his honor as a man as to repeat the charge to-night. The hon. gentleman said he did not pick up this paper and paste it together, but the receiver was as bad as the thief. [Cheers.] As to this matter of private letters, if they and private conversations were to be disclosed, then all intercourse between hon. gentlemen would be at an end. He had often been tempted to make allusions to private matters, but he had never done so. He adverted to the conduct of Sir John A. Macdonald in disclosing the contents of private letters from Mr. Scott. He had been charged by the member from Lincoln with accepting a brief from both parties, and at one supporting and at another time opposing the Government. Did the hon gentleman suppose that he must either support all the acts of the Government or oppose all their acts? He would not so degrade himself of his manhood. Hon. gentlemen might call him inconsistent, but the people could discriminate between a slavish support of either side and an independent, honest, and outspoken course. He would not stop to bandy words with the hon. member for South Grey, he had more important matters to attend to. He was really not worth a quarrel. [Laughter.] Upon the whole he rather liked the hon. gentleman; he was good natured; his bite was not half so bad as his bark. [Laughter.] He was great at barking, but he was not much of a biter after all. He was great at using big, high sounding words. He reminded him of the lines:—

Upithe the club of Hercules, for what?
To brain a butterfly or crush a gnat:
See, where in a mass in motion, awful clatter,
To force up one poor nipper am of water.
Bid ocean labour with tremendous roar,
To heave a cockle shell upon the shore.
In every theme the same his wondrous art,
Heaven's awful thunder or a rumbling cart.

(Great laughter).

He proceeded to advert to the other accusations that had been made against him. First he was sent to England, then he was to be appointed Crown Attorney, then again he was to be on some Commission, and then he was to have a seat in the Cabinet. All these predictions had failed. He stood there to-day, having been offered what the hon. gentleman never would have refused, independent of the men on the Treasury benches, as well as of the men on the Treasury benches at Ottawa; and as long as he had his health and intellect he could not at defiance the whole of his accusers, in the House and out of it, before any assembly of the people of this Dominion. He had now, he thought, disposed of this subject once and for ever.

Mr. LAUDER made some interruption.

Mr. WOOD observed that his words were no doubt like living coals to the hon. gentleman. It was very much like throwing burning coals of fire in a nest of vipers; it was like holy water where it was not wanted. (Laughter.) The hon. member for East Toronto had been dragged into this discussion; whether he chose to make any remarks or not he was perfectly indifferent. He had known the hon member for many years and entertained for him the highest respect.

Mr. PRINCE protested against a continuance of this discussion.

Mr. CAMERON said he would take this the first opportunity of stating that the remarks for Simcoe was not open to the charge of having picked up this paper. The paper was transmitted to him by him (Mr. C.) It was received by him (Mr. C.—at this moment it did not signify how. He was willing to assume all the odium of its being received in any manner in which the member for South Brant might see fit to charge him with receiving it; when the proper time came for him to tell how it was received he would tell it. In the meantime he had simply to say that the paper was in his possession when he was charging the member for South Brant with having betrayed his party and the Government of which he was a member. He charged the hon gentleman then, and he charged him now with that accusation. The enquiry that he proposed was barked by the ingenuity of the then Premier. He charged, among other things, that a communication had passed between Mr. Blake and Mr. Wood on the day on which the latter gentleman announced his resignation to the House. He alleged, as within his own knowledge that a communication had passed between these gentlemen when Mr. Wood was a member of the administration. When the hon gentleman announced his resignation to the House, it was not known by his colleagues that he had resigned. Half an hour before the House met he and Mr. Sandfield Macdonald were coming to the House when a messenger handed Mr. Macdonald a letter. He did not open it then and they went into the Treasurer's Office and spoke to Mr. Wood about the affairs of the Government. Mr. Wood asked if he had not received his letter. The Attorney-General replied that he had not. He (Mr. C.) reminded him that the note he had just received must have been it, whereupon Mr. Macdonald opened the letter and found it was Mr. Wood's resignation. While he and the Attorney-General were in the office a messenger came with a communication from Mr. Blake to Mr. Wood. The hon gentleman came into the House, and in response to the appeal made by Mr. Blake to each individual member of the Government, announced his resignation, and he stated at the same time that he would feel bound to support the policy of the then Administration. That was on Friday. Upon the Monday following this note passed, when it appeared that Mr. Blake had control of the hon gentleman. He [Mr. C.] saw this communication passing, and suspecting what it was, asked Mr. Richards to get up and speak, to prevent Mr. Wood from speaking, and Mr. Richards did so. As to the manner in which the evidence against the member from South Brant was obtained, it did not matter.—Mr. Cameron was proceeding to attack the Commissioner of Public Works in connection with the Proton affair, when, it being six o'clock, the House rose.

After recess,

The House went again into Committee of Supply

Mr. CAMERON resumed the debate.—He was at a loss to know the reason of the attack made by the member for South Brant upon the members for South Grey and Lincoln. The only sin committed by the member for South Grey was his upright and manly support of the Ministry of which the member for South Brant was a member. He [Mr. Cameron] thought the present discussion was of little avail at this time. He knew of no principle that was more to be upheld than the rectitude of action of members in this House; but he thought that a gentleman that would betray his friends and colleagues, as the member for South Brant had done, would betray his country, and was not deserving of trust where there was the power in his hands of doing injury. He [Mr. Cameron] never denied the ability and force of character of that hon. gentleman, and his knowledge of the Municipal Loan Fund question, and the Arbitration question, and he thought the interests of the country would be served by the appointment of him as the agent before the Privy Council, before which the Arbit be a great benefit to the County of Peterborough. One advantage claimed for it is that it would increase the value of our land. Allowing that is so, four-fifths of the farmers of the County would not take advantage of it from the fact that they do not want to dispose of their land. Then, again, the great advantage claimed for it is that it would bring us thirty miles nearer to the seaboard, thus increasing the price of our wheat. But it must not be forgotten that while it would increase our facilities for shipping East, it would also tap the railway facilities of the Great West, and thus bring the contents of the ever flowing granaries of the teeming prairies into competition with our coarse grains. Western park also would find a market at all the principal stations in Canada; the cattle, too, and beef it might be; for no doubt the Managers of the road would use every means to secure all the Western trade possible.

Another fact farmers should not overlook is the undoubted increase of wages during the time of constructing the road. The taxes must be paid, wages have to be paid, other expenses have to be met, homes have to be sustained; and what have we to meet all this? The answer is evident—the produce of our land. And will the road increase the productions of our land? No they say, but it will double the price of your geese, turkeys, carrots, cabbages, onions, &c. Well, it may be so, but Ratepayers of the County of Peterboro if you will take the trouble to inquire you will find that where such prices are obtained for those articles, that the producers of them are no better off; a great many in fact are not as well off as they are here. Some how or other every thing seems to increase in value in a corresponding ratio, and the margin of profit to the farmer remains about the same.

Taking it up one side and down the other I think it would not be wise to plunge the County any farther into debt, while other debts, as yet unfelt, hang over us. If we have any money to spare there are many ways in which we could take the half of that sum that would in all probability benefit us more than by giving it to this road.

The majority of farmers have not now capital enough to work their land and improve it as it ought to be, and they have no way of increasing their profits except they increased production of the soil, therefore they should use every means to accomplish that end, which I think at present is the most direct road to success for the farmers of this County.

Ratepayers, don't forget the day of polling, and don't forget to keep the old farm clear of debt.

Yours, &c.,
A FARMER.

ENCOURAGE THE TEACHER.

Every little tribute of confidence spontaneously tendered him by his supporters, cheers the humble instructor in the faithful discharge of the onerous duties of his school, and fortifies him against the machinations of the evil minded. On the spur of the moment the following Testimonial was presented and an extempore reply suitably returned.

To W. L. JOHNSTON, Esq., Teacher of Union School Section, No. 9, Cavan and No. 4, N. Monaghan.

SIR,—We the undersigned Parents, Guardians and Rate-payers of said School Section having heard with regret that you are about to move to another Section, consequently your valuable services as our School Teacher will terminate with the year. We come therefore in this humble and affectionate way desiring to say to you, that now at the close of this your third year, we are, and have been entirely satisfied with the manner in which you have discharged the functions of your important trust. We believe you to be a competent and successful teacher, a gentleman in principle, and a christian in morals. We therefore cannot part with you without hereby tendering our sincere thanks and also our best wishes for your future welfare.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Anaheim, California, Jan. 7th, 1873.

When I last addressed you, I left you at the city of Los Angels, and having since then mailed to you a newspaper containing a good description of our town, Anaheim, which I hope came to hand, I will write no more on that head as presume, but will give you some description of the land.

Around where we live the soil is a heavy decomposed vegetable substance. Water for house use about 16 feet from the surface. Toward the low range of hills northward the water is further down, some places where wells are dug they had to go 50 feet. Over to the south and west of us the soil changes, seemingly a sediment formation of the different strata brought to the surface in boring artesian wells, it appears of only recent formation. Towards the sea-beach water is found much nearer the surface, and close by the beach, springs up in many places, leaving the ground very wet and swampy at all seasons. Down in this direction also lies the colony of Westminster, where I intended to locate when I left Canada.

Somewhere between 60 and 80 families are settled together there and have now a good school-house added to the settlement, and Divine Service is held every Sabbath by the founder of the Colony, a Presbyterian Minister. The land is good, but much of that, as well as the land around, is spotted by an alkali. Where this exists it appears as hoar frost on the ground, and wherever strong, nothing grain or grass kind will spring into life, except a peculiar grass natural to itself.

All surface wells are less or more charged with the same alkaloid. Even where we live and until the system becomes habituated to its use, its action is purgative. In order to get better water I bored down 125 feet and have none of it, at least we don't feel it. The temperature of the water at that depth is about 65 degrees. I intend to go about 20 feet deeper, when it is the opinion of the people, we will have a flowing well. A person about four miles from us struck a good flowing well about that depth. In the colony I mentioned they have flowing wells at about 75 feet. I measured the flow of one and found two inches flowing over all around the open pipe 7 inches in diameter These artesian wells are quite an addition to the farm and of great service in the dry season.

Having now given you a brief description of the land, I purpose next to write about what transpires during the month now past, and as each one passes away will continue to do the same.

The month of December has been very fine weather, very pleasant, much like your Indian Summer. Yet, during the latter part of the month, two formed severe nights and it was very cold for about one hour after sun rise, then the days were warm, probably at noon the thermometer stood about 70 degrees. Although this is one of the rainy months, yet no rain fell until the last Sabbath of the year, then about 3 inches fell. Before this rain fell the whole surface of ground appears as a plowed field, yet cattle subsisted on the fallen grasses lying on the ground several inches deep, preserved as hay is done, without rain and without hands. The grasses are chiefly white clover, Sharon, mallo, and bur clover. The sheep pick the burs from the ground after the clover is consumed and very little head hangs about burs, being much mild weather, this is truly the temperature of the Land of Judea, and much to remind one of the illustrations of Scripture. Whyle fair people travel they carry their blankets along and camp out when night overtakes them, and things water and fuel are to be found. A great deal of the youngsters time is spent on horseback, and one requiring to see the small wrinkles how they ride the buckings, as the native horses are mild. The saddles in use here what is called a horn standing up on the front and around which hangs the over present horse which is used by the Natives with great dexterity. Their shops are all Mexicans. They appear to have a great deal of Indian about them, the color much the same as your Indians and their habits also, and truly it may be said of them that they live amongst their brethren. They generally live all together. Sometimes in these adobe houses, at other times in miserable wigwamy heaps of brush or corn stocks. But I wander from the text. Our farmers have been busied hauling corn to the landing for shipment to San Francisco, bringing back lumber for their use, which we buy to the landing for $35 per m, rough boards, plane I lumber $42,50 to $45 per m, chiefly red wood. Shingles $5 per 1000 also red wood. We have also to get the ground on which corn grew cleared off and many of us only harvested our barley stubble and with the rain to start the seed lying on the ground. This is called volunteering the crop. Well, as I said, the rain came, and now the whole fields are green with grain about three inches high.

This brings me to the end of the month, and as about the crops you will wait until my next. Politics I cannot touch this month for want of space.

The aspect of other matters—Looking away to the northward, as you distant mountains lies the emblem of winter, and while yonder is dressed in robes of white, on the low hills near us is now visible a carpet of living green, what a contrast! To the southward, about a mile from us, lies Anaheim, in the midst of vineyards and orchards, filled with lemons, limes, oranges and a variety of other trees, all of which load their fruit, amongst the trees first, and in passing how delighted to the senses as the gentle breeze comes loaded with the delicious odour of the various orchards. Then a little further on is seen the tall popular trees pointing their leafy spires toward the ethereal blue vault of Heaven. Every tree and shrub bursting forth into life, all as it were in their own language singing praises to the Great Creator. Amongst man, he is the same, yet as when shaped from Eden's lovely bowers. Turning our view a little toward the rising sun, there in yonder sepulchre lies the lonely dead, it matters little to them whether the earth is locked in the icy embrace of winter or that the rains pinned by weeping friends around the tomb are now bursting into bloom. They are insensible to all around, they must lie until their time comes.

For the present, at least, I bid you adieu for a short period, but I remain yours,

JOHN HUNTER.

By-Law No. —

A BY-LAW to aid and assist the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and to issue Debentures therefor and to authorize the levying of a special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest thereon.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to aid and assist in the construction of The Ontario and Quebec Railway by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars payable as hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipality to cause to be issued Debentures to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the said Municipality and to dispose thereof in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred dollars to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality irrespective of any future increase of the same and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned or any part thereof according to the last revised and equalized Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality being for the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy one was the sum of three millions eight hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred and thirty one dollars.

And whereas the amount of the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is for principal the sum of forty two thousand dollars and for interest the sum of thirty thousand one hundred and twenty dollars and there is no part of such interest in arrear.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and said interest as hereinbefore mentioned it will require an equal annual special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough.

1.—That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the County of Peterborough for the time being to cause any number of Debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than one hundred dollars each and not exceeding in the aggregate the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough and be signed by the Warden and the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

2.—That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-Law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality and shall have attached thereto coupons for the payment of the interest thereon.

3.—That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the day hereinafter appointed for this By-Law to take effect which interest shall be payable on the first days of January and July in each and every year at the office of the Treasurer aforesaid.

4.—That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said Debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon an equal special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said Debentures.

5.—That this By-Law shall take effect and come into operation upon the twenty ninth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy three.

6.—That the Debentures so to be issued as aforesaid to the amount of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be delivered by the Warden of the said County of Peterborough for the time being to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company upon and subject to the terms and conditions following that is to say:

(1) That the proposed Railway of the said Company shall traverse the County of Peterborough from the Eastern limit thereof at the boundary line between the Counties of Hastings and Peterborough and pass through the Township of Belmont and the Town of Peterborough to the said County and thence to the Western boundary of the said County;

(2) That the said proposed railway shall as to the construction of that part thereof within the County of Peterborough be actually and bona fide commenced on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three and shall be wholly completed between the cities of Ottawa and Toronto on or before the first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy seven.

(3) That the charges for freight by the said proposed Railway to and from any point within the County of Peterborough aforesaid and the City of Montreal shall not at any time exceed the charges for freight for the time being on the said proposed Railway to and from the City of Toronto and the said City of Montreal.

(4) That the said Company will erect and maintain their principal construction and repairing shops for that portion of their proposed railway between the said Cities of Montreal and Toronto at the said Town of Peterborough.

(5) That Debentures to the amount of seventy five thousand dollars shall be so delivered over to the said Company whenever the said proposed Railway shall have been completely graded and bridged through the said County of Peterborough in the direction hereinbefore indicated and subject to the conditions herein contained and whenever the said Company shall have given security by their bond or covenant with a penalty to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the performance of the above conditions numbered three and four and that debentures to the remaining sum of seventy five thousand dollars be delivered to the said Company when their said proposed Railway shall have been completed between the Cities of Ottawa and Toronto aforesaid provided that the said Municipality may in the discretion instead of delivering the said Debentures as aforesaid as the whole or any part of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars sell and dispose of the said Debentures or any part thereof and pay over to the said Company in cash the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars or any part thereof.

(6) That the said Company shall not be entitled to and shall not receive interest upon the said Debentures or any of them except only from the time at which they shall be delivered to the said Company pursuant to the provisions of this By-law.

(7) That this By-law shall be inoperative and of no effect unless the first Monday in July next shall be implied on the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company within the Municipality of the Town of Peterborough shall before the day hereinbefore appointed for the coming into force of this By-law have duly passed a By-law of such Municipality giving and by way of Bonus to the said Company for the construction of such proposed Railway to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars.

7.—That unless the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway as to that part thereof within the said County of Peterborough be commenced as hereinbefore mentioned on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three this By-law shall be of no force or effect.

8.—That the votes of the Electors of the said Municipality shall be taken on this proposed By-law on Saturday the twenty-fifth day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three at the following places and before the following Returning Officers:

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredients. A remedy for every form of skin disease, from the worst scrofula down to pimples, and for every kind of sore, from a run-around to a corn. Its wonderful power to relieve pain is almost miraculous. It draws out the fire from burns, scalds, and inflammations, and heals without leaving a scar. It is the only salve that will do this. It is the only salve that will not crack open when the skin is drawn tight by the swelling of the part. It is the only salve that will not dry up and harden by exposure to the air. It is the only salve that will keep moist and soft for any length of time. It is the only salve that will not become rancid and offensive. It is the only salve that will not stain the clothing. It is the only salve that will not run when heated. It is the only salve that will not chill when cold. It is the only salve that will not become gritty by age. It is the only salve that will not lose its healing power by age. It is the only salve that will not become hard and brittle by age. It is the only salve that will not become soft and sticky by age. It is the only salve that will not become moldy by age. It is the only salve that will not become wormy by age. It is the only salve that will not become musty by age. It is the only salve that will not become sour by age. It is the only salve that will not become bitter by age. It is the only salve that will not become sweet by age. THE STRANGER'S GRAVE.

"Tenderly bury the [redacted]

Somebody's darling [redacted]

War Lyrics of the [redacted]

The bell was [redacted]
One plaintive [redacted]
When a hea[redacted]yard
Was slowly [redacted]ng
The birds [redacted]singing sweetly
Amid the waving trees,
And the perfume of the flowers
Was borne upon the breeze.

No mourners followed in its train
With sad and tearful eye,
With heaped voices spanking mountainly,
Of happy days gone by,
But the solemn hearse went slowly
Up the road so green and wide,
And its end and simplicity
A stranger there had [illegible]

Only a stranger—that was all.
But oh, how much was told
In those simple words, with treasure hopes
To be laid beneath the mould,
Perhaps some mother's darling
Was lying there so low,
Who was the pride of her proud heart
But one short year ago.

The lid was raised for a moment
To see that all was well,
And the summer sun shone on the boyish face,
With unearthly beauty fell.
The dark brown curls lay clustered
O'er the brow so fair and pure,
And his hands were folded o'er his heart
That would beat on earth no more.

No tender mother bent to kiss
Her darling's dead sweet face,
No gentle sister came to strew
With flowers his resting place.
Only the breezes murmured
In the branches over head,
Only the summer sunlight kissed
The sweet face of the dead.

They laid him in his lowly grave,
And left him there to sleep,
Where the birds are singing sweet and free
And the flowers their vigils keep.
No tidings of the absent one
Was borne across the wave,
And nothing but the willow weeps
Above the stranger's grave.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Man is a mister, but woman is a mystery.

August is like pride—it goes before a fall.

Beware of the patent medicine men; they are vial impositors.

A number of small boys, one of whom is Master Jesse Grant, have organised a club and edit a paper.

It does not follow that a man who bolts his food will have the lockjaw.

A schoolmaster in Ohio advertises that he will keep Sunday-school twice a week—on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

"What further could there be?" said a [illegible] stealing his lard. "I am getting fat," was the reply.

A fond husband boasted to a friend—"Tom, the old woman came near calling me Solomon last night." "Did she [illegible]" "She said, well old Beeswax, come to supper."

"Can you name the four seasons?" [illegible] said a visitor of a class that was on exhibition. "Yes sir," said a bright looking little boy. "What are they, my little man?" "Salt, pepper, vinegar, and mustard," was the reply.

A [illegible] preacher, in discoursing to his people on the efficacy of earnest prayer, delivered himself in this manner: "Finally, brethren, 'tis prayer [illegible] the devil the lockjaw."

A St. Louis parent, who happens to be blessed with a prodigal son, according to the Tituville press, "rejoices more over one boy that runs away than the whole family who sponge their living off him at home."

At a county fair in Louisiana, lately a premium was offered for boys under fourteen years of age who neither drank, smoked, chewed, played cards or carried pistols. Only twenty entries were made.

People who believe the current stories about intelligent dogs will read with pleasure that a lost dog in Norfolk, Va having seen his master's advertisement in one of the local prints promptly went home.

Why is coal the most contradictory article known to commerce? Because when purchased, instead of going to the buyer, it goes to the cellar.

An Irish gardener is described as being requested to set his master's watch by his sun-dial, when he forthwith planted it in the ground close by.

—There is much pleasure and profit in the service of a good horse, and but very little of either in bad ones; no person from choice will retain a bad horse, many, however are in possession of such who need not be. We think there are few horses so bad but that their condition can be improved and rendred more valuable and useful for their owners, to effect which, there is nothing equal to 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;' it has effected astonishing results in thousands of cases. Consumption, Bronchitis, General Debility.—Caution.—Hypophosphites.—Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.—As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effects from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thorough orthodox preparation.

Have you tried it? If not, don't delay another moment, but get a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." All aches and pains are immediately and permanently removed by it, and the price places it within the reach of all. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Deposits and colds when left to themselves frequently bring on pulmonary complaints, which lead to that fatal and most distressing and fatal disease, consumption; but if attended to in time, "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers" is a certain remedy. Sold by druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cts. per bottle.

How are you to-day? I'm not feeling well, bilious and sick headache, have been looking around for a box of "Parsons Purgative Pills" but our traders are all [illegible]

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people of any length of time. One of these is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are Kown, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus is the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION

and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever manufactured for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

Beware of Counterfeits.

Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

One Dollar a Bottle. Six Bottles for Five Dollars.

PREPARED BY

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or negligence of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it speedily gives the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels generally well often finds that a dose of Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE-GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

Select Poetry.

IN MEMORIAM
HORACE GREELEY.
BY MARY CREIGHTON KELLOGG.

A calm has come, for the storm was stayed
But the Urn was rent, and the ark is laid;
And the banner that through the fiercest night,
Now murmurs now, where the chieftain lies.
The virgin snow has all lovingly spread,
A mantle soft, for his humble bed:
And tenfold memories in royal state
Now guard the sleep of the good and great.

At Rolling eve as on morning fair,
The Angel of Peace will hover there;
And the strangers stop with hallowed sound,
Will linger long near the mighty dead,
From Pacific isle to Atlantic shore,
The Republic tells his virtues o'er;
From Arctic bergs to the Gulf-bound coast,
Columbia's tears tell what is lost.

Oh! Sunny South, it is now we know,
The worth of one, once thought a foe;
A friend till death, oh! give him thy tears,
Not only now, but in coming years.
As the victor's brow with wreath he crown,
Tell think of the heart with grief weighed down,
Of the noble mind, with errors low,
Of the Christian life, as kind and true.

NOT JUST YET.
Fifteen years ago London was a much jollier place in every way than it is now. It had an individuality of its own then. Its big hotels were unbuilt, its Houses of Parliament were unfinished, it was just a big, brown, busy city, with a splendid river running slap through it. For it had a river then, with sheaves and noble bridges, now it has but a stone trough, with iron drain pipes across it. One rode on top of buses then, or darted about in hansoms, now, I declare when I visit London I spend all my time in a cool cellar, where there is an escape of Gas, and where all the hot cinders from the kitchen fire are emptied—I mean the Metropolitan Railway.

Fifteen years ago I was in London, living on a slender pittance, and much troubled in the matter of dinners. As a rule, I dined in the middle of the day on a chop sent in by a neighboring publican, and made out with bread and cheese and beer at night. But there were times when the soul craved more luxurious living.—Those times generally coincided pretty accurately with the advent of quarter day and then one would go in for a cut of Simpson's mutton, or, if more reckless, for a dinner at the Wellington, at that time just opened, "Crockford's."

Sundays were the worst days for dinner arrangements. By breakfasting at noon, indeed, one avoided the necessity of any luncheon, but at about 5 o'clock a desperate craving would come over me—a gnawing voltare in the stomach would ceaselessly cry for food. Frequently, I confess, an empty purse coincided with an empty stomach, and the vulture cried in vain, but sometimes one had a few shillings in one's pocket, and then, even then, the problem was a difficult one—where to dine on Sunday.

I went often on such occasions to an underground chamber called the Recesses, not far from Long Acre. The promises of that establishment were excellent. Soup, fish and joint—all for the modest sum of eighteen pence. The performance, however, was somewhat feeble. I don't mean to say it wasn't an excellent dinner for the money—it was. But it wasn't an invigorating dinner. The soup was somewhat thin, the fish was generally fresh herrings, and they'd have been better for a little salt originally. The joint was usually boiled beef, and, you see, the joint and the soup were like the two buckets of a well—the stronger the soup the less succulent the joint.

One Sunday, I remember, my funds were getting low, very low. I had determined to remain in my lodgings and support nature on tobacco smoke, but my hunger was too strong. I had a few shillings left, and as the evening wore on, and the cravings of my appetite increased, resolution broke down. I put on my hat and hurried out in quest of a dinner.

How is it that everything looks so ghastly on Sunday?

Don't tell me about the prickings of conscience, misspent day, and all that. Good luck, I wish I'd nothing worse than that to reproach myself with. But I believe it to be a physical fact, that on Sunday the air is loaded with bile. I don't think it rises above a certain latitude, I've escaped it on the heights of Hampstead, on the hill of Surrey, but within a certain distance above the level of the sea I believe the air, between 11 in the morning and 8 at night, to be overcharged with bile. Perhaps it is owing to so many poor people being in church or chapel, and that they leave their bile outside as they do their umbrellas on a wet day.

When I made up my mind to go to the Recesses for a dinner, it was because I knew that there was no other place open, the prices of which would be within my means.

How dismal it looked on this Sunday evening, that long low room, its tables almost deserted, save for one or two men here and there nodding over a plate of biscuits.

There was pea soup that night I remember, and it was rather good, too. The fish was fishy, the joint was reasoned to a stump.

"Waiter," I cried, "can I dispense with the other courses and dine of the soup?"

"If you wish, of course, sir," said the waiter.

I had three helps of that excellent pea-soup, and in each plate I put a spoonful of dried mint. But the after result was not exhilirating; it rather clogged the pores, I think, that soup. Miserable and depressed as I went into the Recesses, I felt still more miserable more depressed after my dinner. I had spent my prescribed allowance. I couldn't go anywhere or do anything. I could only go back to my gloomy lodgings through the sloppy streets, and sit and lonely chew the cud of bitter meditation.

The idea seemed to me horrible, and yet now, as ever, there appeared to be no escape for me from the embraces of this melancholy fiend. I couldn't help saying to myself as I sat with my chin resting on my hands, "I wish I were dead."

I didn't mean to say it aloud, but I suppose I must have whispered it audibly, for a man who was sitting opposite me at the table—who had been sitting there smoothing his moustache all the time I had been dining, his eyes fixed on his plate—looked up of a sudden and gave me a quick and searching glance.

I knew him then; it was Medhurst, an old school-fellow. As a boy he had always been a mystery to us; that quick, sudden glance of his always had such a strange effect upon all on whom it fell. We used to say that he had the Evil Eye, and wonderful tales used to be told at school about the effect of Medhurst's look. Still I was glad to see him; any relief from the loneliness and misery of my life was pleasant. He recognized me also, and came over and sat beside me.

"Well," he said, after we had shaken hands—he had a strange, flabby, chilly hand, which somehow sent an icy thrill to my very heart—"well, and so you wish you were dead?"

"Did you hear me?" I said. "O, it was nonsense, of course. I often say so. A foolish habit I have. I don't mean it."

"It is nonsense," he said; he talked in a low monotonous voice, intelligible enough to the ear for which it is intended, but not to be overheard by others. "It was nonsense, but a very rational, prudent, wish. I wish so myself; and what is more," he said, "I have the means to carry out both our wishes."

I laughed uneasily. "You are only joking."

"Never joke. Until now," he went on, "the great deterring influence which has restrained those men who see the folly and emptiness of life, who measuring their feeble capacities for enjoyment with their unlimited capacities for suffering, would gladly resign a possession which has no advantage for them—the great deterring influence has been the doubt whether death is really a complex severing of the body and soul: whether, indeed, there is not a lingering capability of feeling and hanging to the relaxed nerves, a lingering consciousness in the bitterness of death, one may taste also the gibom of the grave, the horrors of the charnel house."

"Good heavens!" I cried, "what a horrible idea!" He fascinated me, this man. I would gladly have risen and gone away, but he stopped me with his eye.

"Listen!" he said, "I have overcome this impediment; I have opened the gates of death to all mankind. To you my young schoolfellow, I will reveal this secret; lest, prompted some day to cross the boundary, I should die and leave mankind as wretched as ever. You see this little powder herb; it is like mint, is it not?—the smell, the taste, every thing is like mint—you would not know them apart: and yet in a small quantity of this powder lies a release from all the miseries of life. Don't shrink back; it is innoxious in small doses, produces merely pleasing langour; but in such a quantity as a teaspoonful, it produces lethaigy; twice the quantity brings on syncope; thrice inevitable death. I have often ventured so far as the second stage, but have always stopped short of the third. But I have brought back this much assurance from the world of shadows; consciousness ceases altogether at the second stage. There are no dreams in the sleep of death.

"The preliminary stage of lethargy is delightful; I often indulged in it; but I have a doubt sometimes whether I might not possess an exceptional physical organization; whether the herb would produce exactly the same effect on others. I determined to try the on a large scale. I came here to-night to do it. I have noticed that each frequenter of these rooms, on pea-soup nights which are frequent, takes one plate of soup to which he adds one spoonful of mint. Well, I watched my opportunity. I came here as soon as the door was opened; and while the waiter's back was turned, I emptied the contents of the plate of mint into my pocket, and filled the plate with my own powder. The experiment was a bold one. I might have caused the death of innocent persons. However, I persevered, the interests of science overpowered considerations of humanity. The experiment has completely succeeded. Each habitue of these rooms has swallowed his plate of soup, his spoonful of precious herbs; each has gone through the stage of lethargy. There are some now, you observe, passthrough that stage.

I threw an agonized glance around. Yes, sure enough, there were two or three men lying back in their chairs, their heads sunk on their breast—in a state of complete lethargy.

"And," he went on, "I can see the symptoms approaching lethargy upon you—the dilated pupil of the eye, the expression of an anxiety in the face. Yes, all is perfect, the symptoms are—"

"But," I gasped, "I have taken three spoonfuls!"

"Martyr of science!" he cried, springing up and grasping me by the hand, "how carefully, how painfully I will watch every symptom of your declining vitality. Dear friend, your case will be an era in the history of humanity. Like Curtius, you have leaped into the chasm for the public weal."

"But isn't there an antidote?" I gasped, "a remedy?"

"There is none, and were there, you not go back from the noble path! My dear friend, imitate the example of the ancient Romans; a quickness and serenity in your last hours is indispensable for the proper noting of your phenomena."

"But I won't die!" I shouted, getting up. My limbs trembled beneath me; I felt the very chills of death upon me. "I won't, I won't!" Here I screamed, "Send for a doctor—for a policeman, Quick! quick! I'm poisoned!"

All the lethargic men jumped to their feet, the waiters came running in, the proprietor appeared pale and wondering.

"I'm poisoned!" I shouted; "poisoned in the mint! Send for a doctor, you fools! do you hear!"

"Mad!" said a quiet voice; "mad as a hatter. Poor fellow he's subject to these fits. He'll fall down directly, look out for him!"

"But I am not going to have the character of my house taken away for no mad freak. What do you mean, sir, by attacking the quality of my victuals, sir?"

"I was he," I shouted, pointing to my friend, "who now seeks to screen himself by calling me mad. But, good heavens! will you see a fellow creature perish, perish, perish?"

"There, don't aggravate him" said my friend. "Put him into a cab and send him to a police station; he's sure to have been advertised for."

I was dragged and hustled from the room, and hurled into a cab. Two or three policemen had come up, and one took charge of me inside while another mounted the box. I was quiet now, overcome by my struggles, and lay exhausted in the bottom of the cab, waiting the insidious advances of the deadly narcotic.

Presently the cab stopped. We've got that chap they advertised for," cried the man outside to a policeman who was lounging at the door of a police station.

"The dence you have," said the inspector, coming up. "Then you have done a good job to-night. There's fifty pounds offered now. Take him right off to the Asylum at once. Let's have a look at him, though. Why, this ain't the man at all; this ain't Medhurst! Low, you ought to have known better Red, full mustache, drooping eyelids, aquiline nose—Why, they're as different as light from darkness."

"What! is Medhurst mad?" I said, a light bursting in upon me.

"Yes; has he been playing any of his pranks upon you, sir!—making believe to give you any poison or any thing of that sort? Lord, he's the cunningest chap in creation, that Medhurst. He's a small fortune to the police to bring him back after his escapes. He's quite harmless, too, tho' he's always up to so many tricks.—Quite a gentleman, too.

I've swallowed a pint or more of his poison just to please him, and then he'll stand a bottle of champagne afterwards. That's how you ought to have served him, sir. There, you won't get hold of him to-night, chaps; he's miles away by this time."

I have never wished myself dead since then.

The English Excise Duties.

There seems to be no limit to the elasticity of the Excise Duties. This is the reflection that must have occurred to every one who has watched the progress of the Revenue during the current year, and it is a thought which cannot be expressed with perfect satisfaction. For some ten years past, almost without a break, the yield of the Excise has gone on increasing. Successive Chancellors of the Exchequer have raised their estimates in every new Budget, and the result has still been better than they have excepted. Mr. Lowe has been continuously favored in this way. His estimate of Excise Duties for the year 1868-9 was £20,330,000; the produce he had to announce in his first Budget was £20,462,000, showing a comparatively small increase. His own estimate for 1868-90 was £20,900,000, and the produce proved to be £21,763,000, an increase of £863,000 over his estimate, and an increase of £1,301,000 over the yield of the previous year. He naturally thought that this growth of Revenue might not be sustained in the succeeding twelve month, and he therefore estimated his income from this source at no more than £21,640,000; but the yield once more exceeded expectation, and proved to be £22,788,000, an increase of £1,148,000 over his estimate, and of £1,025,000 over the Revenue of the previous year. Once more prudence suggested that increase might not be sustained, and the estimate for 1871-2 was put at £22,420,000, but the produce once more shot up to £23,300,000, an increase of £512,000 over the previous year. Last Spring the Chancellor of the Exchequer ventured to think that as much might be realized again, and he therefore estimated £23,310,000 as the produce of the Excise in the current twelvemonth, but the result so far is that these duties have exceeded by nearly £1,600,000 what they bro't in during the same period of 1871-2; and there is now a trustworthy promise that their yield for 1872-3 will be at least £25,000,000.

This growth of the Excise is the most remarkable fact of our recent financial experience. Mr. Lowe's weekly publication, showed that he had received up to Saturday last £16,941,000, against £15,356,000 received in the corresponding weeks of the preceding twelvemonth, and if the rest of the year brings no further increase with it, he will get in the year 1872-3 £24,859,000, or within a trifle of twenty-five millions. Compare this with the fact that the produce of these duties in 1868-9 was no more than £20,462,000, and we see an increase of more than 20 per cent in four years. If the rate of increase during the remaining weeks of the present financial twelvemonth continue the same as it has been during the weeks that have passed—that is to say, rather more than 10 per cent on last year's yield—the produce of this twelvemonth will reach £25,800,000, and the increase in the four years will be 25 per cent., instead of 20 per cent. Lecture

Remember Mr. Bigsby's Lecture this evening in the Mason Hall. Subject: "Down among the Dutchmen." The Press every where speaks very favorably of Mr. Bigsby as a lecturer. All should hear him.

LATE MAILS.

The Midland Railway seems to have forgotten that Peterborough has been promised a prohibition against the arrival required a [illegible] for the [illegible] in the face of these obstacles they are making progress. Already tons of iron are now lying in Ashburnham, bro't by the Midland road and teamed across to the old Cobourg road station, large quantities of spikes, ties and other necessary material for the early completion of the road from Mud Lake to Rice Lake is being laid on the track, and hence, we may expect the early completion of the road.

The Company, through their Solicitor, Mr. Armour, has applied to the Town Council of Peterboro for an extension of time for completing the work between the Lakes. The time asked is from 1st April to the first of July, or three months. The request is not an unreasonable one, and should, indeed we think will, be given.—The Council and people of Peterboro are not unreasonable, and will not demand impossibilities.

If a By-law for extension be submitted, the prevailing opinion is that it will be carried.

THE RICE LAKE BRIDGE

Is the only objection to extension of time. Mr. Armour asserts that it cannot be bridged by the first of April, nor even by the first of July, and the Company is at present building a Steam Scow for the purpose of plaining a ferry on the Lake till the bridge is fit for trains to cross it. Several members of the Town Council object to this as contrary to agreement and to the terms of the By-law. For our own part, we are inclined to the opinion that the terms of the By-law are doubtful, and rather in the interests of the Company, but we cannot believe that the Company seek to be relieved of making a bridge, for this must be done in their own interests, before the embankment can be made. It is all a matter of time, and the Council will grant the time on favorable conditions to the Company. The Mayor and Mr. Smith think that the Debentures under the By-law should not be demanded until a train passes from Cobourg to Mud Lake over Rice Lake, a temporary bridge being constructed for the purpose sufficient for carrying on the traffic until the solid embankment is made. It is therefore a matter of interest of the $40,000 for a year or so—the interest is $2,800 a year, a sum not worth much fuss between the Company and the Town Council.

If the Company wants the money, the debentures might be handed over on condition that the Company should not get interest until a train does pass regularly between Cobourg and Mud Lake. In this way the Company would have to suffer the loss of the interest, which perhaps would stimulate them to complete the work at an early date. This is the feeling of the citizens of Peterboro in this matter, but there is not one man against giving extension of time to suit the Company.

THE $150,000 BY-LAW.

The vote on the above By-law came off on Saturday, and resulted in a small majority in favor of granting the bonus. The vote of the different Municipalities will indicate the leanings of the ratepayers for and against. Otonabee gives a large majority against it, while Asphodel gives a large majority for it. Dummer, Ashburnham, Monaghan, Harvey and Burleigh also give considerable majorities for it, and Smith, Ennismore and all the Back Townships give large majorities against it. The vote in the Northern Townships is not to be wondered at, as the people are led to believe that the front part of the County is opposed to their interests so completely that they cannot obtain their share in such bonuses. Ennismore is against bonuses to any road, and the people of Smith were of opinion that the bonus was too large. The road being expected to run through Monaghan by way of Springville, influenced the people of Monaghan. Self interests therefore predominated in each section. There is every reason to believe that many men voted who had no legal right to do so. In looking over the lists we noted several of this class, but in all likelihood this was the case both for and against, to what extent it is yet difficult to say.

All are agreed that the road will prove of incalculable benefit to the greater portion of, if not to the whole County, and although the bonus is large, few believe that the road is not worth it.

LEGISLATURE OF ONTARIO.

SECOND PARLIAMENT—SECOND SESSION.

The Speaker took the chair at 3 o'clock.

PETITIONS.

The following petitions were presented—

Mr. Mickle—From the City Council of Kingston for an Act to enable them to [illegible] for sanitary purposes.

Mr. Gilbert—From W. P. Chamberlain et al, for an Act to incorporate the Cobourg Hotel Company.

Mr. Bethune—From the Town Council of Cobourg, that the Improvement Act of the Cobourg Harbor may not pass in its present shape.

Mr. Mellish—From Wilkins Dawson et al, et Luther, against the diversion of that township from Wellington County.

Mr. Meredith—From the East Middlesex Agricultural Society for an Act to close a certain street in London.

Mr. Williams (Hamilton)—From the Hamilton and North-western Railway Company, for an Act to amend their incorporation Act.

Also—From William McGiverin et al of Hamilton, for an Act to incorporate the Hamilton Stone Paving Company.

Mr. Mellish—From the City Council of London, for an Act to enable them to construct water works.

Mr. Mellish—From Robert Beaty et al of Toronto, for an Act to incorporate the Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Bethune—From A. T. McCord et al, for an Act to incorporate the Toronto Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Mr. Hodgins—From Samuel Sheppard et al, of Middlesex, for an Act to incorporate the London and Lake Erie Railway Company.

Mr. E. B. Wood—From William Nelson, Duncan McLeod, Michael Phelan and others, of Lather, for the erection of a new county, to be called Palmerston.

Mr. Monk—From Arthur Benner et al, for an Act to incorporate the Alliance Insurance Company.

Mr. Wells—From the Kincardine School Board, for amendments to the School Act.

Mr. Harrington—From the Arnprior School Board, to the same effect.

Mr. Paxton—From the Port Perry School Board, to the same effect.

Mr. Haney—From the Thorold School Board, to the same effect.

Mr. Monk—From the County Council of Carleton for amendment to the Municipal and Assessment Acts.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. Bethune—To erect the village of Orangeville and certain townships into a new county, to be called the County of Dufferin.

Mr. Wood—Bill to erect the townships therein named into a junior county, to be called the County of Palmerston.

NEW COUNTIES.

Mr. Lauder said that it would save time if the Government would express its views with reference to these Bills which were being introduced.

Attorney-General Mowat said that of course the Government could not prevent the first reading of these Bills, but the policy of the Administration was that no action should be taken in this matter during the present session.

We have not yet received any papers giving full particulars of the proposed change, and in the absence of such information copy the following from the Globe:—

A Bill of this kind was presented and read a first time yesterday. The object of the Bill is to erect into a new county for municipal purposes, under the name of Dufferin County, the townships of Mono, Mulmer, and Adjala, in Simcoe; East Garafraxa and Amaranth, in Wellington, and Melancthon, in Grey, with Orrageville as the County Town. A clause in the Bill also proposes to include the Township of Luther, but we understand that this part of the scheme is not pressed by the promoters. The population of Dufferin would be—exclusive of Luther—18,428, with an assessed property value of about $3,600,000. On the other hand, Wellington, after deducting the seperated townships of Amaranth and East Garafraxa and the village of Orangeville, would, according to the late census, still have a population of 57,310; Simcoe, without Mulmer, Mono, and Adjala, would have 47,027; and Grey minus Melancthon, 57,-362.

JAMES MILLAR ESQ., ELECTED WARDEN.

The contest for the honors of Warden was unusually interesting, the number of Candidates, and the division of votes left the question doubtfull for some time. The men receiving the greatest number of votes, being Messrs. Millar, Peck and Pearse. It was believed at first that Mr. Choate, would receive a large vote and some who promised to support him must have had stronger leanings some other way. Messrs Pearse & Peck having occupied the honorable position before induced a good many to favour the idea of supporting Mr. Millar's claim, but sectional differences prevented their doing so till after the 115th ballot. On the 116th ballot Mr. Millar received the requisite majority to elect him. Mr. Millar, will make a good Warden. Careful of taxation and economical of outlay, and representing the largest Municipality in the County, the honor was due him, and that a majority of the members were of the same opinion shows that they are not adverse to justice in the matter of Warden. And we have no doubt but that Mr. Millar will discharge his duties developing upon him with credit to himself and the County. Although the Election was by ballot the leanings of members were so visible that the ballot did not hide their several predilictions for one or the other of the aspirants.

THE NEW COUNTY COUNCIL.

The members elect of the New County Council met on Tuesday, about three o'clock. All the members were present, viz:—

Asphodel.....JOHN POWELL.
" .....J. P. BROWN.
Belmont.....PETER PEARCE.
Burleigh.....JAMES GOLBORNE.
Dummer.....T. G. CHOAT.
Douro.....WM. MOHER
" .....JOHN MOLONEY

Otonabee.....JAMES MILLAR.
.....THOMAS BLEZARD.
Smith.....JOHN WALTON.
" .....M. SANDERSON.
Snowden....JOHN R. CALVERT.
Stanhope.....A. BROWN
Ashburnham...HENRY CALCUTT.

Shortly after the Clerk called the Council to order and proceeded to ballot for a Warden, with the following results:

Millar, 6,7,7,6,7,6,7,C,3,7,7,6,6,5,5,11
Choate, 1,1,1,1,1,1,1,2,1,0,0,1,0,0,0,0

Golborne, 1,
Collins, 2,
Sanderson, 1,
Hickie, 1,
Moloney, 1,
Walton, 1,

On the Sixteenth ballot, therefore, Mr. Millar was elected by 3 of a majority.

Messrs. Walton and Blezard conducted the Warden elect to the chair.

He returned thanks for the honor conferred on him, and said he would endeavor to discharge the duties of the office to the best of his ability. He expressed a wish that the Council would proceed to business, so that there might be no undue haste at the end of the week, and that the back Reeves might be able to return home on Saturday, in seasonable time.

The minutes were then read and signed

Moved by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Blezard—That Mr. J. J. Hall be Auditor for the present year.—Carried.

The Warden appointed Mr. C. Barton as the other Auditor.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. McDonald,—That Messrs. Peck, Colpin, Choate, Moher, J. P. Brown, Golborne, McCarthy, Walton, and the Mover be a committee to draft standing committees for the year carried.

Moved by Mr. Blezard, seconded by Mr. McDonald,—That J. Carnegie be Sessional Clerk for the present year.—Carried.

The committee appointed to draft the several Standing Committees for the year 1873, reported:

WEDNESDAY—SECOND SESSION

The Council met about 2 o'clock, the Warden, Jas. Millar, Esq., in the Chair. All the members present except the Reeves of Ennismore, and Ashburnham.

In motion Mr. Peck read the report of the Special Committee on Standing Committees.—See Report.

It was moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald, that the report be adopted.

In amendment, It was moved by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Blezard, that the report be not adopted, but that it be referred back to the committee with instructions to amend so as to make the Advisory Committee to consist of two members, and that Messrs. Moher and Choate be the Committee.

The amendment was put and lost, and the original motion declared carried.

Mr. Choate asked for information as to the New Registry Office. It was understood that the office was to be completed by August last, and he would like to know in what state the building was, and whether completed or not.

Mr. Peck remarked that the Committee on County property would soon get to work and then they would see after the report of the building committee, and if there should be no report the committee would ask for it.

Mr. Walton said the committee were about to report as soon as the Engineer should be present.

On motion of Mr. Peck the Council adjourned to permit the different committees to get to work.

The Committee appointed to examine Road between the 10th and 11th Concessions, reported that it was impracticable at present to comply with the wishes of the Petitioners, but in due time matter would be attended to.

Council adjourned to the 7th day of February, then to meet for the purpose of appointing Township Officers, and the discharge of other business.—Com.

A terrible marine disaster is reported from London. While the steamer Northfleet was lying at anchor in the English Channel, two miles off Dungeness lighthouse, on Wednesday night, she was run into by an unknown steamer, and instantly cut to the water's edge. The ship had on board 412 passengers, exclusive of the crew, and of that number 321 were drowned, including the captain. A reward of £100 has been offered for the name of the steamer which collided with the ship.

INCENDIARISM The Port Hope Guide says: On Tuesday morning about half-past two o'clock, flames were observed issuing from the north end of James Robertson's old tannery. Had it not been for the timely alarm and extinguished of the fire by night-watchman Ellis, we should have to record another disastrous fire. That this was the work of an incendiary there can be no doubt, as the boards were saturated with turpentine.

MR. McDONALD has introduced the following Bill to prevent betting on elections.

An Act to amend the Election Law of 1869, by prescribing that betting or wagering shall be an illegal act.

Whereas it is desireable to provide that betting or wagering in reference to elections should be declared an illegal act, and should disqualify persons guilty thereof from voting at elections:

1. Any elector who shall bet or wager any money, property, or other valuable thing, upon the result of any election held under the Act passed in the thirty-second year of the reign of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act respecting the elections of Members of the Legislative Assembly," and Chaptered twenty-one, or shall bet or wager money, property, or other valuable thing upon the number of votes which may be given to any one or more persons at any such election either in the county, city, town, riding or electoral division, or in any part or parts thereof, or as to the person who will receive the greatest number of votes at, any such election either in the county city, town, riding or electoral division, or in any part or parts thereof, or who shall agree to pay to any other person or persons any money, property, or other valuable thing, in the event that any election as aforesaid shall result in one way, or in the event that any person or persons shall or shall not be elected, or shall receive, either in the county, city, town, riding or electoral division, or in any part or parts thereof, a greater number of votes than another or than others, shall be guilty of an illegal act, and shall ipso facto be disqualified from voting at such election, and for every such offence shall incur a penalty of dollars; and it shall not be necessary, in order to constitute an offence under this Act, that the money, property, or valuable thing bet or wagered shall be exhibited or staked at the time of making such bet or wager, or at any other time.

BALLOT BILL.—Mr Chas. Clarke, M. P. P. for Centre Wellington, has introduced a bill to the Assembly providing for taking votes by ballot at elections of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

The Ottawa Citizen states that the Pacific Railway contract has been signed, sealed and delivered, and that the company are already making preliminary arrangements for the commencement of the work.

MARRIED.

ROBERTSON—CAMPBELL—By the Rev. G. Fish, at the Wesleyan Parsonage, Jan. 23rd, Mr. Thomas Robertson, of Toronto, to Miss Elizabeth Campbell of Peterboro.

MELANBY—CAMPBELL—By the same, Jan. 28, Mr. Edward Melanby of Otonabee, to Miss Orrin Campbell, of the same place.

Card of Thanks.

THE PETERBORO CHURCH Building Committee return their most sincere thanks to all the kind people of Otonabee-ough that have assisted them in clearing away the last incumbrance of their Church. Every day they are receiving substantial encouragement. Some have given timber, and some have given money, one lot the most respectable Wholesale House in Toronto has presented the Committee with a cheque of £20 towards the building of their Church.

The most sincere thanks of the Committee is hereby manifested to all who have so favored them.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and possessing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Upon this principle, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcheol is lost in that way, and you get only the swell of Oils which they may contain.

Peterboro' apr. 5th 1871. 14

By-Law No. ——

A BY-LAW to aid and assist The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and to issue Debentures therefor and to authorize the levying of a special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest thereon.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to aid and assist in the construction of The Ontario and Quebec Railway by giving by way of Bonus to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars payable as hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolution it will be necessary for the said Municipality to cause to be issued Debentures to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the said Municipality and to dispose thereof in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of sixteen thousand five hundred dollars to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said Debentures and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality irrespective of any future increase of the same and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned or any part thereof according to the last revised and equalized Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality being for the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy one was the sum of three millions eight hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred and thirty one dollars.

And whereas the amount of the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is for principal the sum of forty two thousand dollars and for interest the sum of thirty thousand one hundred and twenty dollars and there is no part of such interest in arrear.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and interest as hereinbefore mentioned it will require an equal annual special rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough.

1.—That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the County of Peterborough for the time being to cause any number of Debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than one hundred dollars each and not exceeding in the aggregate the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough and be signed by the Warden and the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

2.—That the said Debentures shall be made payable in twenty years from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-Law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality and shall have attached thereto coupons for the payment of the interest thereon.

3.—That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the day hereinafter appointed for this By-Law to take effect which interest shall be payable on the first days of January and July in each and every year at the office of the Treasurer aforesaid.

4.—That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said Debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon as equal yearly rate of four mills and one third of a mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be raised levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said Debentures.

5.—That this By-Law shall take effect and come into operation upon the twenty ninth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy three.

6.—That the Debentures so to be issued as aforesaid to the amount of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be delivered by the Warden of the said County of Peterborough for the time being to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company when the said proposed Railway shall have been completed between the Cities of Ottawa and Toronto aforesaid Provided that the said Municipality may in its discretion instead of delivering the said Debentures as aforesaid as to the whole or any part of the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars sell and dispose of the said Debentures or any part thereof and pay over to the said Company in each the said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars or any part thereof.

(6) That the said Company shall not be entitled to and shall not receive interest upon the said Debentures or any of them except only from the time at which they shall be delivered to the said Company pursuant to the provisions of this By-law.

(7) That this By-law shall be inoperative and of no effect and no part of the said Debentures shall be handed over to the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway Company unless the Municipality of the Town of Peterborough shall before the day hereinbefore appointed for the coming into force of this By-law have duly passed a By-law of such Municipality giving and granting Bonus to the said Company for the construction of such proposed Railway to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars.

7.—That unless the said The Ontario and Quebec Railway as to that part thereof within the said County of Peterborough be commenced as hereinbefore mentioned on or before the first day of October one thousand eight hundred and seventy three this By-law shall be of no force or effect.

8.—That the votes of the Electors of the said Municipality shall be taken on this proposed By-law on Saturday the twenty-fifth day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three at the following places and before the following Returning Officers:

In the Village of Ashburnham at the Market House Jonathan Stephenson Returning Officer.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredients. A remedy that heals the sufferer while it relieves and builds up the wasted tissues, to which fault it is heir. Several preparations have been introduced to the public, but none have proved so successful as this. Many have been cured by it after all other remedies had failed to do any good.

The Salve is used by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are: Chilblains, Erysipelas, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Fever Sores, Cancers, Burns, Fever Sores, Felons, Fistula, Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Tetters, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Swollen Breasts, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Crushed Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In cancer cases it has completed heals. Piles it has been discovered to keep sore nipples from cracking. Those have been suffered for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. For Sores with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula. For Cancers, Canada Thistle juice mixed with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. No one hesitate, but sure to afford relief. Sores on Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures destroyed by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Felons take it together in anything burns. For Pimples this ants like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different portions, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and, in bald cases it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable accessory for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH MOORE, Bostwick.

Bostwick, April 6, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your favor last evening, and was very glad to hear you succeeded to let me have your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and has found none, and nothing that would help me as that Salve of yours, and we have both thought of it. Send me a box of it, and I will pay you for it. We have had it in our family for five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a wash, and it cures like a charm. Mr. Cumbo has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple for life if he had not found it out. He has used it for that. It keeps it healthy and cures it. I have used it for Salt Rheum and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a fever sore, and I know that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome to it.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH MOORE.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and prefers to keep something that will secure him a double profit, send twenty-five cents in stamps and inclose, and I inclose a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each. Twenty three times as large as the box represented above. Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me.

A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

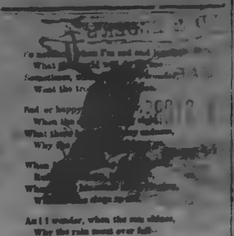
Select Poetry.



As I wonder, when the sun shines,
Why the rain came over hill—
Why the earth is not all gladness,
Why the sorrows come at all.

Wondering still, I sit and ponder,
Thinking, sometimes, I'm Wondering whether some will foretell,
If in God I put my trust?

CHARITY.

When you meet with one suspected
Of some secret deed of shame,
And for this by all rejected
As a thing of evil fame,
Guard thine every look and action,
Speak no words of heartless blame,
For the slanderer's vile detraction
Yet may sully thy goodly name.

When you meet with one perusing
Ways the lost have wandered in,
Working out his own undoing
With his reckonment and sin,
Think, if placed in his condition,
Would a kind word be in vain?
Or a look of cold suspicion
Win thee back to truth again?

There are spots that bear no flowers,
Not because the soil is bad,
But the summer's genial showers
Never make their bosoms glad.
Better have an act treat kindly
Treated sometimes with disdain,
Than by judging others blindly,
Doom the innocent to pain.

Puzzling a Doctor.

Dr. M., an army surgeon, was fond of a joke (unless perpetrated at his own expense), and had moreover, a great contempt for citizen soldiers who were more renowned for their courage than their scholarship. One day at mess, after the decanter had performed preambulations of the table, Capt. S., a brave and accomplished officer and a great wag, remarked to the Doctor, who had been somewhat severe in his remarks on the literary deficiency of the new officers.

Dr. M., are you acquainted with Capt. G.

Yes, I know him well, replied the Doctor, he is one of the new set. But what of him?

Nothing in particular; I have just received a letter from him, and I will wager you a dozen old port that you cannot guess in six guesses how he spells cat.

Done! It's a wager.

Well, commence guessing, said Capt.

K, a double t, e.

No.

K, a, t, s.

No. Try again.

No, that's not the way; try again—it's your last guess.

C, a, g, h, t.

No, that's not the way. You've lost your wager.

Well, said the Doctor with much nonchalance of manner, how does he spell it?

Why, he spells it c, a, t, replied S., with the utmost gravity of manne, amid the roar of the mess; and almost shocking with rage the Doctor sprang to his seat, exclaiming very harshly,

Capt. S., I am too old a man to be trifled with in this manner.

De mewer—The cat.

A sad saw—The sword-fish.

Grave subjects—Tombstones.

Capital affairs—National loans.

A Well-Known Citizen of Chicago Comes to Life in his Coffin.

A few days ago says the Chicago Times, Mr. Muhlfeech was suddenly ill at his residence. His disease was of a very acute nature, and in spite of all the efforts of his physicians, he died after a brief illness and his sorrowing friends made ready for his funeral. An undertaker was summoned and the body properly laid out, and yesterday the funeral service took place from his late residence. After the customary services had been performed and the sorrowing relatives had taken their last look at the diseased, the coffin lid was screwed down and the funeral cortege moved slowly toward the quit confines of Grace and cemetery, the body was finally lowered sadely into the grave which had been prepared for it. The last prayer had been offered, and the last solem service executed, when just as the sexton seized the spade and was about to drop the first shovelful of dirt upon the coffin, a sound, something resembling a stifled groan, followed by a scratching noise, as if the dead man was trying to release himself from the confines of his narrow house, was heard proceeding from the still open grave. For an instant every heart stood still, and the blood of every listener seemed to curdle in his veins. The women screamed, and hastened towards the carriage, while the men were not slow in following them. In an instant the sexton was the only man left at the grave, and he too, trembling at what he heard before. Finally he recovered presence of mind enough to decend into the grave and break open the rough box in which the coffin was encased. Then the noise was repeated, and he knew that the occupant of that grave, who, in a few minutes more, would be consigned to a horrible death, whom his friends had already mourned as dead, was still alive, and anxious to be set free. A screwdriver was soon procured from the undertaker present, and the coffin lid removed, when its occupant, instead of being cold and dead as he appeared when last seen, was found to le once more alive. His friends, who by this time recovered courage enough to return to the gave, were of course almost overjoyed at this strange and unexpected turn affairs, hastened to so recese the late deceased from hi unpleasent quarters, and remove him to one of the carriages in waiting, where he was rolled up in a supply of blankets and lap robes, and the friends who had lately followed him sorrowingly to the grave now hastened joyfully towards their homes. The reward was too overcome on being taken from his perilous position, that he was for a long time unable to speak.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that we know, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. This is the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron, in the blood, and thus imparts vitality to every part of the body. By Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the whole system, it enriches and vitalizes the blood, regenerates every part of the body, repairing damages and wasted tissues, and bringing nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Bowel Affections, Chills and Fever, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such cases need not be given up as useless by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of diseases and to young children, is is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for these.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the obstinate cases of these yield to it. Wherever lung disease could reach these, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved, and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is never injurious to any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold around the world.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

To the Public in General and Farmers in particular.

PUMPS. PUMPS.

Henry Owens

Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated EWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalleled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a years trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very cheap rate. He has tearranged his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and Repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

Select Poetry.

ON BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.

Written expressly for Mr. R. B. Gallop's Concert, Peterboro, January 25th, 1873.

What on earth can have brought a'you folks out the night?
Scotch, English and Irish, if I can see richt.
Did ye each have to listen to mankit each lay,
Or to honor puir Bobbie on this his birthday?
Of a democratic Shakespeare the English may boast,
While a Moore or Montgomery the Irish have most,
But the Scotch has their baird they ca' love and admire,
As the name of a Burns it gies their heart fire;
It belongs to our mind that his sowle shiel,
As he turned the sell on the grounds of Mossgiel,
He watched his old plough as it throwed o'er the mell,
But the muse was at work in the midst o' his toil.
He stopped up his horses to watch the sleek mouse
As it ran up the fur' whom he ploughed up the house,
The whaur was oorsel', the shelter was gane,
His pitiless tae-tae-heart-breaking mistak.
He is nature itsell on the Scotch dwellin'
Where the mell int me column, the young and in pride,
The joys or the sorrows, the lesson, the prayer,
He can make a heart feel that it never was there;
He could greet wi' the sad, wi' the joyin' can'd sing,
Paint the auld gudewifesmeuk, or rhyme on the king,
He can'd tell o' the rich wi' their daintees and brawn,
The puir he defended, maintainin' their cause;
The sparkin', the courtin' 'twixt gloamin' and mirk,
The ghaists and the goblin o' Allowey Kirk.
While round the bean-stack he has Jock chasin' Jean,
An' hurdes' their nots upon auld Halloween;
Black cocks an' lang tlume he pitted them mair,
The whistlin' o' tyrantin' an guid Kelly hair;
The guid or the bad, be it hame or mass,
Met the praise or the lash of his poetic pen.
He painted auld Scotia in language sublime,
Her rough, rugged mountains he smoothed into rhyme;
The cairn, the craig, or the heather clad hill,
Oft kindled the muse an' glad work to his quill,
His' grief marks his muse on the puir wounded hare,
Or the patetich he shot through the feathers, no mair,
The nightingale, thrush and the warblin' throstle,
Lent sweet notes to his fancy while Ittlin' a song.
Robbie lifted the heaven, an' thought it no chance,
For he ca'n him a cowt that would smoke the mune;
A man without love has a heart like a stane,
Shou'd be pouted at wullie livin' an' smeered at when gane;
His fire kindled at charm'n' he was but fifteen,
His auld love was kindled for sweet nannie Jean—
If not in her ee, he did whisper her praise,
Her worth an' her beauty he sang in his lays,
'Bre hand he nest one that cost her in the shade,
A blythe winsome lassie, the young dairy maid;
WI' smiles me bewitchin', her face one maijestical,
Highland Mary, she conquered the heart o' the Bard.
His pen had the flourish, an' his hand had the art
Of tellin' the power of true love in his heart;
His' soul stirrin' raptures we meet wi' nae mare,
As he meets wi' his Mary on the banks of the Ayr.
In the midst o' his joys, ah! cruel death struck the blow,
That changed a' his bliss into sorrow and woe;
Like a sweet flower o' summer she died in her pride,
Then he wept o'er her grave on the banks o' the Clyde
His songs cheer the auld an' add mirth to the youth,
True emblemshe o' nature an' panged for o' truth,
He bestowed Afton Water more gaiety to flow,
Ne'to ruffle the peace o' his lover laid low.
His faults and his failures we frank admit,
For man in perfection we never saw yet;
What was guid we admire, but the bad we forgive,
Still his works an' his name wi' auld Scotia shall live.
Scotia never a baird thus ha'l sing her praise,
Her beauty, her valour, her hardie, an' her brase,
The wallops, the greenwood, the greens an' the lea,
The sweet scented heather, the auld tyrantin' tree;
But the young Ayrshire ploughboy struck up his sweet lyre,
Till the prince and the peasant his name admire.
The thatch covered cottage, the palace or ha',
Auld or young, rich or puir, he has cantier for them a'
Not in Scotia alone does his fame shine so bricht,
We wad add a fresh garnish his crown here this nicht,
So fill, your glass, an' his birthday entwine,
Let us meet, yes, to honor our ain Robbie Burns,
WILLIAM TELFORD.

How a Law Suit was Ended.

Mr. Popkins was a bachelor. I mention this fact with all its due reverence for the name—and sympathy for the condition. He was well-to-do in the world, if owing to a fine farm and being plaintiff in a law suit is any criterion. Aside from Mr. Popkin's misfortune in being a bachelor, he had one fault—a partiality to female society and kins, the defendant in the above named lawsuit.

Now, be it known, that though Miss Sallie's name was put down in the list of O. Mm's, (Old Maids,) she was the roundest, comiest, dimple cheeked Spinster that ever lived in Lincoln. She had the softest brown eyes with a trick of looking down and peeping under the lashes, perfectly bewildering, and her hair that waved and shone in the sunlight, in such a manner that a susceptible man, like you and I, would have felt an irresistable desire to have sole ownership of the "nut brown locks."

But however fascinating Miss Sallie was to the sex in general, as I have said, between her and Mr. Popkins there was a deadly feud; and the cause of all the trouble was a meadow, spreading far and wide between Miss Sallie's and Mr. Popkin's farms.

Now the truth of the matter was this: The meadow justly belonged to Mr. Popkins, but instead of going to Miss Sallie and frankly stating the case, he must serve a process of law. Miss Sallie flew all to pieces, and declared she would maintain her rights at any cost.

I am confident, from the manner in which the whole thing ended, that had Mr. Popkins gone to her, himself, he would have relinquished it gracefully, but a woman has a mortal horror of being forced to do anything. Tie a thread round their necks, feed them with sugar plums, and you can lead them to the "jumping off place;" go to drying them, and for the obstinancy, they will beat Mark Twain's mule in the holy land all to pieces.

When Miss Sallie met Mr. Popkins on the street, her nose was decidedly "retroussé," and Mr. Popkins looked like an automaton Cardiff giant. The neighbors were forced to take part in this case, for when invitations were issued for the regular tea-parties, those who invited Mr. Popkins were obliged to omit Miss Sallie, and vice versa.

In the meanwhile the law-suit "dragged its slow length along," from session to session, from term to term, until Popkins versus Popkins was as familiar as A. B. C. But fate had in hand the destiny of these two obstinate individuals, and soon brought matters to a most satisfactory conclusion, although the unconscious mediator was rather a burlesque on the right "high tragedy" daily enacted.

There lived close to these belligerents, a good natured old man, nearly as deaf as a post, who had the greatest faculty of blundering on unfortunate facts of any individual known either in Ancient or Modern History.

No never had anything occurred and it was utterly impossible to try and explain; you would certainly find yourself floundering about in a "perfect slough of despair."

Miss Sallie and Mr. Popkins had received notice that their case would come up, for a final hearing, in Harrow, on Tuesday of next week. Miss Sallie concluded to take the stage, Uncle Ben Dropper, our deaf friend, had business a little distance on the road, and he would take the stage too, and Mr. Popkin's saddle horse fell sick just as he was needed, and no time for any other arrangements, so he must take the same conveyance.

Miss Sallie came floating down to the gate with white ribbons and bows, and dainty dress, sufficient to bewilder a man with as stony a heart as the Sphinx, and saw, approaching from the opposite side, her foe inaculate broadcloth, and shirt-front. For a moment the color flashed to her cheek, and she half resolved to go back, but to be outdone by a man, and he a Popkins, was not to be thought of. So she stepped in the coach with an air of sixteen Queen Victorias, elevated her head until it made an acute angle with her nose, and then sat down sublimely unconscious of anyone's presence. Mr. Popkins seated himself as though he had swallowed a whole foundry, and had his pockets full of eggs for desert. Just then came Uncle Ben, puffing and blowing, utterly unconscious of the impatient "Jehu."

Good morning, Miss Sallie, said he, carefully seating himself beside her. Good morning, Mr. Popkins. Where might you be going, and what for?

To Harrow, said Mr. Popkins, in his most polite manner, answering the first question and ignoring the last.

Do tell! and the round face fairly glowed with surprise. Going to marry! Well, I told Hester last night that was the best way to settle the suit after all. There ain't a more capable girl anywhere than Sallie, and I'm glad you've found it out. And Mr. Popkins is wonderful clever, turning to Sallie, and instead of being two farms and a law-suit, there need only be one. Law bless me! rubbing his hands with increased satisfaction, if it ain't a tip top arrangement.

Mr. Popkins clutched at his throat as though he were shocking to death and made spasmodic efforts to a word of explanation, but his tongue seemed palsied and failed him utterly in this emergency. Miss Sallie with a face of the deepest rose color, placed her hand to her mouth and shedding, so as to startle the horses, said:

I am going to see Mr. Styles on business.

Oh, day of blunders! Mr. Styles was her lawyer, but the unfortunate girl was thinking that a Presbyterian Minister had the same delightful cognomen.

Mr. Styles, indeed, said our friend. Well, I've heard him well spoken of but I never expected you, Sallie, a Baptist, to be married to any one but a minister in your own church; but I suppose you gave way to Mr. Popkins, and I think it shows a downright good disposition.

Miss Sallie gave up in despair, and looked steadily out of the window, while Mr. Popkin's lips moved occasionly, as though he was saying 'Water! water!' But the unconscious cause of all this turmoil sat serene and happy, in an occasional chuckle and knowing glance at Mr. Popkins, but at this moment he saw he had arrived at his destination, and wishing his two victims 'much happiness,' he left them.

The human heart is a strange affair, to say the least of it. Had any one advised Mr. Popkins to marry Miss Sallie, he would have rejected the idea immediately, and she herself would have taken it as an insult; but the totally unexpected manner in which the matter had been brought up made a different affair of it. He stole a glance at Miss Sallie. Her face was gently studying nature. Success appeared. Mr. Popkins could not deny. What if —if—and his heart gave a tremendous bound. What a fool he had been all this time. He must try at any rate, and risk a repulse. So without any more hesitation, for our hero was brave, he took Uncle Ben's seat and said quietly:

Miss Sallie.

The face turned the eighteenth part of an inch toward him. Not much encouragement, but a little.

Miss Sallie, he repeated, I've been a fool and a brute.

Oh, wise Mr. Hopkins! He had started on the direct road to a woman's heart. Either from contrariness or a sense of justice they always take the opposite side. Miss S. made up her mind from this moment that he was a gentleman and a second Solomon, and she turned her face completely round. Don think, continued he, that we can settle this lawsuit in the sensible manner suggested by Uncle Ben? I do love you, Miss Sallie, and by George! I believe I've loved you all the time and never knew it until to-day.

Miss Sallie was completely vanquished, and the answer, although whispered, was heard by Mr. Hopkins above the noise of the wheels and the cracking of the driver's whip.

The suit of Popkins versus Hopkins was dismissed that day. The Baptist minister got a fee, and the people are firmly convinced that Mr. and Mrs. Popkins are the best hands in the world to keep a secret.

DRIFTS OF DEATH.

TERRIBLE SNOW STORM IN MINNESOTA.

Correspondence of the New York Herald.

WINONA, MINN., Jan. 18, 1873.

While your Eastern world on the verge of the Gulf Stream has been felling the heads of despair and voice of protest over a snow-fall which made transportation on foot unpleasant and by horse cars impossible for a day or two, and while the whole country has been thrilling with horror at the incremention of a few hapless workmen in a tinder box; up here, on the shoreless and shelterless prairies, "there hath been wrought a deed of dreadful note." Human suffering which parallels that endured by the fated Franklin has been of hourly occurrence, and lives with attendant circumstances infinitely more tragic than wait on the partind of the seal whilst in rent from the flesh, by shot or steel. I was in Minnesota after the awful massacres of ten years ago, when the red wave of Indian invasion swept over the smiling land and left in but the scalping knife and bullet of the Sioux did not do such havoc as the snows have wrought this year, nor were all the tortures of the red fiends productive of more agony than I have witnessed within the past ten days. What has been suffered and how many have been slain has not yet been ascertained, for the settlements are far apart and communication is difficult; but by every mail comes particulars that chill the blood, and we can now fairly estimate the extent of the calamity, and, inasmuch as the history of this memorable Polar wave must, in a large measure, be derived from local sources and backwoods journals that never reach the Eastern reader or editor, it may not be labor wasted on the part of the Herald's correspondent to prepare a succinct and intelligible account of the sad affair, to which are added such personal passages as may be most worthy of observation.

A WASTE OF ASHES SOAKED WITH BLOOD.

Up to that fatal Tuesday, at whose mention many a heart shall ache in Minnesota for years to come, there had been winter weather of the usual sort, clear, cold, with occasional storms of snow, some of which had seriously blockaded the railroads and induced considerable suffering from scarcity of frel. The epizootic had for some time and an embargo on travel Our great Northwestern country must not be considered to be like Canada, a land of hills and valleys, thickly clad with pine forests. A great table-land, of considerable altitude, lying open to the winds that sweep down the Northern Sea at intervals.

ICY AS THE BREATH OF DEATH.

with an occasional tree, a semi-occasional clump of trees, or a still rarer belt of forest along a water course, and an atmosphere dry and rare—such is the Northwest. It is largely settled by immigrants from Scandinavia, poor and thrifty folk, whose wooden houses stond singly or in little hamlets, marking the prairie at every few miles. The country is fertile, and in summer smiles as the garden of the Lord; but in winter it presents a bleak face of snow to a cloudless, blue sky.

Tuesday, the 7th, was a lovely and mild day. The sun was bright and the air balmy. Every pulse of the country was astir under the genial influence, and the wild swans that clanged overhead once or twice from their meres must have seen the prairie road alive with teams. The farmers were all at the nearest settlement. They were getting short of fuel; there was but a handful of flour at the bottom of the barrel, not a scrap of meat was left. But the snows had ceased, their shaggy little horses were well again, every farmer hitched his team for town. In the little cottages of wood were women and children

Sabbath School Association

OF THE COUNTY OF PETERBORO.

To Pastors, Sabbath School Superintendents, Teachers, and others interested in S. Schools:

REVEREND AND DEAR SIRS:

The Executive Committee take much pleasure in stating that the Third Sabbath School Convention of the County of Peterborough, will be held (D.V.) in the Canada Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 11th and 12th of February, 1873. Ministers of Churches, and as many Teachers from each Sabbath School in the County and others interested in Sabbath School Work, as can make it convenient to be present, are cordially invited to attend, and take part in the proceedings. Provision will be made by the friends in Peterborough for the entertainment of all who may attend. Thus they may be able to do so, you are requested to send as your names to Mr. Maxwell Hall, Peterborough, by February 8th. On your arrival at Peterborough, you are requested to report yourselves to the Committee, which will be in attendance at the Church, for the purpose of assigning you homes during the Convention. It is hoped that every Sabbath School in the County will be represented. That the Convention may prove to be profitable to us all, and a season of refreshing from on High, the Executive Committee request that the 9th inst., Sabbath day, the 9th of February, make this expected gathering the subject of prayer, in public as well as in your private devotions.

Fatal Accident.

As William Fife, son of Mr. T. A. Fife, of Otonabee, was aiding in loading saw logs at one of Strickland's shanties in Harvey, about ten or twelve days since, the third log caused the two under it to separate, one of which falling on the young man broke his thigh bone, and otherwise so injured him that the effects proved fatal. The accident occurred about seven miles from Bobcaygeon. A doctor was brought to him as soon as possible, but in vain; he sank rapidly, almost without pain, and died two days afterwards.

Municipal.

A Bill has been introduced by the Hon. Mr. Crooks to amend and consolidate the Municipal Institution Act. We have not had time to compare it with the Act and note the proposed changes, if any. The consolidation of the Municipal Acts will prove a boon to all concerned in carrying out the Law in those matters. Some new powers are to be granted to Municipal Councils and perhaps old ones curtailed. This Bill will be watched with interest.

Beautiful.

Mr. Pentland has just received one of the most beautifully finished Parlor Organs yet brought to Peterborough. This one, we understand, is already disposed of, but others can soon be ordered by applying to him.

Personal.

Mr. Gideon Fitzgerald is now on a visit from Kansas. He looks well; the winds of the prairies have not yet defaced the Canadian lineaments. He speaks favorable of the country, and appears to prefer it to Canada.

Accident.

We regret to learn that Mrs. E. Fitzgerald, of Smith, got her thigh broken on Thursday last by a fall. Her toe caught on the zinc under the stove as she was moving round it, and by this means she fell and broke her thigh bone close to the hip. The Doctor speaks favorable of her recovery, but as she is advanced in years, being over 65, cannot promise that she shall escape the effects altogether. At present she is doing well.

Orange Intelligence.

The County Loyal Orange Lodge met in Peterboro on Tuesday. There was a full attendance from all parts of the County. The Officers for 1873, are:

County Master, Bro. J. B. McWilliams.
" Dep. Master, A. R. Anderson.
" Chaplain, Bro. Rev'd. McDowell.
" Secretary, Bro. John Smith.
" Treasurer, R. Waram.

All the officers were therefore re-elected unanimously, except in one case.

The Leader is so enraged at the success of the present Reform Government in Ontario, that there are strong reasons to fear for the future sanity of the old fogy Tory journal.

Conservative Clubs.

Brantford has a Conservative Club. The East Riding of Durham also has a Conservative organization to prevent future defeats, and to secure the election of Conservatives only to all offices in the gift of the people. This is the end of all the patriotism of the party everywhere.

Orange Social.

There will be an Orange Social in the Good Templars' Hall, Peterboro, To-morrow, Friday Evening, when a pleasant time may be expected.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Canada Presbyterian Church here will be held on Sabbath first, and on Monday there will be a Soiree and Addresses. The Rev. Dr. Burns, of Montreal, will preach twice on Sunday, at 11 o'clock, a. m., and at 6.30, p. m.

The Dominion Parliament.

The rumor that the Parliament of the Dominion was to meet on the 18th of February proves incorrect. It is now officially announced that the session will open on Wednesday, 5th of March next.

A New R. C. Church.

In order to accommodate the French shantymen as well as meet the wants of residents it has been determined to build a Roman Catholic Church at Kinmount, and steps have been taken to collect funds.

Lecture.

We have been requested to state that the Rev George Bell, L. L. D., of Clifton, will lecture, D. V., in Hill's Music Hall on Thursday, Feb., 13th., at 8 o'clock. Subject, "The Harmonies of Nature." Admission 15 cts. The Rev. gentleman will also take part in the Sabbath School convention to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday 11th and 12th instant, in the Canada Presbyterian Church.

Keene Affairs.

From a letter in another column our readers will learn that Post Office matters are not in a settled state in that Village, and certain questions are put which we are unable to answer at the present. We may conjecture the reasons for the rumours and the consequent uncertainty of affairs in Keene. Does, Mr. Grover wish to keep a few parties in tow a month or two longer? But perhaps a mild aperient, accompanied with a gentle dose of pressure from the medical faculty of the East Riding, might restore Mr. Grover to his right mind and establish Post Office matters on a more fixed basis.

The Ontario Teacher

Is the title of a new periodical, the first copy of which has been kindly placed before us. The object professed is, "to supply the Teachers of Ontario with a periodical thoroughly practical in its nature, containing the latest ideas of living writers on the theory and practice of teaching," and as many of the Inspectors of public schools are contributors to the work it will no doubt, become a useful adjunct to the teacher and his profession. This first number is very neatly printed, and the matter practical. Should the future numbers of the Teacher continue equal to the first one, it will deserve the liberal patronage of all in the profession, and of those who desire to elevate the teacher, and secure an intelligent and faithful discharge of his duties.

Agricultural.

Harvey is establishing an agricultural society.

The Aldine

For February is in every respect equal to the sanguine expectations excited by the January number of this remarkable periodical, of which each issue appears to be the climax until its successor appears. The opening illustration is a magnificent full page by J. D. Woodward, of Pancheon Run Falls, which is certainly one of the most delightfull pictures which it is possible to conceive. Further on we have three smaller illustrations by the same artist, the whole being illustrative by an article on Virginia scenery, with especial reference to the beauties of the Blue Ridge. Mr. Woodward, as a draughtsman, certainly will rank with Thos. Moran, and we shall always regard the specimens of his exquisite taste in landscape as among the foremost attractions which the shrewdness and tact of the publishers offer the patrons of The Aldine. "An Attack in the Rear," by J. G. Brown, a snowballing sketch, is worthy of that eminent artist's reputation, and it is in the exibition of work from the pencils of the first painter in the country, that The Aldine is justifying the highes, expectations of its friends. "Bust," by Wm M. Cary, is a wowerful delineation of a catastrophe on the plains, and the correct detail shows that this artist is no novice in the experience of the Western frontier life. The other cuts are all good and of interest scarcely inferior to those we have specially noticed. The literature of the present number leaves nothing to be desired in the way of excellence and variety. It opens with "Ebenezer Elliott," a gossippy paper about that manly old poet, by January Searle; a second paper of the same sort, by "Delfine Gay Girardin," a translation from the Spanish of Emil Castelar, by Helen S. Conand. The stories are "Over a Cabin Table." by Hiram Rich, and "The Garden of God," by Charlotte Peters. Besides, there are several miscellaneous papers, as "The Old Dominion," apropos to Mr. Woodward's illustrations; "Lingering Superstions," by Charles Dawson Shanly; "Moses and Lichens." "Snow" and "Poetic Children." Music, Art and Literature receive their due attention, this department of The Aldine being very ably filled. The Poems are "Penadventure," by Julia C. R. Dorr; "A Tartar Song;" by Henery Richards; "Up in the Trees," by John Sydney, and "Bust," by the editor, who evidently believes that some things can be done as well as others. It is written in dialect, which he handles with great skill and power, and will cause a sensation. $5,000 per year with premium Oil Chromos "Village Belle" and "Crossing the Moor," 14x20 inches. James Sutton & Co., Publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, New York.

Trouble with Emigration Agents.

A Col. Belle, Emigration Agent at Montreal, has been reported to his Government for making improper proposition to females under his charge. The charges appear very strong; and, as was to be expected, the accused has many sympathisers among the class who do such things. One poor woman's husband has been dismissed from the police force in Montreal, because he would not induce his wife to withdraw the charges contained in her affidavit. This wickedness is laughed at in high places, but what better could be expected from men whose every word betrays the impurity of their own live. How often is it that public men receive the adulations of the crowd because of the obscene jokes that constitute their conversation, an ot unfrequently as words the indices of the working of the heart from whence proceed evil thoughts. As long as the immoral character of our public men is winked at, so long will we find the chastity of Canadian women held as a matter of little moment in the eyes of those whom some men delight to honor.

PERSONAL.

Mr. A. J. Johnston, of the Ontario Drug Store, has passed a highly creditable examination at the late meeting of the College of Pharmacy held in Toronto on the 5th and 6th Instant. For the subjects of the examination which comprized Chemistry, Botany, Latin Prescription, Materia Medica, and practical Pharmacy and Dispensing. Mr. Johnston was prepared by Mr. Block of the Collegiate Institute, and by Mr. Sidney Johnston in the practical part of his examination. It is pleasing to observe these earnest endeavors of the part of the Messrs Johnston to fit themselves for the important and responsible position of which they now hold as legally qualified Chemists and Druggists.

Weather Changes.

The most fickle minded flirt could not be more changing in her fancies than the weather has been in its ways for the last few weeks, so much so has this been the case that not even the weather prophet can predict an hour before hand what may follow in the next hour.

Coboconk.

A Minden correspondent of the Independent says:—"We are finding here that the Cobocunk line is not altogether what it is cracked up to be, and merchants are going down to Bobcaygeon for their supplies. The Cobocunk station will be valuable to lumbermen as a means of introducing supplies at a cheap rate; but our merchants find they must go to Montreal not Toronto. The necessary arrangements are almost completed for the erection of a grist and saw mill in the village, both of which are much needed.

Concert.

We have been requested to state that it is the intention of a committee already formed for the purpose, to give a Complimentary Concert to Miss Kennedy, the committee considering that it is due to her for the assistance she has rendered at almost every concert and entertainment in the Town for several years past, and we have no doubt but that the citizens of Peterboro will cordially assist the committee in making it a success. By request the Maple Leaf Cricket Club will take part in the performance. The time will be announced in a few days.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING.

Friday, January 31st, 1873.

The Council met on Friday evening in special session, by order of the Mayor.

Present—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. English, Helm, Lundy, Paterson, Hopkins, Deane, Sperry, Dixon, Barrit, Moore, and Toole.

The Mayor stated that his object in calling the present meeting was that he had received a circular from Mr. J. C. Abbott, the city clerk of London, calling a meeting of Delegates from Municipalities indebted to the Municipal Loan Fund at Toronto on the 5th of next month, and thinking next Monday too late to appoint Delegates, thought it better to have the meeting to-night for general purposes, thus doing away with the necessity for a meeting on Monday evening.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

Communications were read from T. M. Clarke of Ottawa, wishing a copy of our advertisement for Water Works Piping. Received.

From J. W. Sheridan, asking on behalf of the Roman Catholic Corporation of the Town, a donation in support of the House of Providence in Kingston. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Account from the Gas Committee for $21.80. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Moore—That the Mayor and Town Solicitor be appointed Delegates to meet a general delegation representing the different Municipalities indebted to the Municipal Loan Fund on the 5th of February, in accordance with the circular of Mr J. C. Abbott. Carried.

The Committee on Appointments to Office read and submitted a Report which was received.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Dr. Burritt—That the Mayor, Messrs. Smith, Lundy, Moore, Denne and the mover be appointed a special Committee with power to add to their number, and that said Committee be requested to draft a By-law granting aid to the Ontario and Quebec Railway, and submit it to this Council at its early convenience. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Helm—That Messrs. Toole and Moore be a Committee to wait on the County Council and make any arrangement with them that may be necessary as to appointing a Caretaker for the Bridge, and having the pier or Breakwater repaired. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Patterson—That the Clerk be instructed to advertise, asking applications for the office of Assessors, Building, License, Health Inspector and Collector. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Patterson—That the Mayor draft and forward a Petition to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, signed by him and the Clerk, for an Act authorising the erection of Water Works in the Town of Peterboro, in accordance with and incorporating the Notice in this behalf duly published; and that Messrs. Toole, Smith, Helm, Lundy, Dixon and the mover, with power to add to their number, be a Committee to draft an Act and obtain the necessary Legislation in the matter and submit such Act to this Council at their earliest convenience. Carried.

Moved by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Patterson—That the Chairman of the Fire Committee be authorized to get the tanks filled with water at his earliest convenience.

Moved by Mr. Helm, seconded by Mr. English—That Mr. Toole be re-appointed Grammar School Trustee for the current term. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dixon, seconded by Mr. Denne—That Mr. George Hilliard be appointed Grammar School Trustee for the present term. Carried.

Mr. Toole gave notice of a motion to refer the Petition of Messrs. Rush, Mercer and McCullagh, Marshall and Anthony to the Finance Committee.

The Council adjourned till one week from next Monday.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Thursday, 30th Jan'y, 1873.

The Council met, all the members present. The Warden, James Miller, Esq., in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Blezard,—That a By-law to appoint an Arbitrator on behalf of the County of Peterborough, to arbitrate on the amount to be paid by the Town of Peterboro to the County of Peterborough, for the expenses of the Administration of Justice and for other, purposes, be read a first time.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, the Council went into committee of the whole on the second reading; when it was read without amendment. It was then read a third time and passed.

The Council adjourned till ten o'clock, on Friday.

Friday, 31st Jan'y, 1873.

The Council met, all the members present. The Warden, James Miller, Esq., in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. McCarthy, seconded by Mr. A. Brown, a By-law to appoint County Auditors was read a first time. It was then read a second and third time and passed. Blanks filled in with the names of J. J. Hall and Christopher Burton.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Golborne, the committee on Roads and Bridges reported.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Golborne, the committee on Roads and Bridges reported.

The committee on Roads and Bridges beg leave to report:

1st—With regard to the Burleigh Chute Bridge your committee would recommend that the Warden and Advisory Committee be authorized to repair the same if practicable, and if not then to build a new bridge, in accordance with the Engineer's plans.

2nd—That the Warden and Advisory Committee be authorised to repair the Long Bridge at the Burleigh Rapids.

3rd—With regard to the Nassau Bridge your committee would recommend that the Warden and Advisory Committee be instructed to at once procure plans and proceed with the erection of a new bridge.

4th—That the Warden and Advisory Committee be authorized to have the bridge at Hales' Mill repaired, provided the Counties of Northumberland and Durham pay one half of the cost of the same, the amount payable by this County not to exceed $50

5th—That the Warden and Advisory Committee be authorized to have the covering on the bridge over the Indian River between Otonabee and Douro replaced.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed)

P. PEARCE,
Chairman of Com.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Moher, the committee on County property Report.

On motion of Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Brown, the report was adopted

REPORT.

1st. That they would recommend that the sum of 50 dollars per annum be allowed Mr. O'Beirne, for rent of office until the present registry office is vacated, when it shall be removed to that building.

In the event of Mr. O'Beirne refusing to accept this sum in lieu of an office, then that the warden be instructed to have the old Division Court office fitted up for the use of the Master in Chancery and offer the original Registry Office to Mr. O'Beirne, until the present can be placed at the County Judges disposal.

2nd. Your committee having had before the report of the building committee of the new Registry office and a petition from the contractor, your committee regret to find that a misunderstanding existed between the contractor and your building committee as to the furnishing of the interior of the same as from inspection of the specification produced.—Your committee fail to see how the contractor could possible arrive at the conclusion he did, as it is plainly stated in the specifications that the whole was included in the contract. It is unfortunate that the contractor did not make greater progress in its erection earlier in the season so as to allow the building to be occupied at the time agreed in the contract.

The contractor however has agreed to finish the work as soon as possible.

On motion of Mr Golborne, seconded by Mr. McDonald, a memorial to the Lieutenant Governor in council praying for a grant of money to be expended on the Burliegh, Bobcaygeon and Peterson roads. Was read a first time.

It was also read a second time, and also a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Hickey, the Reeve of Belmont was associated with Mr. Burgess, for the expenditure of seventy-five dollars in the Boundary between Belmont and Marmora, and a By-Law was passed to carry out the Spirit of the resolution.

On motion of Mr. Calcutt, Col. Poole was heard before the Council asking a grant to the Battalion Band.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, Seconded by Mr. Moher, the inspector of Public Schools addressed the council. By his report there were 97 public schools in operation in 1872, 7 schools in which were more than one teacher, and 4 R. C. separate schools and protestant separate schools that would be 108 teachers in all.

The Council adjourned ten o'clock to-morrow.

Saturday, 1st Feb'y, 1873.

The Council met, all the members present. The Warden, James Miller, Esq., in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and signed by the Warden.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Hickey,—A Memorial to His Excellency the Lieut. Governor in Council for the Province of Ontario in regard to the reduction of the purchase money on lands in the Townships of Galway and Methuen, was read a first time. It was also read a second and third time and passed.

THE MEMORIAL.

To His Excellency the Hon. William Pearce Howland, Lieut. Governor of Ontario, in Council:

The Memorial of the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough, Humbly Sheweth,

That it is a great injustice to the present settlers in the Townships of Galway and Methuen, in the said County of Peterborough, that they should be prevented from obtaining the patents for the lots on which they are bona fide occupants, upon the same terms as those who were in the adjoining Townships at the same and under like circumstances.

That while your Memorialists cannot at present ask your Excellency to open Galway and Methuen as Free Grant Townships, as they believe them to be most valuable for their minerals. They would pray your Excellency to take the position of the bona fide settlers in those Townships into your favorable consideration, and by exercising the power vested in the Lieut. Governor in Council by Cap. 20 of 32 Victoria in a liberal spirit extend to them the same measure of justice as has or is now being extended to the same class of settlers in adjoining Townships

JAMES MILLER, Warden.
EDG. PEARCE, Clerk.

On motion of Mr. McDonald, seconded by Mr. Pearce,—A Memorial to the Lieut Governor in Council praying for the completion of the Buckhorn Road, and the New Road in Chandos, was read a first time.

This Memorial was also read a second and third time and passed.

MEMORIAL.

To His Excellency the Hon William Pearce Howland, Lieut. Governor of Ontario, in Council:

The Memorial of the Corporation of the Council of the County of Peterboro', Humbly Sheweth:

That in compliance with a Petition from four Memorialists, dated the 27th day of January, 1872, a considerable sum, during last summer was expended in opening a portion of the Buckhorn Road, but your Memorialists regret to learn that the work is not of such a character either as to location or construction as will render the same permanent and fit for Summer travel.

That as the Buckhorn Road will if properly constructed be of great service in settling the central portion of this County and affording ingress and egress to those engaged in lumbering operations. Your Memorialists would therefore pray your Excellency to expend such a sum on the Buckhorn Road during the present year as will not only complete the same but make the entire work of such a character as will render it fit for travel at all seasons of the year.

Your Memorialists are pleased to learn that during the past season a new road has been commenced leading from Chandos into the Township of Methuen, about five miles having been finished leaving only four miles to connect with the road from the Village of Norwood to the settlement at Oak Lake in Methuen, and respectfully ask that the said road may be completed, so as to enable settlers from Belmont to reach settlements on the Burleigh Road.

And as in duty bound your Memorialists will ever pray.

(Signed)

JAMES MILLER, Warden.

On motion of Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Golborne, a By-law appointing County Officers was introduced and passed through all its readings.

The following are the County Officers.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

S. S. PECK,
Chairman.

Moved by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Walton—That a memorial relating to the surplus at the disposal of the Ontario Legislative be read a first time.

It was read a second and third time and passed.

MEMORIAL

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario in Parliament assembled.

The memorial of the Municipal Corporation of the County of Peterborough, Humbly Sheweth,

That your Memorialists desire to call the attention of your Honorable Body to the great injustice which would be inflicted on the hardy and industrious settlers of this County, were the surplus which is now so happily at the disposal of your Honorable Body, divided among the Municipalities of the Province, according to the population without reference to the sources from which such surplus was derived, or of the burdens which have incidently been thrown upon particular Municipalities by reason of a large portion of the very surplus having been obtained from part of the province in which your Memorialists reside.

Your Memorialists desire respectfully to point out to your Honorable Body, as reasons why they have special claims on your favourable consideration.

That they never borrowed any moneys from the Municipal Loan Fund, and consequently while they have been compelled to bear the entire costs of there own local improvements, they have also been compelled to contribute largely through the general Revenues of the County to local improvements of other Municipalities.

That while other portions of the Provinces have been largely benefited and developed by the construction of Railways, which were largely aided out of the Public Exchequer. The locality in which your Memorialists reside from the very want of these Railway facilities has not made that proper which it would under equally favorable circumstances, to those of its more fortunate sister Municipalities.

That the older settled Townships in the Municipality of your Memorialists have been compelled to expend for many years past, large sums of money in keeping in repairs and improving roads in portions of their Municipality which yields very little, if any to the funds of the County, and from which the Ratepayers of the old Townships have received no benefit other than those derived in common with their fellow subjects throut the Province, by the growth and prosperity of the localities in which the same has been spent, while had not your Memorialists expended the moneys referred to the speedy settlements of the Crown domains in this section of the Province would have been seriously retarded and the operations of the Lumbermen which has so materially added to the surplus, could not have been carried on.

That in consequence of the existing provisions of the Municipal Law your Memorialists will be compelled in the future to continue the expenditure of large sums of money in opening up the Crown Domain for settlement without deriving any corresponding revenue therefrom, and which expenditure will be the means of increasing the revenues of the Province and promoting its general prosperity.

Your Memorialists would therefore pray that your honorable body will take the premises into your favorable consideration, and in distributing the surplus, will do justice to Municipalities under like circumstances to our own.

And your Memorialists as in duty bound will ever pray.

(Signed)

JAMES MILLER, Warden.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Choate,—That the different Memorials passed at this Session be forwarded to the Members for this County in the Local Parliament, and their assistance solicited in favoring the objects prayed for.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald, a By-law to provide for payment of accounts and claims was read.

The Council adjourned till Thursday, (to-day) at 2 o'clock.

THE NEW SCHOOL BOARD.

Feb., 4th, 1873.

Present Messrs., Stevenson, Edwards, Hilliard, McClelland, Toole, Rutherford, Edmison and Barlee.

Members were called to order by the Secretary.

The Secretary announced the names of the newly appointed High School members, viz., Messrs. Hilliard and Toole, (the latter reappointed,) and the newly elected members of the Public Schools portion of the Board, viz.,

1st Ward, Mr. Barlee.
2nd " Mr. McClelland
3rd " Mr. Edmison.
4th " Mr. Rutherford

The Secretary then read the minutes of the meeting of the Public Schools portion of the Board, held on the 3rd inst., the adoption

Dumble, Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. McClelland, Mr. Stevenson was appointed Chairman of the Board for the year.

The Chairman took his seat.

The newly elected Public School Trustees took the delaration of office which were fyled.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. McClelland—That Ivan O'Beirne be and is hereby appointed Secretary to this Board for the present year and that the salary be $125, or one hundred and twenty five dollars per annum.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. McClelland—That Mr. Jas. Stratton be and is hereby appointed Inspector for the Public Schools of this Town for the present year with the same salary as last year.

Moved by Mr. Edwards, seconded by Mr. Barlee—That Messrs Dumble, Clazton, and Edmison be the Finance Committee, and that Messrs. Toole, McClelland and Hilliard be the Property Committee for the present year.

Moved by Mr. Edmison, se

THE BY-LAW.

The County Council adjourned till this day, Thursday, at 2 o'clock, p. m. In the meantime Mr. Pearce, of Belmont, undertook to obtain attested copies of the different polls on the By-law. It is understood that the Council will then pass it, and leave those opposed to it to bring it up for the decision of the Court.

There can be no doubt but that the old townships are in favor of the Bylaw, and the northern townships against it, because they consider that justice has not been done them in the matter of the railway scheme. It is true that the action of the Council was such as to defeat, at least for the present, the By-law for $60,000, and this has prevented the Northern people from adding the road they desired to encourage. But the action of the County Council was not caused by opposition to the interests of the Northern people, but because it was believed that the amount asked for was too large, and because the bonus was about to be given to open up the County of Victoria rather than the County of Peterboro. Had the proposed bonus been in favor of any road leading through the County so as to benefit the front, as well as the back part of the County, the action of the County Council would have been different.

It is a matter of regret that the Cobourg & Peterboro road was not secured at once to Bobcaygeon then it would have been feasible to extend to Haliburton, with a view to extension to the Pacific Line. A road in this direction would have secured a large Government Bonus, as the line would open up the Crown domain in the rear of us, and largely develope the resources, mineral, timber and agricultural, of that section of Country between Peterboro and the Ottawa Valley, and also open up means of communication with the North West. It is not beyond the bounds of probability that a scheme of this kind will be projected soon, and then the people will be in a position to aid it while the older sections of the County would assist them in the work, and thus by mutual co-operation aid in developing the wealth of the County and Country to the rear of it.

From a comparison of the assessment of the whole county and the back country, it is found about $10,000 is the portion of the $120,000, those portions of the County will have to pay. And some are of the opinion that in consequence, $60,000 would be a sufficient bonus from the northern portion of the County to a road not passing also through the front part of the County. Be this as it may, the best way is to deal liberally with the northern townships, but if possible secure the advantages of bonuses for the County.

LEGISLATURE OF ONTARIO.

SECOND PARLIAMENT—SECOND SESSION.

Several very important measures have been introduced during the present Session, one of which, for the interdiction of habitual drunkards, will meet the approval of the people generally.

Another, relating to the education of deaf, dumb and blind, in Ontario, and especially one clause which provides for the education, free, of those who are not able to pay, the support of each person admitted being at the discretion of the Inspector.

The clause of the Bill is:

8—Such institutions respectively shall be for the purpose of educating and imparting instruction in some manner as to such deaf and dumb persons and to such blind persons as are born of parents, or are wards of a person who is now resident of, and domiciled in the Province of Ontario; and no person shall be admitted to either of such institutions except for the purpose of education and instruction, nor if over the age of twenty-one years, except upon the consent in writing of the Inspector, and his report to the Provincial Secretary of the particulars and special circumstances which in the opinion of the Inspector justify such admission; And the maintenance and support of any person admitted shall be in the discretion of the Inspector, who, on examining thereof in favor of such person, shall report every six months to the Provincial Secretary the particulars and special circumstances which justify such maintenance and support; and the Secretary in either case may annul the right of admission or of continuance in such institutions, and cancel or vary the terms of such maintenance, support or maintenance.

All our Educational Institutions are based on the principal of making the education of the youth, or unfortunate deaf, dumb or blind, of the community free, or nearly so. And that the present Government is providing for using its surplus in this way will prove a monument of their wisdom and liberality more lasting than all their liberal encouragement to railways.

They have also a Bill for the establishment of an Inebriate Asylum, or an Asylum for for the cure and treatment of inebriates, an unfortunate class of lunatics who cannot take care of themselves. A bolder but wiser step would be to do away with the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor, except for chemical purposes. This need not be expected yet but the day is not far distant when the intelligence of Legislators will be directed to the entire abolition of the system that is doing so much evil in the land.

The School Law will be consolidated and amended, perhaps improved. We have not yet received a copy of the Bill and therefore cannot give any of the proposed changes except from hearsay. Mr. Brown addressed the County Council on Friday evening, and while doing so informed the members that School Trustees for school sections are to be done away with, and the duties devolving upon them placed under the direction of the Township Councils, with a committee in each section, but for what purpose the committee should exist was not explained The Bill will soon be brought down and then particulars will be given.

The Government scheme on the settlement of Municipal indebtedness to the Municipal Loan Fund has not yet reached us. This is a very important measure and will require the most careful consideration on the part of the Legislature. The settlement of the matter will be earnestly looked for, as well by the Municipalities which have not borrowed from the fund, as by those which have.

The Opposition have confined their puny efforts to being in one little Bill, which received the six months hoist. Their opposition to other measures only proves their weakness.

Mr. McDonald's Bill against betting a Elections has received a six month's hoist, by a vote of 40 to 17.

The Debate on "Habitual Drunkards" Bill showed, of the Speakers, Messrs. Bethune, Calvin, Drohe, Grange, Farewell, Clarke, (Norfolk) and Attorney Gen Mowat, for it; and Messrs. Wood, (Bunt) Prince and Boultbee against. It has passed two readings, and is referred to a select committee, and will it is hoped become law.

The following is a copy of the Bill:

Whereas the drunkenness of certain heads of families and other persons in this Province has been in many instances the cause of ruin to themselves and their families, and of great loss to their creditors; And whereas, in the interest of society, it is deemed advisable to provide [illegible]

Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:—

An habitual drunkard is liable to be interdicted, and any person who has the reputation, in the community in which he resides, of being a drunkard shall, prima facie be taken to be an habitual drunkard

The habitual drunkard shall in this Act be called the respondent.

The interdict shall deprive the respondent of the entire management of his estate, and he shall not sell, mortgage or otherwise dispose of any part of his real or personal estate so long as the interdict continues in force.

The Surrogate Court of the County within which the respondent resides, shall have jurisdiction under this Act, and the judge of the said Court shall have full power, either in term or vacation, to exercise the said jurisdiction.

The parent, wife, child, relation by blood or affinity, creditor or friend of the respondent may be petitioner

The order for interdiction may be made upon petition filed by any of the said persons, and the petition may be in the form in Schedule A to this Act annexed, and shall be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner.

The petition shall be filed in the office of the Registrar of the Court, and an office copy thereof shall be served on the respondent at least eight clear days before a day, to be endorsed on the said office copy, and on the said office copy shall also be endorsed a notice according to the form in Schedule B.

In default of appearance by the respondent at the time and placed named in the notice, the judge, upon proof of service of the office copy and notice upon the respondent, and upon proof that respondent is an habitual drunkard, shall make an order for his interdiction.

If the respondent appears the judge shall, if both parties are ready to proceed with the hearing of the petition forthwith, proceed with the same, and if both parties are not ready for the hearing he shall adjourn it to a time to be fixed by him, and at such time shall proceed to hear the same.

Upon the hearing of the petition the practice shall be the same, as nearly as possible, as on the hearing of a cause at examination and hearing term in the Court of Chancery.

The order of interdiction may be in the form in schedule C to this Act

In case the order for interdiction be made upon default of the respondent to appear, the judge may let the respondent in to defend the petition upon such terms as to him may seem just.

In case an order for interdiction has been made after the appearance of the respondent, the same shall continue in force for the period of twelve months.

The respondent may, at the expiration of twelve months from the date of such order of interdiction, petition the judge to remove the same, and if it be proved that the respondent has become a person of sober habits the judge shall have the power to set the order for interdiction aside.

The wife of the respondent shall, in all cases, be a competent and compellable witness against him on the hearing of any petition.

Such interdict may be registered in the Registry Office for the County within which the respondent resides, and the registration thereof shall constitute notice of the interdict to all persons dealing with the respondent as to his estate, or any part thereof.

The judge may appoint the wife of the respondent guardian of his estate, and she shall have full authority to take any steps necessary for the protection thereof, and may prosecute and defend all actions in his name.

Any other person may be appointed guardian of the estate of the respondent upon giving such security for the performance of his duty as the judge shall order.

The guardian shall at all times be subject to the summary jurisdiction of the judge, who may at any time remove him or her, and appoint another person.

No person shall, after notice of the order of interdiction, sell or give to the respondent any spirituous or fermented liquor except under the direction of a duly qualified medical practitioner.

Any person violating the twentieth section of this Act shall pay a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered by any person upon a summary application to the judge of the County Court of the County within which the offence has been committed.

The person suing, who shall be called the plaintiff, may file with the said judge an affidavit in the form of schedule D to this Act, and if, from the said affidavit, there is reason to believe that the defendant has been guilty of a violation of the twentieth section of this Act the judge shall issue his summons, calling upon the person from whom the penalty is sought to be recovered, who shall be called the defendent, to show cause why the plaintiff should not recover the said penalty.

Upon the return of the summons the judge shall hear and determine the question in the same way as if the summons were a summons in the Division Court, and shall make an order, if the defendant be found guilty, for the recovery of the penalty together with costs, to be taxed by the clerk of the court, and if the defendant be not found guilty shall dismiss the said summons with or without costs as may be seen just, and shall return his order and all evidence taken therein into the County Court; and an execution may issue from the County Court upon the order of the judge as if the same were a rule of court, and when recovered the penalty shall form part of the respondent.

If the defendant be found guilty of a violation of the twentieth section, in addition to any other penalty, he shall forfeit his license, if he be a license holder, for the sale of liquor, and shall not be able to procure a license for the succeeding year.

Sections twenty-six, twenty eight, twenty-nine, thirty of the Surrogate Courts Act shall be applicable to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act upon the Surrogate Courts.

The costs of the proceedings under this Act, except when otherwise provided, shall be in the discretion of the judge; but in all cases on the application of the wife shall be paid by the respondent; and the judge shall not order a petioner to pay any costs in any case in which the judge shall be of opinion that there was probable ground for the presentation of the petition, and that it was presented in good faith.

KEENE POST OFFICE.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR:—Would you be so kind as to give the following question a place in your next issue. It is of considerable importance and as it concerns people who receive their mail in Keene Post Office to know where to go for it when they return to the Village.

In about twelve months it has been circulated three times that the Post Office was to be changed, and as many times parties have gone to carry the change into effect. Now what I, and many besides me, want to know is, "what ground there is for such rumours.—and why the change has not been made." If you or any of your readers could answer these questions, you would confer a great favor on the people of this locality, by enabling them to know where they may expect the Post Office from day to day; besides you will stop a great deal of gossip.

Yours, &c.
ALLISTER McALLISTER.

Keene, February 3rd, 1873.

The Independent says:—Mr. Robert McKelvey on Monday last, drove from Haliburton to Minden in one hour and thirty minutes. The distance is variously computed at from 17 to 20 miles.

Bone Found

This interesting affair has again escaped justice. The jury were unable to agree in his case. No wonder the Bone felt easy when he was able to administer honorable and learned counsel like Mr. Field, and to make severance doubly sure refer the whole case to a jury double-a packed for the purpose. The Bone may feel as secure as did the high criminal who was arraigned before his peers with a pardon from the king in his pocket. He walks about amongst his sympathizers as safe as an emperor surrounded by his guards in plain clothes. The old philosopher spake well who compared the meshes of the law to spiders' webs, which the flies broke through, though the small might be caught.

MONTREAL MARKETS, 28th Jan. 1873.—GRAIN.—Wheat.—Receipts during the past week 2300 bushels; total receipts from 1st January to date 11,556 bushels being a decrease of 2500 bush on the receipts for the corresponding period of 1872. The only transactions in this cereal which we have heard of this week were a few thousand bushels of No. 2 Milwaukie spring at $1.45, and some car loads of Upper Canada spring at $1 45; Maize, in small demand car loads sell at 75½ to 66c; Peas.—Market quiet but steady at 77½ to 80c; Oats.—Steady at 32c for new and 34c for old; Barley, is steady at 55 to 60c; Pot Barley, $5.50 to 5.75; Pearl Barley, $9.50 to 9.75.

Butter in Kegs from 12 to 20c; Cheese, (Fresh Made) 12½ to 13c; Pork per barrel $14.00 to 16.50; Wool, Lower Canada, 32 to 35 cents.

TORONTO MARKETS.—GRAIN.—Wheat.—Stocks in store have increased, and were on the 27th inst 111,895 bush. of spring and 63,967 of fall against 59,580 bush of spring and 32,750 bush of fall at this time last year. No recent transaction have been reported in white wheat, which is quoted at $1.42 to 1 43 for No. 1 and $1 35 to 1.36 for No. 2. Spring is rather less firm than at this day week. The only transactions of importance reported in this grain were the sale of several lots, about 20,000 bush in all, of No. 1, at $1.26 to 1.27 in store. At the close it is not probable that ever $1.25 f.o.c. could be obtained. Barley.—In the early part of the week there was a fair demand with light receipts, and prices were run up somewhat, but there has since then been more coming in, and buyers having partially withdrawn from the market, the advance had been entirely lost. No. 1 would not now bring much over 68c on the track, and No. 2 is quoted at 65 to 66c. A few cars of rejected changed hands yesterday at 60c f.o.c. Oats.—Supply has continued light, but there are a good many known to be on the way and prices have not further advanced. Sales of Canadian have been at 44 to 45c by the car load on the track, some broken lots bringing 46c. Chicago cars are offering at 43c to arrive which buyers are not willing to pay. Peas.—The only recent sale reported was a car of choice shipping peas at 65c on the track. Rye.—Very little coming in, taken at 65 to 66c from farmers waggons.

An Indianapolis paper says: There are at present, by actual count, but fourteen young men in the city who part their hair in the middle. One year ago they numbered over two hundred, but death and the lunatic asylum have cut down their number to the present figures.

A bookbinder said to his wife at the wedding. It seems that now we are bound together, two volumes in one, with clasps. Yes, observed one of the guests, one side highly ornamented Turkish morocco, and the other plain calf, and the next moment was taking rapid strides down stairs.

A much married youth—The young Emperor of China, who is about to ascend the throne, recently took to himself four wives in one day, and they are only the advance guard of a small army of wives who are to follow. Only one, however, bears the title of Empress, and she is the beautiful Alsia, daughter of a doctor of the Imperial Academy. Great preparations were made for the wedding, and her trousseau is said to have cost $500,000. The bridegroom is but 17, and seems to be getting into difficulties at a very early age.

BIRTH.

THOMPSON—At Ashburnham, the wife of Mr. John Thompson of a daughter.

DIED.

CORKERY—At Emiemore on Saturday February 1st, Martin Corkery, Esq., aged 42 years.

RUBIDGE—On the 5th instant, Captain Rubidge, Royal Navy, Registrar of the County of Peterborough, in the 86th year of his age.

The funeral will take place on Saturday the 8th inst., at 2 p.m., from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Orde, Stewart Street.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.
Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you consented to let me have your Salve, I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite an accession to my business. I have been selling it for some time without it. My last parcel went like hot cakes, and I never heard anything that would do so much for the human family. I have used it in a great many cases, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I was in for a week back, and it was like a charm. Many persons, and could be a certain cure for all. If I am healed, and others, and the Liniment, proved best and everything, and done for him all that he can do. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimonial in print, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

ONE IS THERE.

Above the waves of earthly strife,
Above the ills and cares of life,
Where all is peaceful, bright and fair,
My home is there, my home is there.
CHO—My home, my home, my beautiful home, my beautiful home,
My home is there, my home is there.

In [illegible] where the glorified
[illegible] room,
[illegible] bright wear crowns
[illegible] there, my home is [illegible] there.

Where living fountains sweetly flow,
Where buds and flowers immortal grow
Where trees their fruits celestial bear,
My home is there, my home is there.

Away from sorrow, doubt and pain,
Away from worldly [illegible] and gain,
From all temptation, tears and care,
My home is there, my home is there.

Beyond the bright and pearly gates,
Where Jesus, loving Saviour waits,
Where all is peaceful, bright and fair,
My home is there, my home is there.

GOOD NIGHT.

Good night, good night! till we meet in the morning,
Far above this fleeting shore,
To endless joy in a moment awaking,
There we'll sleep no more.

CHO—Where the pearly gates will never, never close,
And the tree of life its dewy shadow throws,
Where the ransomed ones in love rejoice,
Our glorious home shall be.

Good night, good night! till we meet in the morning,
See the hours are waning fast,
Along the banks of the clear flowing river
We shall meet at last.

Good night, good night! till we meet in the morning,
Where our friends have gone before,
In robes of white they are waiting to greet us
On the other shore.

Good night, good night! till we meet in the morning,
There from pain and sorrow free,
With Him who rose from the grave to redeem us
We shall ever be.

Romatic Marriage.

Quite a romantic marriage recently took place between a wealthy bachelor of Georgetown, D. C., and the woman whose hand he had eagerly but vainly sought in his youth. Fifteen years ago Miss——, the daughter of an officer of the Government, was a beautiful, fresh young girl, admired and sought after at the capital by many suitors, and one, a Mr. [illegible] of Georgetown, was so sincere in his devotion to her that she could not [illegible] record that [illegible] pleasure [illegible] refused, although she gave her hand and heart to another. So deeply rooted was her esteem for the rejected lover, that when her first child, a son, was born, she gave him the name she had refused to accept for herself. Her husband was an officer in the army, and was killed fighting on the Southern side in the second year of the rebellion, and his widow retired to a certain city out West and lived in quiet and retirement with her child. Last summer the boy, [illegible] years old, sickened and [illegible] daily [illegible] of Georgetown, saw the death of his namesake in a newspaper, and it was the first news he had in many years of the woman he had woed and lost. He determined to write and renew the offer he had made so unsuccessful fifteen years ago. He wrote and offered himself and all his possessions, on the condition that he was to receive for an answer a decided yes or no. In due time an answer came. The widow said she was much changed by the lapse of years and [illegible], still by her cares and afflictions. She had lost cheerfulness, beauty, all that had once made her attractive, and if what remained of her former self was worth the having, then her dear old friend was welcome to the [illegible] and in six weeks he might come to see her, and the wedding day should be fixed. "The dear old friend" had waited too long to brook even a days unnecessary delay, so the next day after the receipt of the letter carried him to the home of his beloved in the West. He found the lady very much unprepared to receive him; she had not a [illegible] in her head, and because her mouth was being prepared for a false set she had postponed the visit for six weeks. But the ardent lover would'nt wait for the teeth, and so the twain was made one.

Payment in Wind.

A circus company in Iowa recently owed the editor a bill for advertising, and refused to pay it. Thereupon the editor called upon the sheriff, who attached the Bengal tiger and brought him around to the newspaper office in his cage. He was placed in the composing room, and during the first two days not only consumed fifteen dollars worth of beef, but he scratched six dollars worth of trousers from the legs of a local reporter who mischievously endeavored to stir him up with a broom handel to make him roar. On the third day the tiger broke loose, and the entire force of compositors descended the staircase with judicious suddenness. The editor was alarmed to find his exit through the composing room cut off, and that the latch upon the sanctum door was broken. So he climbed out of the window and sought safety upon the roof. The paper was not issued for that week, and even after the tiger was [illegible] the editor had to slide down the water spout, because he was afraid to descend by the route by which he came.

A correspondent at Christiana, Pa., sends us the following of an aged negro, very pious, an inveterate smoker, who dropped in to pay a passing visit to a neighbor, who was equally well known as a temperance man and a hater of tobacco. On sitting down the old aunty pulled from her pocket a long pipe and commenced smoking, to the infinite disgust of her host. The man maintained his composure for several minutes; but the fumes became too powerful for him, and rising, he said:

"Aunt Chole, do you think you are a Christian?"

"Yes, brudder, I specks I is."

"Do you believe in the Bible?"

"Yes, brudder."

"Do you know there is a passage there which says that nothing unclean shall inherit the kingdom of heaven?"

"Yes, I heard of it."

"Do you believe it?"

"Yes."

"Well, Chloe, you cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven, because there is nothing so unclean as the breath of a smoker. What do you say to that?"

"Why, when I go to heaven, I specks I [illegible] behind me!"

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the Blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalising the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and inasmuch as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is in every instance safe. The number and importance of its cures in the Ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold around the world.

THE REASONS WHY

LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's

CELEBRATED

Perfected Spectacles,

AND EYE GLASSES,

have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:

1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.

2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.

3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.

4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.

5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.

6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.

Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of them Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

PUMPS. PUMPS.

Henry Owens

Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated SWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalleled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a years trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very close rate. He has increased his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

Select Poetry.

THE OLD CAMEL.

BY SELMA H. BATH.

I think of the cabin low
As the evening hours begin,
Where in the firelight glow
My sisters used to spin,
While the hands of our little brother
Were heaping the pine knots high,
And the sweet voice of our mother
Murmured a lullaby.
Without the ox-star shone
Up in the frosty air,
As in a low, soft tone
We talked to each other there;
As over the rude, dark ceiling
Flashed red the pine knot's glow,
We spun and talked of the room
Under the early snow,
Of the garden pinks and lilies
And the flocks that used to stray
In the pastures by the river
All the long summer day,
And then as the hours were counted
Into the quiet night,
Always we told each other
Some tale of sweet delight;
Till the gleam died out on the hearthstone
And shadows fell on the floor,
And the gentle voice of our mother
Told us to work no more.
Alas, for that ruined old cabin
Where the hearth light used to glow,
And the tender voice of our mother
Sang in the twilight low!
Alas, for the little brother
Who heaped the pine knots high,
For the years have passed like phantoms
Since we wept to see him die!
In the pasture by the river,
To-day the white flocks roam,
And the ruby rose and the lilies,
And the pinks in the garden bloom,
But no longer in the cabin,
As the evening hours begin,
Do the hands of my happy sisters
Twirl the old wheel and spin.
Ah, that is a haunted hearthstone,
Though strangers are dwellers there,
Where we twined the wreath for a bridal
And listened a dying prayer.
They know not how fancy phantoms
Gather, misty and thin,
There, in the dusky old cabin
As the evening hours begin!

Choice Literature.

A Bashful Lover's Dilemma

His name was Jacobus. Heaven help me if he should hear this story.

Among many of his misfortunes—for he was cross-eyed and knock-kneed—he numbered that inconvenient one of bashfulness. Nevertheless, he was fond of the ladies, although when in their presence he never opened his lips when he could help it, and when he did, used both hands to help him, in fact, he was a man of "great actions."

Jacobus, one warm day, fell in love. He had just graduated at college, and began to think he must seek the ladies society, he was getting to be a man, and it was manly to have a 'ponchona.'

So Jack fell in love with the sweetest, loveliest girl in the square, but how to tell his love. There was the rub. He had heard a good deal of "language of the eyes," and he accordingly tried that, but when he looked particularly hard at the window where Emily was in the habit of sitting, some person on the opposite side of the square would invariably bow to him, thinking he was endeavoring to catch their eyes. He has despised eyes ever since then. At length Jack obtained an introduction through his sister, and with her called several times, but she was obliged to leave the city for a season, and as each interview only increased his ardor, he decided on going it alone.

Long before the hour fixed upon by custom for an evening visit, he found himself arrayed in his best blue coat, metal buttons, black cassimere pants—said pants being a little tighter than the skin—and a spotless vest.

The journals of the day state, as an item of intelligence, that the thermometer ranged from seventy-five to eighty degrees. Jack swears it was over a hundred.

As the hour gradually drew near, Jack found courage and perspiration oozing out together, and he almost determined to pull and stay at home. He concluded, however, he would take a walk past the house and see how it felt. By the time he had reached the mansion, he firmly concluded not to go in, but on casting his eyes towards the parlor window, and perceiving no signs he thought it possible that no one was at home, and since he had proceeded so far he would proceed farther and leave his card.

No sooner determined than concluded. In a reckless moment he pulled the bell, the blessed thing need not make such a noise. The door was opened as if by magic, and the servant girl politely asked him in, Miss Emily was alone in the parlor and would be delighted to see him.

Here was a fix. Go in a parlor with a pretty girl alone! It was too late to retreat, the girl had closed the front door, and was pointing to the parlor where Miss Emily was.

Being perfectly convinced that no choice was left to him, into the dark room he walked or slided. All was perfect chaos to his eyes for a moment, but only for a moment, then from the deepest gloom came an angel voice, "bidding him welcome, and to draw near."

To obey the order was the work of a moment, as he supposed, but he little dreamt of the obstacles which fate had thrown in his way. He knew full well that the stream of love had many ripples, but all grown snags entered not into his head.

Judge then, of his astonishment on being tripped up, almost at the fair one's feet by a flat stool with plethoric legs, which chance or a careless servant had placed exactly in the road to happiness. Over he went, and as the tailor had not allowed for an extra tension of the muscles and sinews, he not only procured a tumble, but a compound fracture of the black pants aforesaid—said fracture extending all across that point which comes in close contact with the chair.

Having picked himself up as carefully as circumstances would permit, the smothered laugh of Miss Emily "not musing him forward say," he at length succeeded in reaching a chair and drawing his coat tail forward to prevent a disagreeable expose, sat down with as much grace as a bear would when requested to dance on a pile of needles.

The young lady was almost suffocated with laughter at the sad misfortune of the bashful lover, felt truly sorry for him, and used all her powers of fascination to drive it from his mind, and eventually succeed so far as to induce him to make a remark. But on this rock he split.

Just at this moment she observed that she had lost her pocket handkerchief. What had become of it? She was sure she had it when he came in. It must surely be somewhere about.

"Haven't you got it under you, Mr. Jacobus?"

Jack was sure he had not, but poor Jack, in venturing to answer, could not possibly get along without raising his hands—of course he must drop his coat tail. In his anxiety to recover the missing "wipe," he even ventured to incline his body so as to get a glance at the floor, as he did so the fracture opened, and beheld there lay, as the lady supposed, the missing property.

It was the work of a moment to catch the corner and exclaim.

"Here it is, sir, you needn't trouble yourself about it. Just raise a little, its under you"—at the same time giving it a hard pull.

Alas, the TAIL was told, no escape, —nothing short of an interposition of Providence could save his shirt. But what could he do? Another and another, a stronger pull, evincing on the part of the lady a praiseworthy determination to obtain the lost dry goods, coupled with the request—

"Get up sir, you are sitting on it," determined him in the agony of the moments, and grabbing with both hands a fast disappearing strip of linen which encircled his neck, he exclaimed:

"For goodness sake, Miss Emily, leave my shirt collar."

The young lady fainted.

ON THE ICE.

Maria Ann went to the front door, last evening, to see if the afternoon paper had come. She had been delivering a letter address to me concerning what she is pleased to term "my cold molasses style" of moving around. As she opened the door she remarked, "I like to see a body move quickly, prompt, emphatic"—that was all, but I heard some one bumping down the stairs in a most prompt and emphatic manner, and I reached the door just in time to see my better half sliding across the sidewalk in a sitting posture.—I suggested, as she limped back to the door, that there might be such a thing as too much celerity, but she did not seem inclined to carry on the conversation, and I started for my office.

Right in front of me, on the slippery sidewalk, strode two knights of St. Crispin. They were talking over their plans for the future, and, as I overtook them, I heard one of them say: "I have only my two hands to depend upon, but that is fortune enough for any man who is not afraid to work. I intend to paddle my own canoe. I believe I can make my way through the world——" His foot slid from under him, and he came down in the shape of a big V. I told him he could not make his way through the world in that direction, unless he came down harder, and that if he did, he would go among the "heathen Chinee," and he was really grateful for the interest I manifested. He invited me to a place where ice never forms on the sidewalk.

Then I slid along behind a loving couple on their way to hear Madam Anna Bishop. Their hands were frozen together. Their hearts beat as one." Said he: "My own, I shall think nothing of hard work if I can make you happy. It shall be my only aim to surround you with comfort, my sympathy shall lighten every sorrow, and through the path of life I shall be your stay and your support, your——" he stopped. His speech was too flowery for that climate, and as I passed them she was trying to lift him up.

Two lawyers coming from the court house, next attracted my attention.—"Ah," said one, "Judge Foster will rule that out. We must concede the first two points. We can afford to do it if the evidence sustains it in the third, but on that position we must take our firm stand."—His time was up. I left him moving for a new trial.

I mused. What a lesson the ice teaches us. How easily is humanity controlled by circumstances—and the attraction of gravitation. What a sermon might be based. I got up and took the middle of the street to prevent further accidents.

MY STATION.

By my station I do not mean the one from which I start in the morning, for that in all conscience is insignificant enough. A half-dozen of most uninteresting people meet every day at the same hour, on the same platform, and the only excitement is when the stoutest of our tribute to the line is a minute or two late. Then we watch him eagerly from our vantage-point, and mark with fiendish glee the impetuous bounds he makes down a somewhat steep hill. Once he has full way on, it is impossible for him to stop or check the unaccustomed speed, and his only hope of bringing up is at the foot of the equally steep ascent to the station. He reaches the promised rise, and slows off with a rash escapement of steam—when, oh, horror! the scream of the engine is heard. There comes the iron horse round the bend, and our stout man has but two minutes left to do 16 in. He casts a glance of agony upward, and we shout him a friendly encouragement. Then follows a fearful struggle—a race between fifteen stone of two solid flesh, and goodness knows how many pounds of steam to the square inch. As the line of carriages glides slowly along the platform, he has still some yards of rugged path to vanquish. We reach our seats, holding the door wide open—by doing so we feel as if we were throwing a life-buoy to a drowning man. Hurrah, tears the top of his hat, a porter snatches out his arms beyond the gate, and in another second our unlucky hero is in our midst. Not a word escapes him, during the short run to "my station," on the south bank of the Thames, beyond a gruff nod "Good morning."

My station is purchased from time to time by a [illegible]

The Short-Horn Conflict.

FROM THE PEN AND PLOW.

There is now in British publications a sharp conflict between breeders of short-horn cattle, and in the respective value of the Bates and Booth blood.

A writer in the 'Field' justly remarks:

"If short-horn breeding is not to sink into an association of half a score or so of millionaires buying in one another's cattle at fabulous prices to set folk talking, it will be necessary for breeders to look at the pursuit from a wider point of view than that now taken up by purists, and lauded by the press. If all that is to be aimed at is obsequiously to copy the herd of some dead breeder who earned a reputation, it would seem more rational to adopt the dead man's method rather than to scramble for what are left of his tools in the condition that he left them. To have a right to public sympathy, it would be necessary to show some benefit accruing to the public from the pursuit. To judge from some recent observations it would seem as if some leading breeders thought the object of breeding was to combine an admirable breed of an animal as far healthy as possible.

"Both the two principal breeding——the Bates Booths and Booth——had some years ago the misfortune to have the reputation of consumptive. Both commenced the pursuit some 100 years ago, and the public, since 1810, believing every family possessed of the blood of the celebrated [illegible]

New Buildings.

Mr. Belcher, Civil Engineer and Architect, has furnished Mr. D. Lessey plans for four nice dwellings to be erected on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Streets. The designs for the building are very chaste, and when erected they will be an ornament to that portion of the Town now vacant because of the fire about a year ago. If Mr. Belcher's knowledge of Architecture be secured for public and private buildings, our town will soon vie with any town in the Dominion in its style of architecture.

Sudden Death.

On Friday last, a man named Peter Smith, entered Dr. O'Sullivan's office, somewhat under the influence of whisky, and after some time and considerable hesitancy informed the Dr. that he wanted his advice in reference to his wife's illness. The Doctor hearing that she was in a sleigh at the door told him to bring her in, which he did. The Doctor remarked that the woman was dying, and almost instantly she expired. She had been suffering from Asthma for years, was advanced in life, but must have suffered from excessive cold in coming to Town, and neglected after she was here. The Doctor offered to allow the body to remain in his house, and to procure a coffin to place it in, but the husband would listen to nothing of the kind. He placed the body in his cutter and drove off to his home in the neighbourhood of Harwood. He must therefore have driven 20 miles with the dead body beside him. Our informant assures us that the man was under stronger spiritual influences than that of reason at the time.

Death of Captain Baldrige.

This old and respected citizen died on Wednesday last, at the advanced age of 87 years. He was one of the oldest inhabitants of the County, had been Registrar for a long time, and was universally respected. His remains were conveyed to their last resting place on Saturday, followed by an immense cortege of relatives and friends.

Lakefield Correspondence.

On Friday evening 7th instant, the Presbyterians held a social in the newly completed Manse. Tea being over Dr. Hodge, was called to the chair. Mr. Scantor and Mr. Casement then, on behalf of the congregation, presented the Pastor Rev. N. Clark, with an address and a purse containing $140. Mr. Clark, replied in very appropriate terms. The rest of the evening was agreeably spent in addresses and readings by the resident Ministers and others, and the whole was much enlivened by excellent music. Mrs. McDowell ably presiding at the organ.

Protestant Home.

The committee of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for January :—From Mr. Green a quantity of bread; Mr. White, a piece of beef; Mrs. Renand, a quantity of cabbage, Mrs. Vanderburg, sponge cakes and mince pies; Mr. T. Porter, a shank of beef, and piece of pork; Mrs. Thomson, a basket of onions; also, $30 from St. Andrew's Church.

The Sabbath School Convention.

The County of Peterborough Sabbath School Teachers Association have held a Convention here, closing yesterday evening. The meetings and discussions were interesting and attracted considerable attention. It is thought that the advice and information given will produce new life and vigor in the Sabbath School work, although some of the propositions were rather utopian, and quite impossible in practice. They showed the spirit of the speakers, and may, nevertheless, do good. The time has not yet arrived when teachers of all denominations can meet from time to time to prepare a common lesson, any more than Ministers can to prepare their sermons.

The Skating Carnival.

The Metropolitan Skating Rink was crowded with spectators to witness the grand fancy dress carnival on Tuesday evening. It was the most showy thing of the sort that has ever taken place in Peterboro, many of the costumes were new and original, and were very tastefully got up. The prizes were awarded as follows: best gentleman skater, a pair of skates, Master E. Harting; for best lady skater, a pair of same club skates, Miss Ida Martyn; best group costume, a gold locket, Mr. I. O'Beirne; and for best ladies costume, a fruit cake, Miss Lundy. The band of the 57th Batt., and a Highland piper, furnished excellent music on the occasion.

Keep Out of Politics.

Our readers will see a motion in the minutes of the last session of the County Council, congratulating the Government and the Country on the completion of the granting of the Charter to the new company formed to build the Pacific Railway. It contains no lie permanture, and amounts to nothing, as the voice of the County and Province is against it, but it shows the croppings out of a desire to make a little political capital. How some men watch for opportunities to manifest their political bias!

Fire.

A fire broke out on Tuesday evening in Mr. G. Brooks woolen Factory at Blythe Mills in the north end of the Town, and owing to the distance, the fire got under too much headway before the firemen arrived. The steam fire engine and hose carts were drawn by teams to the fire, and steam was up and the engine ready by the time they arrived at the mills. Two streams were laid on and the firemen worked with unceasing energy until the flames were subdued. The boiler house, which was of wood, and the inside of the main building were destroyed, almost nothing being saved. It is believed that the fire originated in the dyeing house near the boiler, but how it is not known. Mr. Brook had been at Port Hope during the day, returning home about 6 o'clock, and owing to some friends delaying him, did not get the office as he was accustomed, till ten o'clock, and just as about to go was alarmed with the cry of fire in the factory, which proved to be too true. His loss must be considerable and only partially covered by insurance. The building belonged to Mr. Hilliard and is very much injured. We have not heard the loss, is but partially covered by about $3,500 on building and contents.

Teachers should begin to prepare the lesson for Sunday on Monday, and not wait till the end of the week.

Each should prepare for himself or herself, and not wait till the work of others could be appropriated.

They should use the Bible—a good reference Bible and their own judgements, and then meeting, each could impart to or receive from the general fund of knowledge, as there would be found some stored with Chronological facts—When things were done; some with Geographical facts—Where things were done; and then others with what was done or taught.

The time for a meeting was towards the end of the week, when all might be fresh for the class on Sunday.

It should be held in a central place in Towns, where all would be comfortable, and could in rural districts be held from house to house.

He did not think the Pastor should lead, as that would produce fear and stiffness in the proceedings. The Superintendent might, and the teachers in turn, should lead the meeting; and prayer and singing and reading the lessons, and discussion might be the order of proceedings. Read it, study the meaning of the words, and try and find out the lesson in the lesson, i. e. what is especially taught. A good way, he thought, would be to get a class and do actual teachings, so as to allow room for general discussion on the whole work.

Sheriff Hall remarked that he feared there were few meetings, if any, for preparing the lessons; no doubt the best effects would result from them if properly conducted. He favored a meeting from house to house, as he had tried it and saw good results therefrom. All should be prepared to ask questions, as in this way they best find out what others had stored by.

Mr. Smith expressed a hope that the delegates from o tside the County would not leave the work of the whole to those in the Town, as he hoped to get information from gentlemen from a distance. He thought it would be pleasant and profitable if all the S. S. Teachers could meet and exchange thoughts, and aid each other in the work.

Rev. Mr. Millard knew that the Teachers of Brampton did meet once a week for considering the lessons.

Rev. Mr. Morrow thought the lesson should receive the most careful and prayerful study. Too often teachers went to their class not knowing much about the lesson—these could teach but little. He often found persons not well able to tell what they did know; Sabbath be studied so as to express them clearly. Often a good Superintendent was a poor Teacher, and hence the Minister or Pastor should identify himself with the Sabbath School work, as he could impart advice and instruction when others would hesitate to do so.

Rev. Dr. Bell, of Clifton, thought there should be occasional general meeting if not weekly, monthly, or as often as convenient. Too often the Sabbath School teacher did not know how to teach, and he was of the opinion that it would be wise to employ a good teacher, say from the high school to give lessons in teaching. Teachers, too, should be turned into a class and thus all have an opportunity of finding out or witnessing the best modes of imparting knowledge Free discussion should be allowed and faults, if any, pointed out. There should be a good History in connection with the school, for the teachers, where they could consult the best way of doing their work.

Mr. Black favored the idea of getting trained teachers to show how to teach and organize the schools, as without this there would be tediousness and monotony.—They could also read out of some practical work on teaching, but should be careful to prepare the words of the lesson as otherwise they could do very little good in endeavoring to impart to their scholars.

Dr. Hamilton, of Millbrook, thought the question had two sides to it. For instance, if all the teachers met how large would the class be? And then could one person teach such a class? He thought that a large class of teachers would become as difficult to teach as a large class of children, and then what about teachers for the increased classes? The subject of how to teach might run to extremes, and there might be an over dose of precept and but little example. To criticise the faults of others was easy, to bear the criticism, not so easy perhaps. There could be too many manuals on teaching, and things more important unattended to.

The Teachers and Sabbath School Superintendents would find a great deal of work to attend to the wants of their own schools, and their own classes, and perhaps if more of the teacher was put into the work and less imitation of others, more of the living teacher, both by precept and example, the work of the Sabbath School would progress as well as by all the routine of meetings and helps.

After singing the hymn "I love to tell the story," Mr. Fish gave in his adherence to the plan of Union Teachers meetings, as from experience he was able to speak favourably of their result in sections of the country where he had been called to labor.

Mr. Wm. Johnston, Belleville, then introduced the subject of "How should teachers prepare their lessons," and in so doing, said that they should ever remember that their duty was to work, not to shine.

Preparation was necessary, and where there was none there would be poor teaching. He thought it would take two weeks to prepare a lesson well, and he further remarked that teaching was not preaching The object of teaching was to tell scholars what was in the lesson, and to that end there should be preparation.

He deprecated the hurried reading of the passage just as running out to the class. It required work to master it, and then with a dependence on the spirit the result would be successful. He did not believe in divorcing faith from work, as they worked best together. The Word should be used to explain itself, and the Spirit sought to enlighten the understanding. He believed in trained teachers, so familiar with their work that they should understand it and know how to apply all the means at command. The meaning of words should be carefully studied, and method pursued in all that we undertake. The best helps were prayer, method, a good reference bible and earnest labor.

Discussion then followed in which Sheriff Hall, Rev. Mr. Morrow, Mr. W. Sackville, Mr. Black, Mr. Pentland and Mr. Donnelly took part.

Mr. Morrow especially giving the questions what, when, where, who and why, as calculated to lead to answers involving the true meaning of the lessons.

Mr. Black recommending pictures, plates and maps for every school.

Mr. Pentland deplored the indifference prevailing among teachers as to preparation.

Mr. Millard thought Mr. Pentland gave a dark picture of things in Peterborough.

Mr. Donnelly observed that by reading the lessons in the family on Monday; correlative passages on Tuesday and so until the end of the week, by Sunday the teacher would have a fair preparation for the class work.

Mr. Mason also took part in the discussion taking a more favorable view of teachers than that given by Mr. Pentland, but still believed there was required to be done by them.

After a collection to defray the expenses of the Convention, Dr. Bell pronounced the benediction and the Convention adjourned till 10 o'clock on Wednesday.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The County of Peterborough Sabbath School Association held their second Annual Convention in this place on Tuesday and Wednesday in the Canada Presbyterian Church.

Delegates from various places took part in the work of the Convention. Among these were—The Rev. Dr. Bell, Clifton; Rev. — Morrow, Rev. Clark, Lakefield; Rev. W. Millard, Toronto; Mr. William Johnston of Belleville; Mr. Beadle of St. Catherines; Dr. Hamilton of Millbrook; W. Sackville, Bailieboro, several of the Ministers of the Town and many delegates from a distance, whose names we did not learn

The meeting was called to order by Mr. J. Murray Smith of the Canada Presbyterian Church Sabbath School. And after duly opening the proceedings a committee was appointed which afterwards reported Rev. C. Fish as President Sheriff Hall and Mr. Mason as Vice-Presidents, Mr. Hall as Secretary and Dr. Tayler as Treasurer.

Mr. Fish was then called to take his place as President.

The afternoon session which was a very agreeable and instructive one we believe, we regret being unable to furnish the minutes of it.

THE EVENING SESSION

Was commenced at 7 o'clock p.m. Rev. C. Fish in the chair.

After reading Psalm xix, and singing the Hymn—

"I lay my sins on Jesus,
The spotless Lamb of God."

The Rev. J. M. Roger and Rev. Morrow led in prayer.

The Secretary read the minutes of the previous session which were confirmed.

Sheriff Hall then remarked that there appeared a little delicacy in the delegates from outside the county taking part in the proceedings, and to remove this he would move that all delegates be considered associate members of the convention and that they take part in its proceedings —Mr. Pentland seconded this resolution, which was unanimously carried.

The President requested all members and delegates to enter their names in the book provided for the purpose at the door, that all could be provided for as soon as known

"Teachers' meetings for the consideration of lessons and the best way of conducting them," was the first subject for discussion which was introduced by the Rev. Mr. Millard, somewhat as follows—

Teachers should have meetings, to prepare the lessons. Too often their meetings were for business; how to provide money to carry on the school, &c. But as the church ought to provide the means the teachers should be relieved from that part of the work.

They should have meetings for prayer. They should have meetings for consideration of the lesson, and these differed from meetings for preparing it—preparing should be an individual work.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Thursday, February 6th, 1873.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. The Warden, Jas Billar, Esq., in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting of Council on Saturday last were read and signed.

On motion of Mr. Blezard, seconded by Mr Pearce—The Council granted $40 to the Independent Band, and the Treasurer was instructed to pay the same.

On motion of Mr. Pearce—Messrs. Toole and Moore addressed the Council in reference to the Otonabee Iron Bridge and Breakwater Pier.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. McCarthy—The Warden and Advisory Committee were directed to act in conjunction with a Committee from the Town Council for the purpose of repairing the Old Water Pier and employing a person to take charge of the Bridge and prosecut any persons who may drive on or over the Bridge contrary to law.

Moved by Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Calcutt—That a By-law be read a first time confirming By-law No. 194 of the township of Monaghan entitled a By-law to authorize the sale and conveyance of a portion of the old roadway adjoining the town of Peterborough, being the original road allowance in rear of the 13th concession of the township of Monaghan. in the county of Peterboro.

The By-law was read a second and third time and passed.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. McCarthy—That the Clerk report to this Council whether the By-law submitted to the Ratepayers granting aid to the Ontario and Quebec Railway had received the assent of the Ratepayers.

The Clerk reported that there was a majority of votes for the By-law, and confirmed the same to the Council.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Choate,—That the By-law granting aid by way of bonus to the Ontario and Quebec Railway be read a third time and passed; and that the Warden do sign the same and affix the Corporate Seal thereto.

On motion of Mr. Blezard, seconded by Mr. Pearce,—The Warden read the opinion obtained from Mr. Scott the County Legal Advisor on the Railway By-law.

In Amendment to Mr. Pearce's motion. It was moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald,—That in the opinion of this Council, the By-law granting aid to the Ontario and Quebec Railway Co. is illegal for several reasons, viz.—Non-compliance of the Law in naming the actual indebtedness of the County, illegal votes given, no voter's list being furnished one of the Returning Officers, and that the said By-law be not read a third time as it will not only cause litigate, but that another By-law be submitted at once.

On motion of Mr McDonald, Mr. McDonald was requested to address the Council.

The Warden submitted the amendment, which was lost on the following division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. McDonald, Sanderson, Peck, Hickey, A. Brown, Calvert, Blezard and Watson. 8.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moher, Maloney, Calcutt, J. P. Brown, Powell, Choate, Parker, McCarthey, Pearce, Golbourne, Collins. 11.

The amendment was lost,

The motion for passing the By-law was then submitted and carried on the following divisions.

YEAS.—Messrs. Moher, Maloney, Calcutt, Brown, J. P. Powell, Choate, Parker, McCarthy, Pearce, Golbourne, and Collins.—11.

NAYS.—Messrs. McDonald, Peck, A. Brown, Hickey, Calvert, Blezard, Walton and Sanderson.—8.

The By-law was declared carried,—signed by the Warden and the Corporate Seal attached.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Choate,—That in the event of proceedings being taken to quash the By-law of this County granting a bonus to the Ontario and Quebec Railway, the Warden be and is hereby instructed to authorize the Ontario and Quebec Railway Coy., to defend the same in the name of the County, upon receiving a sufficient guarantee from the said Ontario and Quebec Railway Co., that the County shall not be called upon to pay any of the costs which may be incurred in such suits—Carried.

Council adjourned till Friday morning.

FRIDAY.

The Council met. All the members present. The Warden in the Chair.

The minutes of yesterday were read and confirmed.

Mr. Wood, of Harvey, addressed the Council on the state of Buckhorn Bridge.

Moved by Mr. Moher, seconded by Mr. Moloney,—That Mr. Wood show some written authority from Government before this Council take any action in removing the slabs from the Buckhorn Bridge.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. McCarthy,—That this Council desires to congratulate the Government and the County upon the announcement just made that the Charter for the Canadian Pacific Railway has been completed, and that Sir Hugh Allan, who has instructed himself more than any other citizen to heighten the honor and character of our commercial position, has been elected President, believing as we do that the building of the Railway is pregnant with most important and beneficial results to Canada; that it will tend to encourage emigration, stimulate the development of our unlimited natural resources, and to bind our province in one great nation;—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald,—That owing to the understood illegality of the By-law granting $150,000 to the Quebec & Ontario Railway Company, another By-law be submitted granting $100,000 to the Quebec & Ontario Railway, and $15,000 to the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls & Ottawa River Railway, and that a clause be inserted in the proposed By-law repealing the $150,000 By-law in favor of the Ontario and Quebec Road.—Lost.

YEAS: Messrs. McDonald, Peck, A. Brown, Hickey, Calvert, Golborne, and Walton.

NAYS: Messrs. Moher, Maloney, J. P. Brown, Calcutt, Powell, Parker, Choate, Pearce, Blezard, Collins, Sanderson, and McCarthy.

Moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald,—That a By-law be passed through two readings and submitted to the electors of the County granting $15,000 to the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, and Ottawa River Railway Company, in order to deal justly with the Northern portion of the County, who desire to aid the Fenelon Falls & Ottawa River Railway Company.

YEAS. Messrs. McDonald. Peck, Calcutt, Hickey, A. Brown, J. P. Brown, Calvert, Parker, Choate, Pearce, Collins, McCarthy and Golborne.

NAYS.—Messrs. Moher, Maloney, Powell, Blezard and Walton.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Blezard—That in consequence of the necessary expenses of levying, and increased labor in connection with the duties of the office of Clerk and Treasurer that the salary for the joint offices be increased $200 and that the Corporate Seal be attached to this resolution.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. McDonald—A By-law granting $15,000 bonus to the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Ottawa River Railway Co. was read a first time.

The Council went into Committee of the whole on the second reading of the By-law.

On Committee of the whole there were several resolutions moved for testing the good nature of the different Councillors toward each other.

One was moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Choate—That the $75,000 to the Grand Junction be inserted in the By-law, which was lost.

Another was moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Golbourne—To include the $150,000 to Ontario and Quebec Railway in the By-law. This was withdrawn.

The Council adjourned.

FARMERS AND RAILROADS.—A convention of farmers has been in session in Bloomington, Illinois, lately, to consider certain serious grievances under which they suffer from the railroads. They agree in representing the farming interest of the West as in a bad way. Poverty, if not bankruptcy, it is said, stares them in the face generally. According to one of their spokesmen, "In the midst of such overflowing abundance as to choke the marts of trade, and while the consumers on the seaboard and across the waters are hungry for our products, we cannot realize enough to pay our taxes and labor." It would appear that more than one cause has been instrumental in bringing on this state of things; but the sentiment of the gathering was unanimous in laying the chief blame on the exorbitant charges of the railroads. It was shown that in ten years, notwithstanding the increase of railroads and consequently of competition and of business, passenger fares had been raised nearly forty per cent, with a corresponding advance in freight charges. With corn selling in New York at 25 cents a bushel, it costs 42 cents to pay the freight from Illinois, leaving only 23 cents for the producer. Various ways of remedying this untoward state of matters have been proposed, such as a new government railroad going east and west, with low rates of freight, as a counteraction to enlarged the existing railroads to conform to the laws of the State in respect to freight rates, which, it is said, have been openly defied.

The Wheat Market

The continual flow of wheat into Cobourg from the back Townships during the past few weeks has been truly surprising, and there does not appear to be any falling off as yet, the noise and bustle of teams passing our office as we write being almost uninterupted. The two great grain merchants of this town, Messrs. Winans, Butler & Co., and Messrs. Hargraft & Co., have within the past three weeks averaged about 12,000 bushels each in their purchases. The run is now principally upon wheat, very little of any other grain being brought into town. The prices are firm, and rather advancing, fall wheat commanding $1.20, and spring wheat $1.25 per bushel. With such prices and a ready market for their grain the farmers must surely be jubilant.—Sentinel.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

At a very late hour we have received from our correspondent at Ottawa the text of the Charter of the Canadian Pacific Railway. We are consequently compelled to defer a full examination of the instrument by which this gigantic conception of authority has been consummated until our next issue.

It bears date the 15th of February, and only [illegible] the meeting of the [illegible] of the people, to whom on every Canadian principle it should belong. Further, a Act of the last Parliament, [illegible] —have been submitted for [illegible] assenting the [illegible] capitalists.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

(From the Mail.)

The return by mayor to Mr. E. B. Wood's motion for particulars relative to the Normal School in Toronto was laid before the House yesterday afternoon.—It has been prepared with great care under the direction of Dr. Ryerson, and is full of valuable information, of which the following is a short synopsis:

The Normal and Model Schools were established in 1847 at a cost on capital account of nearly $30,000. The number of attendances from that time to the end of last year, a period of twenty-five years, was 6,235; but as some students from time to time attended more than one session, the actual number of different individuals admitted was 4,075, or an annual average of 164. No Provincial certificates were granted during the first nine sessions, or, in the other words or the first four years and a half; but the total number granted since then during the past twenty-one years is 3,266, or an annual average of 155. The aggregate number of permanent valid certificates issued to different individuals, during the same period, was 1,980, or an average of 92. In 1871 only 806 persons, holding Normal School certificates, were engaged in teaching throughout the Province; but it was computed that the actual number of certificate-holders available for teaching was 1,056. The current expenditure of the two schools since 1847 amounts to $299,575, or an annual expenditure on capital account of $16,526. The average annual expenditure for each individual student has been $95, for each certificate-holder $100, and for each student now actually engaged in teaching $343. The Normal School, Dr. Ryerson says, affords proper accommodation for about 150 students.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and injuries to which flesh is heir. It does easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Sores, Boils, Felons, Pimples, Bruises, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Tetters, Chaps, Sore Nipples, Abscesses, Fistulas, Sunrise, Scald Head, Sore Breasts, Whitlow, Chapped Hands, Coughs, Colds, Chilblains, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores in Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, giving the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Scrofula and Cancer it produces a cure immediately. Let them wash and bathe the sores, obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is used in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with this Salve. The best Salve ever invented for Bunions, Burns and Sore Nipples. It is very liniment, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Coarse dandruff by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Felons this is superior to anything known. For Pimples rub some like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve as soon and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of MISS SAWYER'S SALVE are its beautifying effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you succeeded in let me have some Salve. Indeed, I can do well with it, and it will be quite an item to me. I have to my husband, as he cannot get about without it. He has tried everything else, and has never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and much more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can freely say we have found it effectual in every case. I have used it much, and it was like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Sore Nose on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proof of which and everything, and does for him all that can be done. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the sale of any one of them, or in different combinations. Then in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered. Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the smell of Oils which they may contain.

THE STOMACH AND ITS DERANGEMENTS are the common cause of most of the Chronic Wasting Diseases for which invalids are constantly seeking specifics. When the food is imperfectly digested and assimilated the blood becomes impoverished, and all the organs and tissues of the body debilitated by want of nourishment. This general depravety of the system manifests itself in some constitutions by disease of the Lungs, Heart, Liver or Kidneys, and in others by Scrofulous enlargement of the glands, eruptions of the skin, ulcers of bone and flesh, seminal weakness, irregularities, exhausting discharges, nervous prostration, mental anxiety, neuralgic and rheumatic pains, all of which arise from depraved nutrition. To invigorate the Stomach and perfect digestion, and the formation of healthy Blood Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixer of Phosphates and Calisaya is of great efficacy and reliability, being harmless to infant or adult, and prompt and permanent in its effects. Sold by all Druggists.

THE WONDERFUL "ONE-HOSS SHAY."

Have you heard of the [illegible]-horse shay
That was built in [illegible]
It ran a hundred [illegible]
And then, of a [illegible]
I'll tell you what h[illegible] delay,
Scaring the [illegible]
Frightening [illegible]
Have you ev[illegible]

Sexagenarian [illegible] with them
Georgius [illegible]
Smelly old drone from the German Rhine,
That was the year when Lisbon town
Saw the earth open and gulp her down,
And Braddock's army was done so brown,
Left without a scalp to its crown.
It was on the terrible Earthquake-day
That the Deacon finished the one-hoss shay
Now, in building of chaises, I'll tell [illegible]
There is always somewhere a weakest spot—
In hub, tire, felloe, in spring or thill,
In panel, or crossbar, or floor, or sill,
In screw, bolt, thoroughbrace—[illegible]
Find it somewhere you must and will—
Above or below, or within or without—
And that's the reason, beyond a doubt,
A chaise breaks down, but doesn't wear out.

But the Deacon swore (as Deacons do,
With an "I dew vum," or an "I tell you"),
He wound build one shay to beat the town
'n' the hasunty 'n' all the kentry roun';
It should be so built that it couldn't break daown:
"Fur," said the Deacon, "'tis mighty plain
That the weakest place mus' stan' the strain,
'n' the way to fix it, us I maintain,
Is only jest
T' make that place uz strong uz the rest."

So the Deacon inquired of the village folk
Where he could find the strongest oak,
That couldn't be spilt nur bent nur broke—
That was for spokes and floor and axle;
He sent for hickory to make the thills;
The crossbars were ash, from the straightest trees,
The panels of white-wood, that cuts like cheese,
But lasts like iron for things like these;
The hubs of logs from the "Settler's ellum,"
Last of its timber—they couldn't sell 'em,
Never an axe had seen their chips,
And the wedges flew from between their lips,
Their blunt ends frizzled like cheery-tips
Step and prop-iron, bolt and screw,
Spring, tire, axle, and linchpin too,
Steel of the finest, bright and blue;
Thoroughbrace bison-skin, thick and wide;
Boot, top, dasher, from tough old hide
Found in the pit when the tanner died.
That was the way he "put her through."—
"There," said the Deacon, "naow she'll dew."

Do! I tell you, I rather guess
She was a wonder, and nothing less!
Colt grew horses, beards grew gray,
Deacon and Deaconess dropped away,
Children and grandchildren—where were they?
But there stood the stout old one-hoss shay
As fresh as on Lisbon-earthquake-day.

Eighteen Hundred; it came and found
The Deacon's masterpiece strong and sound.
Eighteen hundred increased by ten—
"Hahnsum kerridge" they called it then.
Eighteen hundred and twenty came—
Running as usual, much the same.
Thirty and forty at last arrive,
And then come fifty and fifty-five.

Little of all we value here
Wakes on the morn of its hundredth year
Without both feeling and looking queer.
In fact, there's nothing that keeps it youth,
So far as I know, but a tree and truth.
(This is a moral that runs at large;
Take it—you're welcome.—No extra charge.)

First of November, the Earthquake-day.
There are traces of age in the one-hoss shay,
A general flavor of mild decay,
But nothing local, as one may say.
There couldn't be, for the Deacon's art
Had made it so like in every part
That there wasn't a chance for one to start.
For the wheels were just as strong as the thills,
And the floor was just as strong as the sills,
And the whippletree neither less nor more,
And the back-crossbar as strong as the fore,
An t spring and axle and hub encore.
And yet, as a whole, it is past a doubt
In another hour it will be worn out!

First of May, 1855:
New, small boys, get out of the way!
Here comes the wonderful one-hoss shay,
Drawn by a rat-tailed, ewe-necked bay.
"Huddup," said the parson.—Off went they.

The parson was working his Sunday text—
Had got to fifthly, and stopped perplexed
At what the—Moses—was coming next.
All at once the horse stood still,
Close by the meet'n'-house on the hill.
—First a shiver, and then a thrill,
Then something decidedly like a spill—
And the parson was sitting upon a rock,
At half-past nine by the meet'n'-house clock—
Just the hour of the Earthquake-shock!
What do you think the parson found,
When he got up and stared around?

The poor old chaise in a heap or mound,
As if it had been to Mexico and found
You see, of course, if you're not a dunce,
How it went to pieces all at once—
All at once and nothing first,
Just as bubbles do when they burst.

End of the wonderful one-hoss shay.
Logic is logic. That's all I say.

Household Receipts.

Paint Rust.—Keep fresh worms by a handful of sassafras bark to a bushel of fruit.

Frozen Potatoes, says the 'Scientific Press,' if properly attended to, may be saved before being cooked, can be baked so as to be as good as though never frozen. They cannot be boiled, however, nor even baked if submitted to the usual cleaning process of washing.

Graham Flour Muffins.—One pint of sour milk, one small teaspoonful of soda, one tablespoonful of sugar, Graham flour to make a thick batter. Bake in rings or drop the batter in spoonfuls on a square tin. A little salt should be added to the batter before baking.

Honey Fruit Cake.—Four eggs, five cups flour, two cups honey, one cup sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, one spoonful soda, one pound of raisins and currents, quarter pound of citron, one teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, bake in a large loaf in a slow oven. This will be nice months after baking.

Cocoanut Cake.—The whites of eight eggs, one cup butter, two cups sugar, three cups flour, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, half a teaspoonful soda dissolved in milk. This makes a delicious white cake, and if you want cocoanut cake, just add to the above one and a half cups more sugar, one cup flour, and a little more butter, with a small cocoanut grated.

Lamp chimnies are most apt to crack after being washed. In my own experience, they are less apt to break if moistened with the breath and polished with a cloth or paper, and afterwards with a chamois-skin, which gives them a clear brilliancy.

Rain-Water Barrels.—Where it is desirable to catch rain-water for washing, and there is no cistern for that purpose, kerosene barrels are very useful. You can buy them for seventy-five cents a piece. Light a match and apply it to the oily inside of the barrel. Of course none but an idiot would do this where the flames would endanger the house, barn or other property.

To make hard White Soap.—To fifteen pounds of lard or suet made boiling hot, add slowly six gallons of hot lye or solution of potash that will bear up an egg high enough to leave a piece as big as a five cent coin bare. Take out a little and cool it. If no grease rises it is done, if any grease appears, add ly and boil it till no grease rises. Add three quarts of fine salt and boil up again. If this does not harden well to be permanent, melt it next day, add the perfume, and run it into moulds or cut in cakes.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION

and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well-known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

Beware of Counterfeits.

Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

One Dollar a Bottle. Six Bottles for Five Dollars.

PREPARED BY

SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass.

And sold by Druggists and Dealers generally.

[illegible] PILLS

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extraordinary medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Innumerable cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by its [illegible] influence, which were supposed to be incurable. Its wonderful power in the most desperate cases of [illegible] Complaint, Erysipelas, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Blains, Sores, Ulcers, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other affections of a similar nature, arising from impurities of the blood, is now known to the world. Even the worst forms of Skin Disease, Blotches, Eruptions, and Pimples, are soon removed from the face by its purifying and invigorating effects. Many thousand cures of Scrofula in its various forms, have been effected within the last few years. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by constitutional derangements of the blood, yield promptly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Tumors, Female Weaknesses, and Irregularities of the system. In short, for all diseases arising from vitiated blood, whether lurking in the system, or breaking out on the surface, this PURIFYING PILL is a great remedy, giving tone and strength and vigor to the whole system. In cases where [illegible] and Nervous Debility, Sick Headache, Jaundice, or Biliousness are troublesome, a few doses of these Pills will be found very beneficial. For Purifying the Blood, they are unequalled, and those who once use them will find they remove all impurities from the system, leaving the skin clear and healthy, and the complexion free from those disfigurements which are caused by humors in the blood. Minute directions in the various languages are given in our pamphlet, which we desire every person to obtain gratis of our agents. Prepared by

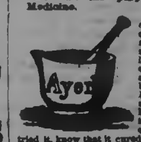
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, as every one is aware, in every country and among all classes, for this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures, and that those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Their operation by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—removes the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken, as each case requires, to correct the diseased action or remove the excess which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it restores the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Thus a trifling outlay purchases many advantages over the sufferings from sickness. Those who feel tolerably well often find that a dose of these Pills makes them feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive organs.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dimness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

PUMPS.

PUMPS.
Henry Owens
Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated SWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalelled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a years trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very cheap rate. He has increased his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and Repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

EVERY DAY.

Oh, trifling tasks so often done,
Yet ever to be done anew;
O ones, which come with every sun,
Morn after morn, the long years through,
We shrink beneath their paltry sway,
The irksome calls of every day.

The restless sense of wasted power,
The tiresome round of little things,
Are hard to bear an hour by hour
Its tedious iteration brings,
Who shall evade or who delay
The small demands of every day?

The boulder in the torrent's course,
By tide and tempest lashed in vain,
Obeys the wave-whirled pebble's force,
And yields its substance grain by grain.
So crumble strongest lives away
Beneath the wear of every day.

Who finds the lion in his lair,
Who tracks the tiger for his life,
May wound them ere they are aware,
Or conquer them in desperate strife,
Yet powerless he to scathe or slay
The vexing gnats of every day.

The steady train that never stops
Is mightier than the fiercest shock,
The constant fall of water drops
Will groove the adamantine rock.
We feel our noblest powers decay
In feeble wars with every day.

We rise to meet a hearty blow
Our souls a sudden bravery fills—
But we endure not always so
The drop by drop of little ills,
And still deplore and still obey
The harsh behests of every day.

The heart which boldly faces death
Upon the battle-field, and dares
Cannon and bayonet, fairns beneath
The needle-points of frets and cares;
The stoutest spirits they dismay—
The tiny stings of every day.

And even saints of holy fame,
Whose souls by faith have overcome,
Who were amid the cruel flame
The molten crown of martyrdom,
Bore not without complaint alway
The petty pains of every day.

THE RED MARK.

Is this Mr. Rushton's?

It was a handsome, young man who asked this question—a stylish fellow, with plenty of light whiskers, and the latest style of tie and collar. And the girl who had opened the door for him, in that pretty country place where the richest people were not very fashionable, was not a servant, but a young lady—Mr. Rushton's only daughter herself.

What a pretty little soul, he thought.

Then, as she turned her head, he wondered for a moment whether some body had just slapped her on the left cheek, there was such a singular mark there, exactly like the scarlet print of a palm and four fingers.

But that mark had been there all Fanny Rushton's life, and it was her one grief, her perpetual tease and torment. She had grown morbid about it in these early days of woman and would willingly have been flayed alive to be rid of it. But there were no cosmetics and no arts of surgery that could remove it.

There the red slap must be as long as she breathed, its hateful scarlet attracting the first glance of every stranger.

Mr. Rushton at home? said Luke Robbins, with a bow.

Yes, said Fanny.

Then she ushered Mr. Robbins into the parlor, and went away, and in a few moments the mill owner sauntered in.

It was a business call, though made not exactly in a business-like way. There had been some delay of a trifle, and the factory was closed when Mr. Robbins reach Mill Hollow, but those few words about woollen stuffs were easily said, and the confidential clerk of the New York firm of Rink and Hawley knew that the manufacturer was a man of strict integrity. The business was easily completed, and then Luke Robbins rose to depart.

'But you are put out of your reckoning by this delay,' said the old gentleman, 'and the hotel is a long way off, and I should be pleased to have you stay over night with us. The wife always has one or two spare bed-rooms and supper will be ready in fifteen minutes. Let us have the pleasure of your company.'

'Thanks,' said Luke Robbins. 'You are very kind. I feel tempted.'

Then he thought of the pretty face with the red slap upon the cheek. Despite that slap he wanted to see it again.

It sat opposite to him at supper time.

The best and kindest face in the world, he said to himself a dozen times. And he did his best to win a little chat from the shy girl, who could not forget her tormenting mark until they sat in the twilight on the piazza afterwards. Then he discovered that she could talk. As it grew dark, and the crickets chirped in the hedges, she grew merrier and merrier.

Mrs. Rushton had a call from some neighbor, and sat apart conversing.

Mr. Rushton, after many amiable attempts to rouse himself, went soundly asleep.

Through the evening shadows Luke saw the girl's finely cut profile and exquisitely shaped head, and the moon turned all to black and white soon, and blotted out the red mark. And he sat as close to her as he dared. And her robin-sweet voice charmed him, and what she said was bright and fresh, and he fell in love, as men do, for an hour.

Men actually do fall in love for an hour. Women cannot do that. They pretend to be fascinated very often, but it is real or nothing with them at heart.

Poor little Fanny gave away her heart that night in one whole lump. It is always best to keep a little piece if one can, but sometimes that is impossible.

'Oh, what a beautiful night, such a fine breeze, and such a bright moon,' said Fanny, as she stood on the porch with her mother after the gentlemen had retired.

'These mosquitoes do bite so despitefully, though,' said [illegible]

I wonder whether your pa will be suited with to-morrow's breakfast. He does ask visitor so unexpectedly.

Married forty and single twenty take different views of life sometimes.

Fanny went to bed to dream of Paradise; and the next day was all happy in memory of the parting pressure of the hand, and a whispered hope that they might often meet again.

'What a pity that mark is,' thought young Robbins. 'She's a darling little thing. And I suppose that Rushton is a very rich man. A young man might do worse than be his son-in-law.' Then as the cars whirled him away, he said to himself, 'What a pity that mark is.'

Nevertheless he went down to Mill Hollow very often after that, and he was with Fanny a great deal of the time. Fanny's mother thought that thought this suitor was not rich he was eligible; and she knew that the red mark was a disadvantage to her Fanny. Fanny's papa was an honest kindly old man, who loved his daughter dearly.

Alone together, the old people spoke of the probabilities.

'He certainly means something, said mamma.

'And they could always live with us,' said papa; 'we need never part from our only one.'

Our eyes grow used to everything; after a while Luke Robbins forgot that there was any mark on Fanny's face, unless something particular called his attention to it. At Mill Hollow every one knew Miss Rushton, and no one stared at the sweet, blemished face.

He loved her every mood at times, though there were long hours in which he never remembered her existence. I suppose none of us ever quite believe that the men we are fondest of, work us into their bargaining and ledger keeping as we work them into our sewing and preserving. If he only thinks of you after dark, you are a happy woman. If he takes your memory out with his dress coat and evening tie, consider yourself blessed.

Twice a week, at least, Luke thought enough of Fanny to buy her a boquet or some music, and spend two hours on a dusty railroad for the sake of seeing her.

He felt her love for him in her very finger tips; he saw it in her eyes; he heard it in her voice. He was a man who is happy in being beloved. And it was not old Mr. Rushton's money that made him decide to offer himself to her, despite the red mark.

Yes, the next time he went to Mill Hollow he would ask Fanny to have him for better or for worse. And he knew that she would say 'Yes,' very well.

There are evil moments in one's life—moments that change one's destiny for the worse. If only it had rained one morning, if only Fanny had fallen ill, if only she had not undertaken that trip to the city just when she did, this would have been a different story.

She used to be shy of going into the crowded street alone, and even when with her mother wore a thick veil, and felt uncomfortable when any one looked at her. But now she cared nothing for stranger's eyes. Somehow her blemished face had found favor in his. Had he not told her how sweet her eyes were? Had he not kissed her hand? Was she not sure he loved her—he, most perfect of all living men? Let them stare. The prettiest girl living was not so happy.

She went smiling down to the city. She made her little purchases with a light heart. And then, whiling away an hour waiting over a strawberry short cake, in a pretty restaurant, she saw Luke Robbins, yes, really Luke himself, coming to meet her!

'Looks as if some one had slapped her in the face,' said a gigglng girl's voice.

And he turned his head as he sat at a table, and saw her and went to her at once.

'Oh, I'm so glad to meet you,' said Fanny. 'I suppose I ought to start at once.'

'And I'll go with you,' said Luke Robbins.

He saw people stare at her as they passed down the room. Part of the staring was at the mark, part of it at the pretty face and figure. He laid it all to the mark; as she had all her life. It made him uncomfortable. But that his thoughts of hers were what they were, it could not have affected him; but his future wife, as he already thought her in his heart, that was different. He grew very grave. It was a terrible blemish. In these moonlight lovers' walks in the country, he had forgotten all about it, but in bright Broadway, 'how it forced itself upon him!' Every one stared so.

In the stage which they soon stepped into, a little child opened its round eyes, and, with a child's innocent impertinence, pointed his finger straight at the mark on Fanny's face, with an

'Oh, how funny!

Its nurse slapped the little palm at once and turned scarlet herself, but that did not mend matters.

At the ferry there was a crowd. Luke had passed Fanny in first, and stopped to pay the fare.

'Two,' said he.

'The old lady?' asked the man.

'No,' said Luke.

'Oh, that one with the red scar on her face,' said the man, lowering his voice. 'All right.'

'Confound you!' said Luke, in a rage.

But the man had meant no rudeness neither had Fanny heard him: but Luke was excited, confused, agitated. He hardly knew why then.

They crossed the ferry together, and he spoke no word to her, nor she to him. He handed her into the cars. Then he pressed her hand.

'Good-bye, until we meet,' he said and stepped to the platform.

There stood one of those white bearded, red-cheeked old gentlemen, who are always full to a certain degree, and who affect to be judges of women, since it pleases her on a level with wine, and horses having nothing whatever to do with anything but her personal attractions.

'Ah, how do do! Glad to see you my boy. Doing the gallant, I see. No relation, I said the old gentleman, grasping Luke's hand.

'No,' said Luke.

[illegible]

[illegible]

care of themselves for the most part. Pretty figure, rather good step, but confounded ugly red mark. A man wouldn't like that—eh, Luke?'

'No,' said Luke.

Something rustled at his elbow.

'I—I left my parcel, Mr. Robbins, said a cold little voice. Fanny stood there, so pale that the mark looked pure scarlet. 'Thanks, do not trouble yourself.'

But he went back to the car with her, and he would have pressed her hand once more, only she kept it from him somehow.

She had heard his speech, 'A man would not like it.' She had heard the speech that caused his answer. And I leave you to judge, remembering how she loved him, what her feelings were.

She heard me, said Luke to himself. She heard him—confound him.

And, as he looked after the flying cars, two tears came into his eyes and trickled down upon his cheeks, he wiped them away. Suddenly he felt that he loved Fanny Rushton from his soul—that this cowardly sort of trouble that the remarks and glances of strangers had caused him, would never make him ashamed of himself again.

Fanny, my darling, he said to himself—Fanny, my love, your face is dearer to me for its blemish, and you shall know it before I sleep. You should were you a beggar I'll hide it from the world's cold eyes, on my bosom, darling, and I'll love you all the more for it. And but for the place in which he stood, he would have sobbed aloud in his agitation.

He took the next train to Mill Hollow. He walked up the garden path in the twilight. He asked for Miss Fanny.

'She hasn't come in yet,' said the servant. 'They are so frightened about her—master and missus—but I tell 'em she'll turn all right.'

Luke's heart stood still. A presentment of evil filled his mind. He had seen Fanny into the car, and the train stopped within sight of her father's door. So, in the gathering darkness; two anxious men went down to the depot, hoping against hope.

'She stepped out on the platform suddenly. Either she was bewildered, or she did it on purpose. We were going full speed. She had a blue dress and a white hat, and there's a red mark on her face. They'll know her by that.'

That was the conductor's story that Luke and Fanny's father heard at last.

Did she step out on purpose, or was she 'bewildered?' God only knows—no living being. Luke tried to believe that what she had heard him say had nothing to do with it. But it was too late now to tell her what he felt—too late to hide her sweet face on his heart. He could only stoop over her, as she lay in her coffin, and press the last kiss his lips ever offered to any woman, upon the cold cheek that, even in the death hour, bore still upon it, that fatal red mark.

Locks and Keys.

The ancient Egyptians used locks with iron keys to fasten doors. Sir Gardner Wilkinson describes one of these keys as having a shank five inches long, looped at one end for a handle, and bent round at the other. The latter end was furnished with three prongs to push into holes, moving away the tumblers that held fast the bolt. Other explorers of Egyptian ruins describe various other forms of key. The principle of using tumblers to keep the bolt in place is thus of quite ancient origin. In European nations it has been used in rude forms for ages. The lock-making trade, however, does not seem to have taken it up till about a century ago.

The oldest writing in which locks are mentioned seems to be the book of Judges (iii. 23). Penelope is spoken of in Homer's Odyssey as opening a wardrobe with a very crooked brass key, ivory-handled. Metallic keys have been discovered in Great Britain as old as the occupation of that island by the Romans. Complicated metallic locks were found in the mud-covered ruins of the Roman city of Herculaneum, in Italy. The Chinese have constructed wooden locks with much skill.

As already intimated, the locks in common use till near the end of the last century had no tumblers; the bolts were simply shot backward and forward by the key. However, the accumulation of marketable securities in banks and counting-houses, and the increasing efficacy of the police in catching and imprisoning members of the criminal classes, led criminals to such ingenuity at lock-pack

NEW SEED STORE!

New Firm.

Giles & Mason

SEEDSMEN,

Nurserymen & Florists

PETERBORO, ONT.

Have great pleasure in announcing to the public the opening of a new Seed Store, next door to Means, Nicholls & Beal's, Simcoe Street, Peterboro, and in so doing would call special attention to the following items :—

1st. That their stock of seeds has been imported by them direct, from the most extensive and reliable Seed Growers in Europe and America.

2nd. That in consequence of their not being engaged in the Seed business heretofore, they have no old seeds to sell or mix with new stock.

3rd. That the Seeds they offer are of last year's growth.

4th. That should they at any time have Seeds of a doubtful character, they have ample facilities for testing their vitality in a Hot House before offering them for sale

5th. That one of the firm has been a successful Market Gardener for the last fifteen years, and may say with safety he considered well qualified for selecting Seeds suitable to the wants of the public.

6th. That those who may be blessed to favor them with their patronage, will find their prices—if not lower—as low as any reliable Seeds in America.

In consideration of the above facts, they feel confident that a discriminating public will see the advantages of their purchasing Seeds of the above firm in preference to those who sell on commission and return what is unsold. (What becomes of the seed returned?)

The above firm would respectfully inform the public that in connection with the Seed business, they are engaged in raising Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Shrubs, and will be happy to wait on all who may be pleased to visit their Nursery Grounds which are situated immediately adjoining the Town of Peterboro, on the Port Hope Road, where, in addition to the above, there is a large Green-house in which are grown a large assortment of Green-house and Bedding Plants. Specimens of which can at all times be seen at their Seed Store, by those who may not have the opportunity of visiting the Green-house.

Bedding Plants of Vegetables and flowers of every kind, suitable to the climate, in their season, at lowest rates than elsewhere—a supply of which can be obtained at the Seed Store, as well as at the Nursery.

All orders for Seeds, Trees, Shrubs, Flowers, &c., &c., accompanied with a remittance, or satisfactory reference, will be promptly attended to, either by Mr. Mason, who will be in attendance at the Store, or by Mr. Giles, who will be found at all times at the Nursery.

Address all orders to GILES & MASON, Peterboro Nurseries, Box 484, Peterboro P.O., Ontario.

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, FEB. 20TH, 1873.

Editorial Items.

Now is the time to subscribe for the Examiner. Any person subscribing now and finding an unpaid one give it up at the close of three or six months by signifying to us their intention to that effect in writing, or to the end of this year for $1.50.

Registrar.

Col. Hamilton has received the appointment of Registrar in the place of Capt. Rubidge, deceased. He arrived in Town on Tuesday to enter on the duties of his office.

Lester Bridge.

This matter came up for hearing on Thursday last, when the subject was argued but judgement is reserved.

Town Printing.

The Town printing for the current year has been awarded to the Examiner office, Mr. Stratton's tender being considered much the lowest by the Committee on Printing.

Increasing Value of Real Estate.

Wm. Finlay, Esq., of Smith sold his farm last week for $60 an acre. A year ago he held it at $50 an acre—two years ago at $40, and no sale. This shows an increase of fifty per cent in two years and of twenty per cent in one year.

Mr. Thomas Sedgwick of Otonabee sold 100 acres of the Homestead, last week also, for $5,000 or $50 an acre. We are informed that he held it at $40 an acre up to within a few months. This shows an increase in value of 25 per cent within a year.

Of course both these properties are in the neighborhood of the town, and fair farms. The progress of the town and the healthy state of the farming community are the chief causes of the great increase in the value of real estate everywhere in the county.

Otonabee Bridge.

From the report of the Messrs. Belcher in last week's Examiner it will be seen that those gentlemen consider the present chains insecure, on account of the length of the spans. This is almost self evident from the fact that fifteen links have already been repaired. We would not have it inferred from our remarks that the Contractors are to blame for this. The plans and specifications appear to have been at fault, or the influence of the climate must be more than this kind of structure can resist. The climate, furious driving and length of span are all against the permanency of the Bridge, and they will require to be provided against by stronger chains, &c., which should not be delayed last some accident occur, which it is not prepared to resist.

Railway Matters.

A committee of the Town Council and Citizens met on Friday evening, last, to frame a By-law for granting a bonus to the Ontario and Quebec Railway.

There were present—Messrs. Hilliard (in the chair), Toole, Moore, Cox, Sperry Denne, Carnegie, Wm Hamilton, Robt. Walton, J. J. Lundy, Jas. Stevenson, A. Smith, J. Stratton, Wm. Cluxton, Jas. Hall, R. Romaine, Wm. Helm, D. W. Dumble, John Bertram, Hazlitt, and P. Hamilton.

Mr. Dumble was requested to act as Secretary.

After considerable discussion, it was moved by Mr. Carnegie, seconded by Mr. Toole—That the By-law to grant a bonus to the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company be for $100,000 according to the understanding entered into with the county but subject to such conditions as may be hereafter determined upon. This motion was carried.

Several members of the Committee expressed themselves opposed to the amount as being excessive in proportion to the amount granted by the county, but in order to keep faith with the county would (otherwise unwillingly) endeavor to secure the passing of a By-law for the $100,000.

On motion the Committee adjourned till Monday evening to discuss the conditions necessary to be inserted in the By-law.

Cobourg Marke .

In Cobourg on Saturday last, Fall Wheat was $1.55 to $1.60, in Peterboro $1.25 to $1 37½. What is the cause in the differnence of these prices? Cordwood in Cobourg was $4 to $4.50, here sawed wood was $4. Hay in Cobourg was $14 to $16, here about the same.

Roads and Bridges.

At the meeting of the County Council of Victoria, the following resolution was moved and carried :

Mr. C. Fairbairn moved, seconded by Mr. Jas. Lynch—That the Warden be authorized to confer with the Warden of Peterboro to make such repairs on the bridge at Bobcaygeon north of the Forest House, as they may deem necessary.

Mr. Peel suggested that the bridge at Rinemount should be included in the motion as it was in a very dangerous state, and the suggestion was adopted.

Spring Assizes.

The Spring Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Goal Delivery, and of Assize and Niai Prius, for Eastern Ontario will be held as follows :

MIDLAND CIRCUIT.

Hon. the Chief Justice.

Whitby,	Tuesday,	11th March,

Firemen's Meeting.

At the Regular Monthly Meeting of the Peterboro' Fire Brigade held in the Firemen's Hall, on Thursday Ev'g, 6th of February, a motion was moved by J. Marshall, seconded by Lieut. Goldey,—That the thanks of this Brigade be tendered to Col. Poole, Chief Engineer of the Brigade, for his valuable services rendered on all occasions since he has held that office. The Town Council have this year elected Mr. C Stapleton, Chief Engineer, and Mr. W. H. Wrighton, Asst. Engineers of the Brigade, men whom we have no doubt will discharge their duties to the satisfaction of all.

Personal.

We are glad to see that Mr. Fairbairn has so far recovered his health as to take part in the debates. It is said also that he will visit Peterboro on Saturday, and remain here for a few days, on leave of absence.

Surprise Party.

On the evening of Thursday last, a number of the members of the Baptist Churches of Lakefield, Selwyn and the Communication Line, Smith, took possession of the dwelling of their Pastor, the Rev'd. T. Dyall, and after preparing and partaking of a sumptuous tea provided by themselves, and spending an hour or two in friendly conversation, Mr. Crooks, on behalf of the party read a short address to the Rev. Gentleman, congratulating him on the happy and friendly relations existing between him and the members of his Church, and presented him with a purse containing a sum of money, as a token of their good will towards him.—Mr. Dyall made a suitable reply, thanking them for the good wishes expressed in the address, and also for the more tangible proof of their kindness.

Timber Duties Collected.

From an official return in a speech of Mr. Fairbairn, we gather the following figures.

Timber dues collected in this County, 1871....	$ 94,350
Ditto ditto 1872....	176,777
Or an increase in one year of.....	$82,427

The increase is simply unaccountable, compared with past management, our readers being left to draw their own conclusions as to the men who deserve the credit of the increase. An increase, in one year amounting to twice the whole receipts of the previous year is accountable in no other way than previous mismanagement of either the Department of Crown Lands or of their officers.

Sent to Jail for a Month.

Richard Whitfield, lately from England, and apparently an over honest man, was tried before his honor, Judge Dennistoun, on Monday, for stealing $51 from one Bickerton while on a "spree" in Leahy's hotel the other evening. Bickerton had the money when he went to sleep, and when he came to his sober senses it was gone. Whitfield acknowledged his guilt, and said he had paid his debts round Town with the money. He now occupies a snug corner in castle McWilliams at the expense of the Town. and his own respectability. The excuse set up was "drunk at the time."

New Seed Store.

We invite attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Giles & Mason in another column. They have just opened a Seed Store, next door to Messrs. Nichols & Hall's grocery store, Simcoe street, where they intend keeping a full stock of the best seeds; they will also supply, fruit and ornamental trees, and shrubs, and green house plants and flowers. Give them a call.

Property in Dummer.

The Truesdale Farm, Dummer, was sold in Chancery, on Tuesday, for $3,970, or $30.70 an acre. Land in Dummer is worth something yet.

Bonuses.

The County Council of Ontario County is submitting a By-law granting aid to the Ontario and Quebec Railway.

The Township of Cavan is submitting a By-law granting a bonus to the Ontario and Quebec Railway of $50,000; and Manvers Township Council has submitted a By-law for $40,000 for the same purpose; and Cartwright $25,000.

The Rev. Wm. Morley Punshon, it is now intimated will return to England next April, where it is said an important office of the Wesleyan church awaits his acceptance.

Counterfeit half-dollars have made their appearance in Hamilton. They are so well executed that some difficulty is experienced in distinguishing them from the genuine counterparts.

The Model Farm.

It is pretty generally undrtood that the farm of F. W. Stone, Guelph, has been selected as the site of the Model Farm, though the Government have not made any official statement of the fact.

Lindsay Markets.

We learn from the Post that white wheat, last week, brought $1.50 per bus. in Lindsay, spring wheat $1.38 to $1.40 The established prices are quoted $1.30 to $1.40 per bus. for fall wheat, spring wheat $1.18 to $1.20, oats 35c. to 37c. potatoes 25c to 30c.

Chimney Sweeps.

In many towns the license for Cleaning Chimnies is given by the Council to one party—the price per flue is fixed and he is not allowed to charge more. Every one is compelled to submit to having his chimney cleaned once a year, and the sweep is bound to clean the chimney when required. The convenience is that citizens can thus get done, and that too at a cheap rate, what now seems impossible—while the sweep having the monopoly, makes a fat thing out of it. Are there no persons here willing to apply to the Council for the exclusive license? The capital is a bunch of cedar and some rope. Let no one go idle when an opportunity of turning an honest penny and serving the people is thus presented.—Perhaps the Council will take this hint and provide for appointing some one to perform this important duty.

Coal Tar.

Very few are aware of the value of this cheap and common material as a paint for posts, fences or rough boarding, it is invaluable. It coats the wood with a kind of gum, which while it keeps out water and air is at the same time a paint. For painting shingles it has long been used with best results. It is sold at the Gas Works at about $4 per barrel.

Toronto Water Works.

The City of Toronto has had a "Water Works Ring," headed by one or two members of the City Council, and the Collector of Customs, Mr. J. E. Smith. $10,000 was the nice little sum demanded from the representatives of the old water works property, known as the "Furnius Estate," for securing a favorable sale of the property to the City. Alderman Bell was set down at $2,900, and others were set down at sums varying from $2,000 to $500 each for their influence in the Council. Where shall the next "ring" crop out?

THE $100,000 BY-LAW.

In the Court of Common Pleas, Peck against the County of Peterborough. On Saturday last, C. S. Patterson, Q. C., moved for a Rule Nisi to quash By-law No. 253, (the By-law granting the $150,000 lately voted on) on the grounds : first that it does not truly state the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality : Second, that it has not received a majority of legal votes of the ratepayers : and third, that a Returning Officer was not provided with a list of voters at the time of taking the vote thereon The Rule was granted, and the matter will be argued in May, perhaps. In the mean time, the Lindsay & Fenelon Falss Railway Company will push forward their Bill, if possible.

Through the kindness of Mr. Fairbairn, we have received a Map of the proposed route of the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Ottawa River Railway, with lines of demarcation of the group of Townships sought to be affected by their By-law for $80,000. The Map is headed "County of Peterborough Iniquity." The population of the section referred to is stated at 3,000 that will give about 600 families in those Townships, reckoning 5 in a family. The interest and sinking fund to meet the $80,000 is $6,000 a year for 20 years, which amounts to $120,000 without reference to interest accruing on sinking fund. This involves every ratepayer in those townships in a debt of $200, for this railway, a sum we fancy very little short of the value of their whole farms at present. Is this not Railway Iniquity?—After referring to the history of the rejection of the petition to submit a By-law for $50,000, and then submitting a By-law for $150,000 on the whole County, the compliers of the information and promoters of the Fenelon Falls Railway ask: Or will the Government and Legislature relieve the petitioners in the section in favor of the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, and Ottawa River Railway from the operation of the County By-law in aid of the Ontario and Quebec Railway?

It is an acknowledged principle of municipal institutions that the whole municipality is subject to the legal acts of the Council of the municipality, although one portion may imagine that the Council does not do equal justice to all sections of their municipality. Just imagine the folly of one ward of a Township or Town praying for Exceptional Legislation, because of an imagined neglect of the Council of that ward, or because it did not receive $30,000 when $10,000 was the largest sum it should receive according to value, population and necessities. If the Legislature interfere with the action of the County Council (expressed and carried in Council) then it had better do away with the Council altogether, and manage our entire County affairs at Toronto. If the acts of the County Council are contrary to law, then there is legal redress, but if according to the Municipal Institutions' Act, no Legislature ought to interfere : all Exceptional Legislation is dangerous.

LINDSAY, FENELON FALLS AND OTTAWA River Railway Company, Iniquity.

The following most remarkable and iniquitous Bill has been introduced by S. C. Wood, of South Victoria. The object of it is apparent to compel the County of Peterboro to levy on the people of the Northern Townships, a tax that will force them to leave the County for some other more favored and lighter taxed place. The people of Lindsay have set their heart on the trade of North Peterborough, and their Representative is ready to aid their efforts at the expense of justice to the people of the County of Peterborough.

The Bill, which is entituled an Act to amend the Act Incorporating the Fenelon Falls Railway Company, is as follows:—

"Whereas the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Ottawa River Railway Company have presented their petition for an Act to amend the Act passed in the thirty-fourth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and chaptered forty-three, and the Act passed in the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Her said Majesty, and chaptered sixty, by giving them power to build branches to the Town of Whitby and the Village of Oshawa, in the County of Ontario, to alter the name of the company, to permit the appointment of a director to represent the Town of Lindsay, and to increase the amount for which bonds may be issued by the said company : And whereas it has been made to appear that, since the presentation of the said petition, manifest injustice has been done to certain townships in the northern portion of the County of Peterborough hereinafter mentioned, and it is just to remedy the same ; and it is expedient to grant the prayer of the said petition :

Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows :—

1. The said company shall hereafter be known and called by the name of "The Victoria Railway Company."

2. It shall have power to construct branches of its railway from any point on its line in the County of Victoria to the Town of Whitby and the Village of Oshawa, in the County of Ontario, and all the clauses in force in the said recited Acts shall apply to such branches in so far as they can.

3. The said company shall be at liberty to add to their board of directors, a director to represent the Town of Lindsay, who shall be appointed by the council of the Town of Lindsay.

4. The said company shall have power to issue bonds to the extent of twelve thousand dollars a mile.

5. Notwithstanding anything in the said or any other Acts contained, the Townships of Galway, Cavendish, Snowdon, Chandos, Monmouth, Minden, Dysart, Dudley, Harcourt, Stanhope, Guilford, Harburn and Bruton, or any number of them that may choose to join together for the purpose, may give aid to the said company by way of bonus to an amount not exceeding the sum of sixty thousand dollars ; and the county council of the County of Peterborough shall, within at least three weeks after a petition under the third sub-section of section 479 of the Act passed in the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Her said Majesty, and chaptered sixty, shall have been left with the clerk of the said council, submit a by-law to be voted on by the duly qualified voters in such townships, and shall carry the same if it shall have been carried, and shall do all other acts and things that may be necessary to give effect to the object of the said clause.

By this Act, (if passed) the people of the Northern Townships will have to pay no less than 3 cents and 9 mills in the dollar, yearly, over and above all other taxes for Township and County purposes The interest on $60,000 is.....$3 600
The Sinking Fund on do..... 3 000
The same on outstanding debentures 1 420

Or a total for Debentures.....$8 020

The assessed value of all the Townships in the parts included in the Bill is $261,084, less 20 per cent, which is added without any legal sanction for so doing; take this off and there remains just $208,867 as the assessment proper. Therefore, to levy $8,020 on the assessed value of $208,867, will require a rate of nearly 3 cents and 9 mills in the dollar, and as this is above all other rates for township, school and county roads and bridges, the people will find that to pay it will be paying dear for the luxury of a railroad.

When Mr. Brown addressed the County Council at its last session, he stated that in Dysart the school rate last year was ¾ cents, 2½ cts., and 2½ cts. in the dollar, respectively in different school sections.

Put the whole of the rate, therefore, under this proposed Act, and other rates together, and the people will find the taxes a burden. We believe that the Northern portions of the County should be as liberally dealt with as the old settlements, and when the County Council offered to give them $12,000, or $15,000 as an equivalent for their portion of the $150,000, they meant to deal fairly with the back part of the County. Before entailing upon themselves and their posterity, a debt of $80,000, they should carefully count the costs, almost four cents in the dollar, for over as when once committed to it the difficulty is to so manage the income as to meet the liabilities and pay off the debt. Councillors are unwilling to limit their power to vote away money so as to maintain popularity enough to re-elect them, and instead of paying off liabilities, merely issue new debentures, and in this way they too often increase the debt, rather than diminish it.

It cannot be that any Legislature would so far endanger the prosperity of the country as to involve it in railway debts, beyond the power of the people to meet; but under the pressure of railway rings the greatest firmness is necessary, lest that railways, which tend to the general prosperity of this country, should become so burdensome that the country should groan under them, while on a few designing knaves reap a rich harvest.

WHAT NEXT?

On the occasion of the decease of the late Registrar, as is usual, there were several applicants for the office, four of whom were residents of the town and county, and supporters of the present Government.

It is stated that there were also several applicants from Lindsay, Port Hope and even from Montreal, but of this we cannot speak with certainty. But the most amusing side of the affair was Conservatives running the town round with petitions in hand, and men and horses thro' the townships on the same errand, to get the appointment for the present Deputy Registrar. It is well known that all such appointments are the gift of the party in power, and surely the Conservatives could not imagine that the present Government would be so unmindful of their own interests as to give the appointment to an out and out Conservative, at the recommendation of even all the Conservatives in the county. We understand that a few that they only wanted to have the gentleman refered to, secured in his present position. Misrepresentation may secure a few names to a petition but in the cull recoils on those guilty of using it.

A WORD AS TO PETITIONS.

Too many in the present day are unable to deny their name to a paper, especially when to put it on, costs them nothing, and may gain them the name of being liberal.

Too much cannot be said against men putting their names to a petition for a man that personally they would not recommend. And language is not strong enough to condemn the man who puts his name on a petition for one man and writes his private letters in favor of another. Reformers too should be slow to lend even the show of their names to secure any position for any man or set of men whose whole political influence has been opposed to Reform interests, notwithstanding the twaddle of interested party demagogues.

The acknowledged political principle of all gifts in the favor of any government, is to appoint a worthy supporter of the government. The office can not be a personal favor but a party gift. The representative for the time being, being only the custodian of the party to carry out their wishes in the matter. Should any party or government, or member, recommend an unworthy man, the party will have to suffer, but in the same way should any personal feeling dictate what should be done instead of public interest, the party may have to suffer the consequences be they good or bad. We do not believe in purchasing opponents by gifts of either money or office, and we just as unhesitatingly affirm that no personal consideration should be allowed to prevent the appointment of worthy men whose lives have been spent laboring in the interest of their party.

The conservative party have made several appointments in this county of late. The County Judge, the Police Magistrate, the Postmaster, and Collector of Customs. We need only name those officers to prove that Sir John A. Macdonald and John Sandfield acknowledged the principle and acted upon it, and we say they did right, in doing so; and conservatives must be very simple indeed to suppose that a petition from them would induce a contrary course just now. It is true that personal feeling may be represented, and perhaps truly, as the cause of certain appointments from time to time. In answer to this we can only say that when personal feeling takes the place of honor then anything may be done no matter how injurious to party interests.

SPAIN.

This unhappy country is again in trouble. King Amadeus has abdicated the throne, which he has occupied for so short a period. The consequence is that a Republic has been proclaimed, but is not likely to be established without blood.—The Carlists are not prepared to submit to a republican form of government ; and although there were general illuminations on the occasion of establishing the Republic—yet the country is not tranquil, as the following telegram shows :

"Don Carlos entered Spain on Thursday last. The Carlists are working vigorously to advance the interests of their leader. Sarguem is practically blockaded by the insurgents. The insurrectionists have cut the railway between that city and the north at Pancorva, a town in a mountain defile in the Province of Burgos."

The people of Spain are not yet prepared for republican institutions. Long accustomed to almost despotic government, and not trained to independence of either mind or action, they are not likely to contend for unknown and perhaps unsought rights.

The leaders of thought, and in the present case, of the republican movement, are men in advance of the times, no doubt, but they require to be supported by the mass of the people if they hope to secure the control of the people.

The religious teachers of Spain are not in sympathy with the republic, and as they possess an influence, not likely to be despised by the people, the side they take is almost certain of success.

This effort to rid Spain of an effete system, will have its sympathizers in all the nations of Europe ; but sympathy is of little avail unaccompanied by men and money. The sinews of war are more desirable than sympathy.

The unsettled state of affairs in France will materially aid the republican cause, but nothing short of an earnest desire on the part of the people of Spain, and a determination to manfully contend for their political freedom, can secure it.—The tendency of absolute government is to force nations when seeking a change, toward undue liberalism, which requires to be guarded against. But in the light of the history of the past, Spain may be able to establish a government free from the extremes of either.

PARLIAMENTARY.

The Attorney-General has announced that the Government policy in reference the Agricultural College, will be submitted shortly.

Mr. FAREWELL has moved for the appointment of a select committee to enquire into the working of the Tavern and Shop License Act of 1868, and into the subject of the liquor traffic of the Province, with power to send for persons and papers.

Mr. CAMERON could not understand the object of the resolution, as he knew of no complaints against the working of the License Act.

Mr. FAREWELL said that his honourable friend wished to know if any complaints had been made in reference to the Liquor License Act. Why, what was the meaning of those petitions from about fifty thousand people presented to the House in respect to the present law? Those persons were asking the Legislature to take the matter into consideration for the purpose of ascertaining if something could not be done to place the liquor traffic on a better basis, so that the terrible results flowing therefrom might be stayed. It was a subject of the very highest importance, and it was for the purpose of getting fuller information that he had asked for a Select Committee, the members of which should hear the evidence of persons from various parts of the country, and connected with various branches of industry, so that the Committee might be enabled to make such a report that would determine whether further legislation could be entered upon which would place the liquor traffic of this Province upon better basis. There were already three or four Bills dealing with the question introduced this session, and all those Bills should go into the hands of that Committee, who, he hoped, would be enabled to throw out valuable suggestions in regard to future dealing with the subject. He suggested that the following gentlemen compose the Committee :—Messrs. E. B. Wood, Oliver, MacDonald, Merrick, Calvin, Gibbons, Fraser, Dennis, Farewell, Haney, Fairbairn, S. C. Wood, Dawson, Grange, Webb, F. M. Williams, Boulter, Guest, MacLeod, Ardagh, Bethune and Clarke (Norfolk.)

The feeling of the House appears to be in favor of some action that shall lead to the suppression of intemperance, and it is a pleasant feature of the discussions that members from both sides of the House are united in the opinion that immediate action should be taken.

RETURNS.

Hon. Mr. PARDEE presented a statement of the emoluments of all employees permanent and temporary, appointed since last year.

Also—Statement of expenses incurred in the Proton Committee enquiry.

Also—Copies of regulations of the Council of Public Instruction and other instructions relating to the admission of pupils to High Schools and Collegiate Institutions.

A lively debate took place on the timber policy of the Government in which several members; on both sides, took place, especially Messrs. Fraser, Scott. Fairbairn, Calvin and Deroche, but we can afford space for only extracts from the speeches.

Mr. FRASER congratulated the Opposition on the skilful manner they attempted to fight under cover, sometimes flattering the Commissioner, and sometimes blaming him, but contended that their great object was to blame. He held that the policy of the Government was calculated to encourage emigration and the settlement of the country, and therefore met the approbation of the people, as those who were alive twenty years from now would see thriving villages and industrious settlements in that territory; and the Commissioner, seeing that settlement was already going on, knew that it would be a wise thing to open up settlement by means of lumbermen. Hon. gentlemen opposite had argued that certain lands should be set aside for settlers, but it had happened that where the government had arbitrarily set aside lands for that purpose, they turned out to be unfit for such. Settlers would invariably gravitate where the best lands were. The settler was not shut out by disposing of the timber limits, but the lumberman should naturally precede the settler. The speaker concluded by saying that he was not afraid that his constituents would call him to account for the vote he would give on the subject; he would give them sound reasons for his course at the proper time; and he would therefore endorse the policy pursued by the Commissioner of Crown Lands.—(Hear, hear.)

Mr. FAIRBAIRN thought the hon. member for North York should be exonerated from any charge of occupying a double position. The fact of his sitting on the Government said of the House signified nothing. Everyone knew that his sympathy was with the Opposition. His denial respecting the speech he had made at Newmarket was correct, as it was not that the speech had not been made by him there, but that the member for South Ontario had not seen it in the Newmarket paper, and that denial was borne out by the date of the paper. He (Mr. Fairbairn) said that the timber Acts and regulations now in force had been in operation for years and had never been challenged: and yet, because the Commissioner of Crown Lands had chosen to exercise the powers given to him by those Acts, he was blamed for not first asking the consent of the House. He did not think that the illustration by the member for North York of a power of attorney was at all a parallel one, and disclaimed the statement made by that hon. gentleman, that the country had attempted to restrain the hon. Commissioner of Crown Lands from selling the limits on Lake Superior. In the county of Peterboro' there was a company which owned several townships of wild lands, and it has adopted exactly the same course as that chosen by the Commissioner of Crown Lands, namely, that of putting it under license for the sake of having it settled. He thought the Commissioner had chosen the right time for selling, because he considered that this was a time of inflation. He thought the policy of future conservatism respecting timber limits was a good one, but he thought it would be unjust if after clothing the Commissioner with power to sell limits, the House should, without first having expressed its wish as a Legislature that they should not be parted with, reprove him for exercising that power. He thought it unmanly and ungenerous for hon. gentlemen to assail the Commissioner by petty insinuations as to his motives in carrying out the sale, after the evidence to the contrary which had been afforded. He then referred to the full denial which had been made by the Commissioner as to his being the paid advocate of the lumber interest. All these charges are pretty fully denied by the action of that gentleman since he came into office. A radical reform had been brought about in the affairs of the Department, and some defaulting firms had been treated with what might be called harshness. In the Peterboro' section there had been collected, in 1871, $64,310, while in 1872 the receipts were $176,777. He would vote against the original motion and the amendment of the member for South Grey.

THE SURPLUS AND THE MUNICIPAL LOAN FUND.

(From the Galt Reformer.)

The ministry have not yet announced their scheme for the division of the surplus and the settlement of the Municipal Loan Fund indebtedness. We are therefore not in a position to make any authoritative announcement on the subject, but from all the information we can gather from circles usually well informed, we have reason to believe that the following will be found to be a pretty correct outline of the general features of the scheme that will be submitted to the House.

Two facts are recognized in the first instance. The Grand Trunk, the Great Western, and the Northern and the other old railways of the province received public aid. This aid came from the general revenue, and of course each municipality contributed its share. Then in addition to that, within the last year or two, new railways running into new settlements have received Government aid, varying from $2000 to $4000 a mile. Say it averaged $3000 a mile. Here then we have the fact that one section of the country has received $3000 a mile for its railways over and above what has been received by the other sections. The first object, therefore, is to equalize the railway aid all over the province. This we understand will be done something in this way. The entire railway system of the province, exclusive of the new railways, divided among the different countries, cities and towns in the provinces, according to an equitable plan, say in proportion to the population in 1853, the date when the Municipal Loan Fund was created. Each County will have its length of railway allotted to it, and will be allowed $3,000 a mile for its share of the railway system of the province. This $3000 per mile will be allowed from 1853 to the present time, at 5 per cent compound interest. When this amount is calculated a balance will be struck in each case. If $3000 per mile at compound interest since 1853 amounts to more than the Municipal Loan Fund indebtedness of the municipality it gets the balance; if it is less it must issue its debentures at once and pay up the bal lance to the government. If the municipality owes nothing to the Municipal Loan Fund it of course gets the whole of the $3,000 per mile with compound interest since 1853. The amount coming to the municipalities, if any after the balance is struck, will be given to the County Council as trustees for the smaller municipalities. In places where the municipalities have granted aid to a railway, the amount will be divided in proportion to each municipality. In places where no railway aid has been given, as in Waterloo, for instance, we presume the amount will be divided according to the population of each municipality in 1853. We would also suppose that one part of the county having received much better railway accommodation than the other that fact would be taken into consideration in making the division. But on this point we speak with no authority whatever. One thing however we are certain, however, and that is that the County Council will be the mere trustees of the money, and will have to divide it according to clearly defined rules laid down by government.

When this is all done it will be supposed that all the municipalities have been placed upon the same footing as far as railway aid is concerned. A considerable number of municipalities will be still owing to the government, and as these will have to pay up at once, the sum of about two millions and a half will flow into the treasury. In addition to this, the government will have on hand of the original surplus of about four and a half millions, and as all the municipalities are now supposed to be on equal footing, this amount will be devided amongst them all according to population.

In both these divisions it will be stipulated that the money must be spent in some work that will be a permanent public good. We presume the Government will have a voice in determining what is a public work.

There is still a class of cases not yet provided for Niagara, Dundas, Brantford Port Hope, Cobourg, Prescottown and the townships of Norwich and Windham, are so hopelessly in debt, than to compel them to pay up, even after the balance above mentioned is struck, would be to ruin them for ever It is not in the public interest to crush out any municipality ; neither is it desirable to keep the debt hanging on any longer. The Government will, therefore, levy an amount that can be reasonably borne, and will cancel the balance. But in the second distribution these municipalities will receive nothing, except what may come to them, if any, over and above the balance of their indebtedness.

These are said to be the main features of the scheme. We shall be better prepared to express an opinion upon it when we are in possession of the details.—Meantime we may say, that it seems to us the best and wisest plan that could be devised.

A CURIOUS CASE.

(From the Mount Forest Enumerator.)

A case was decided at the Division Court here on Wednesday last before Judge Macdonald which presented some strange peculiarities. It seems that some time last summer several stray cattle among which was a heifer, came upon the premises of Mr. James Turner, Minto, and in due time the public were notified of the fact by advertisment in the Examiner. Mr. Andrew Doyle, of Arthur township, having lost a heifer, and seeing the advertisment, went to Mr. Turner's premises and pointed out as his heifer one not advertised. Mr. Turner held positively that the animal referred to was his—Mr. Doyle holding quite as positively contra. The latter left unconvinced and returned a few days after and took it. Mr. Turner subsequently brought action before a bench of magistrates for the recovery of the animal, but the evidence was of such a conflicting nature that, we belive, the case was dismissed. Resort was then had to the division court for relief from the difficulty, and as already noted a decision was arrived at on Wednesday. The evidence at the trial was to say the least extraordinary. It was shown on the part of the plaintiff that the heifer had been purchased from one of the witnesses when a calf, and thence been reared by said plaintiff, and had been in his possession ever since. For the defendant witnesses sworn positively that the heifer belonged to said defendant, and that the fact was clearly demonstrated to their minds by certain signs, marks and peculiarities. Since the days of Solomon a clearer case of ownership by both plaintiff and defendant has scarcely been presented for adjudication. His honor however, for certain specified reasons, gave his decision in favour of the defendant—and accordingly Mr. Doyle, stands confirmed in the possession of the heifer.

MARIPOSA CHEESE FACTORY.

(From the Lindsay Post.)

A meeting of the patrons of this concern was held at the factory on the 8th inst. The attendance was large, and great interest was manifested by all present in the details of the working of the establishment during the last year. The report of the year's operations showed that 37,039 lbs. of cheese were made, which brought about $3,995. It appeared that some of the cows with which a close calculation had been made averaged their owners something like $30 each for five months. This did not include one-seventh of the milk—Saturday nights and Sunday mornings—reserved for butter making. The Company intend if all goes well to manufacture six months next summer, which will make a considerable difference in the quality and trade; and as the prospect is fair for an increase in the number of cows next season the company gave an order for another 500 gallon vat and more cans. The report was received and adopted, officers were elected, and rules adopted for business management next year. It is gratifying to note the prosperity of an establishment which does so much for the locality surrounding; and farmers in Bexley who are desirous of establishing a cheese factory could not, it is evident, do better than study the operations of the Mariposa factory.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY CONTRACT

The following are the leading features of the contract between the Canadian Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company :—The contract, first of all, recites parts of the acts of last session relating to the Pacific Railway, by which the Government was empowered to contract with one of the two Companies then chartered, or with the two Companies combined, or with a third Company, to be constituted by the action of the Government. It then states that Government had failed to induce the two Companies above mentioned to amalgamate, and does not deem it advisable to contract with either one. It therefore creates another Company by charter, to consist of the following persons, viz : Sir H. Allen, Mr. Archibald, of Halifax ; Mr. Mr. J. O. Baubien

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

February 7th, 1873.

The Members of the Council held the first sitting of the Court of Revision on the assessment for Drain made by J. B. Clement, Esq., P. L. S. No appeals. Adjourned till further notice is given.

The Council met afterwards for the appointment of certain Township Officers. Present the Reeve and Councillors Robinson, Brownscombe and Howden.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Matthew McMahon applied to have his license for tavern at Scott's corner renewed for present year.

James Brasly applied for the office of Township Clerk.

The following appointments were made Clerk, Collector and Inspector of Taverns, re-appointed, and Messrs. Chas. Brasly and George Hoosy, Assessors, at a salary of $60.

BY-LAWS.

A By-law confirming the above appointments received its several readings, and finally passed.

A By-law respecting tavern licenses was also passed. And By-laws appointing Pound-keepers, Fence Viewers and Overseers of Highways, were read a first time.

AUDITORS REPORT.

The Auditors report was submitted to the Council and finally audited. In it favorable mention was made of how the accounts were kept, and of the unprecedented fact of the total amount charged in the Collectors Resident Roll having been collected and paid over to the Treasurer. The usual number of copies of Detailed Statement was ordered to be printed for distribution in the Municipality.

ORDERS ON TREASURER.

James Edwards and S. J. Carver, Esq., for services as Auditors the sum of $5. Mr. Thos. Beavis, $1.50 for removing a dead horse from public road. Mrs. Keef, charity $6 for purchase of a barrel of flour, per Councillor Brownscomb. T. B. Clement, Esq., P. L. OUR LITERARY TABLE.

A New Paper.

The Pension Valle Gazette is the title of a new weekly paper published at that enterprising village by Mr. E. D. Hand, late Proprietor of the Bobcaygeon Independent. The first number is before us and is really a handsome sheet, neatly printed and the matter well selected. The Gazette will be Reform in Politics and will, no doubt, do good service in North Victoria. When Mr. Hand started the Independent we doubted the wisdom of his course, but were only too glad to bear testimony to the faithful carrying out of his pledges up till the last day of his connection with that paper, and now, judging from this record we do not hesitate to say that we believe Mr. Hand will make the Gazette a true advocate of Reform, as well as a valuable Local Newspaper, and we trust that the people will give him a liberal support so as to enable him to make the Gazette a complete success to wich end he has our best wishes.

The Annual of Phrenology and Physiognomy.

The New Illustrated Annual of Phrenology and Physognomy for 1873, contains portraits and sketches of more than fifty distinguished subjects; including Seward, Livingstone, Fred. Douglass, Arnold, with Indians, Negros, Malays, Mongolians, Arabs, Caucasians; Views of the Human Brain; Language of the Lips; Character in Expression; Physiognomy; with portraits and sketches of all the Presidents of the U. S., from Washington to Grant. A capital Hand Book of 76 pages, 12mo. Price 25 cents. S. R. WELLS, Publisher, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

Changed Hands.

Mr. Climie has sold the Oshawa Reformer to a Company which will continue its publication in the interest of the Reform Party. Mr. Climie, will in future, devote his whole attention to the Statesman, in Bowmanville.

"BITTER TEARS."

That was a fearful error which Sir John A. Macdonald and his Government committed when they yielded to the treasonable clamors of Nova Scotia for better terms. The consequence of that one false step has been to produce dissatisfaction in the other Provinces of the Confederation, two of which are now agitating for an additional allowance from the Dominion Treasury. New Brunswick thinks she is as much entitled to an additional subsidy as Nova Scotia; and Manitoba, too—notwithstanding all the great advantages the Government has heaped upon that Province—is beginning to agitate the question of an increasing subsidy. No doubt the Province of British Columbia will follow next, and then we may expect to see the Province of Quebec knocking at the door of the Dominion Treasury and demanding an additional subsidy. We did not expect to see the 18,000 inhabitants of Nova Scotia agitating the question of an increased subsidy at so early a period; but it all comes from the one false step made by the Macdonald-Cartier Government.—Hamilton Times.

MASTER VS. WORKMAN.

Hon. Mr. Crooks has introduced a bill, which will likely pass into law, to facilitate agreements between masters and workmen for participation in profits. We subjoin a summary of the bill:—"It shall be lawful, in any trade, calling, business or employment, for an agreement to be entered into between the workman, servant, or other person employed, and the master or employer, by which agreement a defined share in the annual or other net profits or proceeds of the trade or business carried on by such master or employer may be allotted and paid to such workman, servant, or person employed, in lieu of or in addition to his salary, wages, or other remuneration; and such agreement shall not create any relation in the nature of partnership, or any rights or liabilities of copartners, any rule of law to the contrary notwithstanding; and any person in whose favour such agreement is made shall have no right to examine into the contents, or interfere in any way in the management or concern of the trade, calling, or business in which he may be employed under the said agreement or otherwise; and any periodical or other statement or return, by the employer, of the net profits or proceeds of the said trade, calling, business, or employment, on which he declares and appropriates the share of profits payable under the said agreements, shall be final and conclusive between the parties thereto and all persons claiming under them respectively, and shall not be impeachable upon any ground whatever."

During the late civil war some children were talking of their fathers and and brothers who had been captured as prisoners of war. Many tales of forts and camps were told, the speakers evidently priding themselves very much on sufferings of their relatives, when a little fellow who had been silent now spoke up. "That's nuthin," said he, "I've got an uncle in prison, too—and he ain't never been to war nuther.

Peterboro, Feb. 17th, 1873.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—You will confer a favor on the friends of Mr. A. H. Racket, late of this Town, by inserting in your journal the accompanying extract taken from the Kingston Daily News. On receipt of it I intended it to appear in all the papers of our Town, but on application to some of the Astute Fraternity, who, I am sorry to say control some of the journals, it was refused. On enquiring the cause, I found it to be personal feeling.

This on the part of a public journalist I think quite unjustifiable. Mr. Racket certainly deserved better treatment than that accorded to him by a miserable clique. I am glad to know that the citizens generally regret the outrage, and cordially sympathise with Mr. Racket. His musical talent is such as to ensure him a warm reception wherever he may go, and during his stay here he certainly added much to the public entertainments. The accompanying extract will show the estimation in which he is held by those who are now under his instruction, in Kingston.

Yours, &c.,

N.

A WORTHY TRIBUTE OF APPRECIATION.

On Friday evening the members of the Garrison Band, having assembled in their practice room, Tete du Pont Barracks, presented Mr. Rackett with a beautiful silver-mounted ebony baton, manufactured in Montreal,—the ornamentation of maple leaves, &c., on which exhibited skilful and artistic workmanship. The baton bore the following inscription:

Presented to
A. H. RACKETT,
Bandmaster A Battery, D.A.,
By his Band,
Kingston, 31st January, 1873.

That this recognition of Mr. Rackett's industry and ability is well deserved, will, we are certain, be the universal sentiment of all with whom he is acquainted. There is an astonishing improvement in the proficiency of the band since placed under his tutelage, and the assiduous application which he has devoted to the cultivation of the musical talent so employed is appropriately acknowledge by so handsome and well-merited a gift.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

MR. EDITOR,—In reading the account of the late Entrance Examination to the Collegiate Institute, I was pleased to learn that Henry Cullen had won the Fairbairn Scholarship. I was, however, somewhat disappointed when I read "Henry Cullen prepared by Mr. T. Braden." Allow me to state that all the preparation he received from Mr. Braden was obtained in the short period of five weeks—A period much too short to allow of Mr. B. getting credit for the preparation. While we wish the schools of the Town of Peterborough every success, we hope it in turn, will not be unwilling that country schools should divide the honors when deserved, and at the same time reflect that the loss of borrowed feathers often denudes more than if they never had been donned.

I remain yours, &c.,

A TEACHER

HEAR WHAT GOD SAITH.

(Isiah v. 12.)

The viol, harp, the pipe and wine
Their reveling feasts display
Against me ever they incline;
They silence what I say.

I've called upon them from my Throne,
And offered them my grace,
From me they've altogether gone.
They're a rebellious race.

Within the realms of endless bliss,
Rebellious souls can't go,
Their doom shall be the dark abyss.
The Pit of endless woe.

It is the Word of Truth, dear friends,
The breath of God to man,
Why will the sons of Sends
Why will the wicked go?

The pastems and the pride of life
Obtain which the World decries
Shall be the bane of thousands, rife
In sin, heedless of endless joys.

The dancing the party, and the ball,
So common in our day,
Is where our youth from virtue fall,
Hence others led astray.

Amidst the dance were death to call,
Who'd wish to haste away?
What consternation would there fall
Amid the fun and play?

Lord, hear a father's prayer and stop,
These common customs, rife,
For many through them have no hope
Of everlasting life.

IMPROVE NUTRITION.

The rational idea in the treatment of all Chronic Wasting Diseases, resulting in Nervous Prostration and General Debility, is to improve the Digestion and Assimulation of Food, and the formation of Healthy Blood. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya contains the only agents known that act as excitants of nutrition, by imparting tone to the Stomach, Liver and Pancreas, the great tripod that prepares nourishment for building up the organs and tissues of the body. The action of this remarkable preparation is extraordinary in strengthening and vitalizing the constitution, whether impaired by age exhausted by excesses, bad habits, or run down by old complaints that have resisted all ordinary methods of treatment.

Being a delicious cordial to take, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances, it is eminently adapted to prostrate, anæmic women and delicate children.

MIRACULOUS CURE.—We are happy to lay before our readers the following cure, effected by the use of Miss Sawyer's Salve.

Mr. Silas Bryant of Sherman, has been afflicted for years with what the doctors pronounced a scrofulous cancer. He consulted the most skilful physicians in vain, and was finally induced to try Miss Sawyer's Salve and now after using the fourth dollar box he is entirely cured, and enjoys perfect health.—

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicine's may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proporations of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combination. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop, whereas with other preparations nearly all the alchol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

READ THIS!

All persons having notes, and wishing to increase their income, could do so by purchasing the Stock, Goodwill, and connection of the undersigned, who is about to retire from business. TO LADIES!

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya contains the only agents known that act as excitants of nutrition, by imparting tone to the Stomach, Liver and Pancreas, the great tripod that prepares nourishment for building up the organs and tissues of the body. The action of this remarkable preparation is extraordinary in strengthening and vitalizing the constitution, whether impaired by age exhausted by excesses, bad habits, or run down by old complaints that have resisted all ordinary methods of treatment.

Being a delicious cordial to take, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances, it is eminently adapted to prostrate, anæmic women and delicate children.

Select Poetry.

CHANGED.

I roamed the halls of pleasure,
In days of former pride,
When you call'd me, proud, your treasure,
And I stood your promised bride.

You praised my wondrous beauty,
And thought me wondrous fair,
You deemed your only duty
Was to make me all your care.

When fairy lips, the brightest,
And eyes of brilliant hue,
Were deemed in smiles the lightest,
'Twas wanted all on you!

The eye that turns so coldly,
Gleamed for no other then,
And like your woman fondly
I deemed you best of men.

My wealth and beauty vanished
Like spring time's sunny bowers,
Forever from my pathway chased
The laughing happy flowers.

With the sweet tribes faded
The joys of happier days,
And from truth degraded
You sung the self same lays.

At shrines, from which you turned
Once, indifferent, cold, away,
For you no lamp there burned
Nor could they charm your stay.

Oh, woman's heart may fail her,
And woman's strength forsake!
But woman's pride will aid her
And with it comfort take.

Go, 'tis useless to upbraid you,
And past folly not forget!
If wealth's links enchained you
My power were lasting yet.

Peculiar People.

People who at this period of our commercial prosperity, when writing paper costs next to nothing, cross their letters.

People who always know where the wind is.

People who send conscience money to the Secretary of the Treasury.

People who take long walks before breakfast.

People who spend an income on flowers for the button hole.

People who like paying income-tax.

People who go to hot, uncomfortable theatres.

People who buy early and costly asparagus—nine inches of white stalk to one of green head.

People who give large parties in small rooms.

People who lavish their money on the heathen abroad, and leave the heathen at home to take care of themselves.

People who have the ice broken to enable them to take a cold bath in winter.

People without prejudices, weaknesses, antipathies, hobbies, crotchets or favorite theories.

Gems of Thought

Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all virtues.

The bread of life is love, the salt of life is work, the sweetness of life is poverty, the water of life is faith.

There are hardly any persons so forlorn and destitute as not to leave it in their power to do some good. There is much kindness which is not expensive.

Passionate wooing is like summer dust, it lies on the ground a little while, and then a slight wind comes, and away it is gone. Men who love well do not speak flappingly. Their affection borrows some inspiration from religion.

Never be cast down at trifles. If a spider breaks its web twenty times, twenty times will he mend it. Make up your mind to do a thing, and you will do it. Fear not if trouble come upon you, keep your spirits though the day may be a dark one.

Whatever you do, do it willingly. A boy that is whipped at school never learns his lessons well. A man that is compelled to work cares not how badly it is performed. He who pulls off his coat cheerfully, strips up his sleeves in earnest and sings while he works is the man for us.

A smooth sea never made a skilful mariner, neither do uninterrupted prosperity and success qualify for usefulness and happiness. The storms of adversity, like those of the ocean rouse the faculties and excite the invention, prudence, skill and fortitude of the voyager.

Two Curious Needles.

The King of Prussia recently visited a needle manufactory in his kingdom, in order to see what machinery, combined with the human hand, could produce. He was shown a number of superfine needles, thousands of which together did not weigh half an ounce, and marveled how such minute objects could be pierced with an eye. But he was to see in this respect even something still finer and more perfect could be created. The bores—that is, the workman whose business it is to bore the eyes in these needles—asked for a hair from the monarch's head. It was readily given, and with a smile. He placed it at once under the boring machine, turned a hole in it with the greatest care, furnished it with a thread, and then handed the singular needle to the astonished king.

The second curious needle is in the possession of Queen Victoria. It was made at the celebrated needle manufactory at Bedditch, and representes the column of Trajan in minature. This well-known Roman column is adorned with numerous scenes in sculpture, which immortalize Trajan's heroic actions in war. On this diminutive needle, scenes in the life of Queen Victoria are represented in relief, but so finely cut and so small that it requires a magnifying glass to see them. The Victoria needle can, moreover, be opened; It contains a number of needles of smaller size, which are equally adorned with scenes in relief.

Those who buy tombstones of us look with pride and satisfaction on the graves of their friends," is the advertisement of a Western stone cutter.

A poet says: "Oh she was fair, but sorrow came and left his traces there!" What became of the rest of the harness he does not state.

We overheard two negros the other day arguing about the creation of the world, when one said: "De world rested on a turtle's back—de Bible sez so." Is dat so? What does it say dat de turtle rested on?" "Hush your mouf, big nigar, you dis gums broke up de argument."

A deaf man was hunting for game, when a grouse flew up and lit on a tree on the hillside, at the same moment a traveller approached and inquired the distance to the next station. Deaf man (pointing)—He flew right up there. Traveller—How far is it to the next station? Deaf man—He lit right up there. Traveller—You

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Fever Sores, Frosts, Pimples, Erysipelas, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Swollen Breasts, Itch, Scald Head, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons who have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works like a charm, and quickly, too. Barber's Itch, or Tetter, it will not only relieve, but they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the lids gently, once or twice a day. Cures deafness by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Pimples this is superior to anything in use. For Pimples take one tablespoonful of sulphur and Scalds, apply the salve, and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, wash once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disagreeable dandruff and disagreeable pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to let me take your Salve. I think I can get you quite a few, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get about himself. He has tried everything and they have found anything that healed his leg as the Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found the equal. I like it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proud flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome to it.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If you Desire to get rid of Your Diseases, and subjects to keep supplied, send for what you want as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Lockland, Me.

A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.

INVOCATION.

Father, teach me true submission,
To Thy ever righteous will,
Help me with becoming meekness,
All Thy precepts to fulfil.

Guide me in the way of duty,
With a cheerful, earnest heart,
Holy lessons, may each trial
To my yearning soul impart.

Though my wayward, sinful spirit,
Would in paths of folly run,
Help me Lord, on Christ believing,
To repent, "Thy will be done."

Wher[illegible] clouds of sorrow,
[illegible] my heavenward way,
May my soul its sunshine borrow,
From Thy glorious home, on high.

And, when hope is light and buoyant,
[illegible] which quality blest,
Teach, Lord, me to remember
Earth is not my place of rest.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A NEW ARITHMETIC.—Sick gent (walking into a whisky shop)—'Well I believe I will spend my dime for crackers this morning.'

Barkeeper hands him crackers, which he takes.

'I cannot stand them, give me some brandy for the crackers.'

Barkeeper gives him some brandy.

He poured it out, smelt it, shook his head

'Don't think I can go that. Give me some whisky.'

He turns a full glass, drinks it down and starts out.

Barkeeper.—'Hold on there, you have not paid me for that whiskey.'

Sick Gent—'I gave you brandy for the whiskey, sir.'

'Well, you ain't paid me for the brandy.'

'I gave you the crackers for the brandy, sir.'

'Well, you ain't paid me for the crackers.'

'Well, you have the crackers yet.'

Barkeeper said no more.

Two friends walking together on the first of April, one, thinking to have made a good hit, abruptly stopped, saying—'By the by, Tom, I ought to remind you that this is April Fools day.' 'The compliments of the season to you,' quietly replied Tom.

Mahommed said—'When a man dies men inquire what he has left behind him, angles inquire what he has sent before him.

DANCING THEIR RAGS OFF.—Two [illegible] ladies visited Niblo's in New York, during the ballot season. When the short-skirted gossamer clad nymphs made their appearance on the stage, they became restless and figety.

"Oho, Annie!" exclaimed one, satto voce.

"Well, Mary!"

"It ain't nice—I don't like it."

"Hush."

"I don't care, it ain't nice; and I wonder why aunt brought us to such a place."

"Hush, Mary. The folks will laugh at you."

After one or two flings and a pirouette, the blushing Mary said:

"Oh, Annie, let's go—it ain't nice and I don't feel comfortable."

"Do hush, Mary," replied the sister, whose own face was scarlet, though it wore an air of determination; "it's the first time I ever was at a theatre, and I suppose it will be the last time; so I am just going to see it out, if they dance every rag off their backs."

A young lady on board a packet ship, hearing the captain, during a storm, order the mate to pull down the sheets, immediately sprang from her bunk and jumped overboard.

An exchange announces on the death bed of lady that "She lived fifty years with her husband, and died in the confident hope of a better life."

A Western editor has recently requested to send his paper to a distant patron provided he would take his pay in trade. At the end of a year he found that his subscriber was a coffin-maker.

"Say, Jones, what's the matter with your eye?" "Oh, nothing, only my wife said this morning I'd better get up and make the fire; I told her to make it herself—that's all.

A local paper in Illinois says that John Hay's lecture abounded in splendid perorations and classic similies. It didn't state just how many perorations the lecture contained.

A Bridgeport paper noticing the death of a young man, remarks emphatically: "His connection are said to be respectable, and his sister was recently killed in Hartford by a hose carriage."

A HEALTHY WISH.—Irish beggar-woman—"Spare a poor widdy a thrifle, yer honner, an' may the Heavens be yer bed. (Swell give her a copper.) An' may the blessed saints grant ye better circumstances!"

Billings produces long columns of figures, with verbal explanations, to prove that mosquitoes are born of poor but industrious parents, but have in their veins some of the best blood in the country.

FASHION.—A fashion article in the 'Tribune' has a fling at the present very absurb fashion. It says that good sense "utterly condems the style of [illegible] the front hair that is cut [illegible] across the forehead—an original device for [illegible] idiots, afterwards practiced upon Skye terriers with short hair, then followed by fifth-rate ballet-dancers."

A sudden gust of wind took a parasol from the hand of its owner, and a lively Irishman, propping his brick, caught the parachute.

"Faith ma'am," said he, "if you were as strong as you are handsome, it would not have got away from you."

"Which shall I thank you for first, the service or the compliment?" asked the lady smilingly.

"Troth, ma'am," said Pat again touching the place where originally stood the brim of what was once a beaver, "that look of your beautiful countenance did me for both."

An eastern editor participated recently in the blissful operation of house cleaning. He was entrusted with the artistic operation of painting the kitchen chairs. He finished one of them, and sat down on it to paint the others. They had [illegible] under the chair to [illegible] the oil. It colored the chair, but he has a bay window set in his pants, and they are now about as good as new.

A youthful lover sang and played before his young lady's house for two mortal hours, was electrified after a short pause by a "thank you" gracefully pronounced by the "other feller," who appeared at the window.

TAKEN HOME.—'In the absence of both the editors, the publishers have succeeded in securing the services

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reactions, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any thing won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable safeguard against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although called Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As the name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is never injurious to any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaint, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all the world.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd. Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selection.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an unerring guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable values.

Pumps Pumps.
To the Public in Generaly and Farmers in particular.

Henry Owens
Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated SWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalleled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a years trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very cheap rate. He has increased his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and Repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

Select Poetry.

THE SHIP OF DEATH.
BY E. H. HAIN.

Sickly and pale the Northern sun
Shone on the polar seas,
And colder from the frozen shores
Swept down the chilling breeze;
But yet the "Fortune," outward bound,
Bound west of Baffin's Bay,
With many a torch and brave and roll
Kept bravely on her way.

Each day the cold more piercing grew,
And heavier hung the sky,
While keener sharpness filled the air
And frost-mutes fettered by;
And warmer garments now were donned,
The sailors trod with care
The frozen planks that creaked and groaned,
For frost was everywhere.

A ship! a ship! no canvas spread,
Her tall masts stripped and bare,
No smoke floating from shaft,
Upon the morning air.
Onward she came. No sign of life,
But yet she drifted where
The breezes listed, slow or fast—
No hand was guiding there.

The "Fortune," ah! woman, with a dread
That sailors know full well,
Felt a dull fear of phantoms wild
Their true, brave spirits swell.
Signals were made, and trumpet-tones
Demanded loud her name,
No answering signal met their eyes,
No word of greeting came.

The breeze died out, and slowly, slow,
She floated o'er the tide,
And nearer, nearer still she came,
Till as the "Fortune's side
A boat was lowered, and hardy men,
The master at their heap,
Boarded the ship the breezes steered,
The ship where all were dead.

Dead, frozen, stiffened, in his place
Each man could still be seen,
Some hands were clasping key ropes,
The captain's held a pen.
Some crouching figure hovered round
A spot where fire had lain,
But ghastly, pinched, and frozen blue,
Their impress pain—all pain.

And many a year, perhaps, had flown
Since ice-blocked on her way
Her wretched, helpless crew had died,
And still fast bound she lay,
Till the vast mountain-ice had shoved
And loosed the prisoned bark
That drifted—drifted aimlessly,
In day-light and in dark;

Bearing her strange, cold, silent freight
Perchance where ones they rested
All joyous, on their outward cruise,
But now a fearful load.
What marvel if the sturdy hands,
The "Fortune's" entire force,
Fled from the ghastly Ship of Death,
And homeward turned their course.

Choice Literature.

QUITE A MISTAKE.
From Wood's Household Magazine.

In the thriving village of Hollythorn there were (as is common in such places) a church, a post office, a couple of stores and district school, the said being taught by a young lady who had a widowed mother and brothers and sisters to assist supporting.

Far the sake of economy, Miss Eva Stanley "boarded around" among the scholars, and was considered a paragon among the teachers. Her father had been a respectable mechanic, but died after about two years illness, which bitterly impoverished his family. Eva had, however, (she being the oldest,) received a good plain education before the great calamity came upon them, and noble hearted and unselfish, began her work of assisting in the support.

The last week previous to the holiday vacation she had been boarding with a Mrs. Carpenter who was making gigantic preparations for guests she expected from New York.

You never met my brothers, Eva, she said, and then began to give the pretty young teacher a description of them. There's Sam, George, and Johnny, the younger; and such times as they have when they get out here to rest and rusticate, as they call it! But dear me, I don't get much rest or peace, for they are like a lot of boys out of school. Such tricks and pranks no one ever saw. The last time they visited me altogether, John and Sam actually cut a pane of glass from the window and pelted George out of my best room with snow! You see they don't get in there this time, that's certain, for I intend to keep you in that room, and so end the controversy. I am so afraid they will break or ruin something that I am glad you are here. It may keep them in check a little.

I had just as soon occupy any other room, Mrs. Carpenter, and do not wish to incommode your brothers—I have no right to do so.

No you shan't, Eva, peremotrily exclaimed her hostess; and what is the use of your going home vacation week? You can stay here just as well as not, and do up your sewing on my machine. Your mother has mouths enough to feed, I guess, and wont miss yours."

The subject was dropped, and the entire household retired early, for on the morrow the brothers, young, ardent and full of life, were to be there. But without sending any word of there intention, they had concluded to take the evening train, which would land them at Hollythorn about bed-time. George and John did so, and when safely seated in the cars, began to speculate about the absence of Sam.

No reason upon earth why he should not have been along, said George.

No, for he told me this morning he would certainly be on hand, replied John.

I can't make it out, unless he has taken the five o'clock train in mistake.

Not a bit of it, laughed John, who fancied he understood the entire programme. It is more likely he took that train on purpose to get into Hannah's spare bed-room, and make us take up with straw ticks and feathers.

I didn't think of that, but I reckon you are right. We must contrive to get him out somehow.

Bet your life on that.

The brothers put their heads together and laughed merrily over some scheme for outwitting Sam, and accordingly, when the train reached Hollythorn about eleven o'clock, they approached the house of their sister in a very stealthy manner.

Climbing the fence in the rear, they softly opened a window and obtained access to the pantry, where they demolished a mince pie and a quantity of dough-nuts. Then with appetites appeased, they removed their boots and prepared to investigate the best room—stole along the hall which was lighted by the moon, ascended the stairs and reached the door. The faint rays of the moon disclosed a chair piled with clothing, and they could distinctly trace the outlines of a form beneath the bed-clothes, and had not the remotest idea but that Sam was enjoying sweet repose upon Hannah's best bed.

A few whispered words were exchanged, and then, as softly and lightly as if shod with down they drew near.

All ready! whispered George.

Quick as thought, they seized upon the form of the sleeper, bed-clothes and all, bore it swiftly down stairs, out into the snow, and were just about to deposit it in a huge drift, when a shrill scream broke the stillness of the night, and oh! horror—it was that of a woman! And in their consternation they dropped their burden plump into the middle of the drift.

Good heaven! exclaimed George, it isn't Sam, it's a woman, as I am a sinner, and she has fainted. Run and call Hannah.

With admirable presence of mind he lifted the limp form of Eva Stanley and carried her into the house. But her cry had already been heard, and the inmates came rushing into the hall just as he appeared.

George, John, for goodness sake what does this mean, and who have you there? asked Mrs. Carpenter in a breath.

Blessed if I know, began George, thought it was Sam, so we concluded to give him a douse in the snow, for getting into the best bed and trying to euchre us. Quick, I believe she has fainted.

Just like you, scolded Hannah, as she depositing Eva once more upon the bed from which she had been so unceremoniously taken: Beginning your tricks upon each other before you are fairly into the house. Clear out now.

Long before she was done with her tirade her discomforted brothers had betaken themselves down stairs, where they almost went into hysterics over the joke.

A pretty kettle of fish, said George rolling over the floor and letting off peal after peal of laughter.

I should think it was replied John holding his sides. Oh, my. But what the dickens is to be done about it, and who do you appose she is, George?

Some guest of Hannah's, of course and young and pretty too at that, I don't know how it is with you, but I feel particularly small and extremely cheap—would sell myself at a very low price.

Cheap! roared John: Cheap! I would actually give myself away this blessed minute, and throw something in to boot. What are we to do, I can't say; but I shall rig out of this place and get back to the city before morning. I haven't got the courage to face the music so I'll get up and get.

Suiting the action to the word, he began pulling on his boots, and would have put his threat into execution, but for the appearance of Hannah, who at once asserted her authority.

You are not going a single step, said she, but I don't wonder you feel ashamed of yourselves. What on earth possessed you is more than I can tell.

That's right, Han, pitch in, scold away. I'll take any amount just now, for I am as meek as a lamb. But who is it we have played so shabby a trick on? replied George.

Trick? I should think it was. Why it is Eva Stanley, just as nice a young thing as ever lived. She is our schoolteacher, and this is her week to board here, but I knew well enough you boys would be squabbling over that room as usual, so I put her in there, little thinking you would come home in this stealthy manner.

Eva Stanley! Whew! A pretty school teacher, and repeating his sister's words he gave a lugubrious groan.

Has she recovered? questioned John vainly endeavoring to restrain his laughter at the wry faces his brother was making.

Yes, I soon brought her to, but I don't believe the poor girl will ever get over her fright. She said that the first thing she knew she was being lifted up and carried out, and she was so much alarmed that she couldn't utter a sound, but the moment the cold air struck her she realised that she was being abducted or something of the kind, and had just time to utter a scream when she fainted. It is too bad, I declare, boys. I shouldn't wonder if she had taken her death, being dragged out of a warm bed this time of night and dropped into a snow drift in that fashion. No wonder that she cried, poor thing.

Cried, did she? repeated George, with a groan.

I should think she did. I just took her in my arms and let her have her cry out, while I explained to her how she happened to be mistaken for Sam, and so became the victim of your mad pranks.

That was neat of you, Han. I'm awful glad you hugged the poor little thing. Wish you had just given her a brotherly squeeze for me—'pon my honor I do. Oh dear! I am in sackcloth and ashes from this time, henceforward and forever, replied George, with another dismal groan.

And how on earth do you expect us to stay and take the consequences? asked John, beginning to look serious. I am for taking myself off instanter. I had rather face a masked battery than this pretty teacher, after making such fools of ourselves.

I don't care if you had, answered his sister, indignantly. The only way to do is to brave it out, both of you, and apologise for your rudeness. She is not a bit stupid, but pleasant and merry, and not doubt you will have a jolly laugh over the affair.

Bet Sam! How the dence are we to get along with him? You know well enough, Han, we shall never hear the last of it from him; that it will be brought up at all times and in all places.

If you two can keep the secret, I'll find a way to silence Sam, and it is a subject Eva will not care to have discussed, and, fortunately, she will soon be away from home. So go to bed and

She showed them to the room she had intended them to occupy, and soon the house was once more hushed in slumber.

Meanwhile their brother Sam had reached the depot a few minutes too late. He found the train he was to have taken had gone, but upon consulting a time-table, he ascertained that another started two hours later, and so decided to take it. He figured to himself, as he impatiently crowded into an empty seat and was being whirled along at a rapid rate, how snugly his brothers had ensconced themselves in the best room, which by right belonged to him, he being the eldest, and consummated a plan to get even with them

Sometime after midnight he was deposited at Hollythorn, and reaching the sister's house, he seated around until he found a way of entrance into the kitchen, where he deposited his luggage and removed his boots. Then he quietly stole up stairs and opened the door of the best room. Sure enough, thought he, "my fine chaps, you are in clover!" for there were not to be mistaken signs of the room's being occupied. Garments were upon chairs, and the bed was pressed by slumbering forms.

To think of copeing with their united strength by dragging them forth, was not practicable; but there stood the pitcher of water, and he knew that a good dousing with the icy fluid would bring them out quick enough.

If I can't have my old quarters, he chuckled, you shan't that I am determined on. So here goes.

He lifted the pitcher, approached the bed, raised it high, and suddenly dashed the entire contents upon the sleeper.

Such a torrent of screams as he had never before heard rang through the house, and before Sam could collect his scattered senses, door after door was opened, and Hannah, George and John rushed in, clothed in scanty apparel—Hannah with a frightened look in her face and a lamp in her trembling hand, that revealed the entire scene.

There, sitting up in bed, with her hair dripping like a mermaid, her nightdress deluged, her face colorless and her eyes looking terror, was the young school-mistress, and there was Sam, with the empty pitcher in his hand, the very picture of imbecility, staring about about like an idiot at Miss Eva and the havoc he had made.

Hannah, George and John instantly comprehended the situation, and the latter, at the command of their sister, dragged Sam away, while she assisted the drenched and terrified girl to dry clothing, and then took her to her own room and bed, explaining, for the second time, the mishaps of the night.

I'll keep you with me now, my poor child, she said, though with great difficulty keeping back her laughter. Those boys are nicely come up with, at any rate; and if it wasn't for your having been so terribly frightened, and the way my best bed has been used, I wouldn't care. They do nothing when they come home but study up some trick to play upon each other; and, continued she, by way of apology, they are so confined in their office and stores during most of the year, that they let entirely loose when they get out here. But you are safe now.

Hannah kissed her charge, and went down to see about the boys, who, as soon as they were fairly shut up in the regions below, began to thoroughly appreciate the joke; and now that Sam was as deep in the mud as they in the mire, gave no quarter.

I'll be blamed if I know what it all means, said Sam, looking in confusion at his brothers, who were rolling and kicking in convulsions of laughter.

Wait, replied George, until Han comes, and see if you don't find out! And he gave vent to another peal.

Sam had not smiled, and sat looking the very picture of discomfort and perplexity, but answered:

For heaven's sake hold on, boys! I'm willing to admit that I am badly sold—gone dog cheap to the highest bidder; but hold up long enough to tell a fellow what it means."

Means! Of course I will, continued George, still holding his sides. It means that you have stolen like a thief into Miss Eva Stanley's bed-chamber—who is a young lady teacher and 'Boarding around; that this is her week here; and thinking it was your humble servant and Johnny snug in bed, you attempted to drown us out, and made a grand mistake. NEW SEED STORE

New Firm.

Giles & Mason

SEEDSMEN,

Nurserymen & Florists

PETERBORO. ONT.

Have great pleasure in announcing to the public the opening of a new Seed Store, next door to Messrs. Nicholls & Hall's, Simcoe Street, Peterboro, and in so doing would call special attention to the following facts:—

1st. That their stock of seeds has been imported by them direct, from the most extensive and reliable Seed Growers in Europe and in America.

2nd. That in consequence of their not being engaged in the Seed business heretofore, they have no old seeds to sell or mix with new stock.

3rd. That the Seeds they offer are of last year's growth.

4th. That should they at any time have Seeds of a doubtful character they have ample facilities for testing their vitality in a few hours before offering them for sale

5th. That even of the firm has been a successful Market Gardener for the last fifteen years, and may with safety be considered well qualified for selecting Seeds suitable to the wants of the public.

6th. That those who may be likened to favor them with their patronage, will find their prices—if not lower—as low as any reliable House in America.

In consequence of the above facts, they feel confident that a discriminating public will see the advantages of their purchasing Seeds of the above firm in preference to those who sell on commission and return what is unsold. (What becomes of the seed returned?)

The above firm would respectfully inform the public that in connection with the Seed business, they are engaged in raising Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Shrubs, and will be happy to wait on all who may be pleased to visit their Nursery Grounds which are situated immediately adjoining the Town of Peterboro, on the Port Hope Road, where, in addition to the above, there is a large green-house in which are grown a large assortment of Green-house and Bedding Plants, specimens of which can at all times be seen at their Seed Store, by those who may not have the opportunity of visiting the Green-house.

Bedding Plants of Vegetables and flowers of every kind, suitable to the climate, in their season, at lower rates than elsewhere—a supply of which can be obtained at the Seed Store, as well as at the Nursery.

All orders for Seeds, Trees, Shrubs, Flowers, &c., &c., accompanied with a remittance, or satisfactory reference, will be promptly attended to either by Mr. Giles, who will be in attendance at the Store, or by Mr. Giles, who will be found at all times at the Nursery.

CANAD'AN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single care of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is fast superceding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

Editorial Items.

Personal.

Jas. Millar, Esq., Warden, is at present in Toronto, on business connected with the Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Ottawa River Railway. He has had several interviews with Ministers, especially with the Commissioners of Crown Lands and Public Works. Mr. Millar informs us that the Commissioner of Crown Lands promises $10,000 towards the Buckhorn and other roads in the County. He also says that the Railway Company has agreed not to include this County in the proposed Bill. The Government also promise to deal liberally with the County in the matter of the surplus.

Bad Roads.

The severe drifts during Saturday, Sunday and Monday has almost stopped travel, and the result was that few people came into Town on Monday and Tuesday

The Brantford Courier calls Mr. E. B. Wood "The Champion Acrobat."

Lease of Property.

The Sheridan property has been leased by Col. Haultain, we understand, at $280 a year.

Conservatives in Favor of the Ballot.

Mr. Read believes in the ballot. He voted for Mr. Clark's Bill. Conservatives are wont to tell us that the ballot is un-British, notwithstanding that it is the law of the land in England.

Market Tolls.

Tenders for the Market Tolls are advertised for until Friday. Mr. Green is likely to be Clerk again. He is very obliging and makes a very good Market Clerk.

Ottawa Cabinet.

Sir Francis Hincks has resigned his position in the Ottawa Cabinet, and Mr. Tilley has entered on the duties of Finance Minister in his stead. This leaves a vacancy. It was rumored that Mr. T. N. Gibbs would be taken into the Cabinet; this will soon be known. Sir John has to put on his best appearance to meet the House on the seventh of March. In losing Sir Francis, Sir John finds himself in a strait. It is confidently predicted that his days are numbered.

Auction s's.

The extensive auction sale Mr. Wm. Finlay's stock and farm implements takes place to-day. Also, that of Mrs. Joseph Latimer's, stock &c., on the 7th Concession of South Monaghan, on Wednesday next, fifth of March.

Wesleyan Methodists.

The Missionary Services in this district are now being held. The Revd's Griffin and Willoughby of Toronto, and Barker of Keene preached in the church in town on Sabbath, and a public meeting was held on Monday evening, which those gentlemen addressed in favor of missionary work. From the addresses the missionary work of the Wesleyan body appears to be confined at present to the Dominion of Canada, and is largely confined to what is termed domestic missionary work, i. e. supplying out districts, or new and poor settlements. The Conference, however, intend extending the missionary efforts of the church to Japan.

The Grand Junction Railway.

The Belleville Intelligencer remarks that several members of the County Council at the late session here affirm the legality of the By-law granting $75,000 to the Grand Junction Railway, by their voting to have it included in giving the indebtedness of the County in a proposed By-law to give $15,000 to the Lindsay and Fenelon Falls Railway. The Resolution was one of a class that ought never to be written or submitted to any Council, and we are inclined to believe was introduced to test the protestations of Reeves who were declaring themselves ready to grant aid to a road running into the Northern Townships. It was well known before hand that the resolution would not carry, and is no declaration of the opinion of the Council on the By-law referred to. The legality of the By-law must be tested in a Court of Law.

Racing Intelligence.

Our readers will excuse any neglect of our not giving horse racing news. We are not inclined to put ourselves about to get such news, not fully endorsing the practice. We believe in a good horse, and one that can "step out" when required, and would like to possess such animal, but the atmosphere of the race course is not the purest in this Canada of ours. Any one attending them will hear more curses than blessings; and if thirst should overtake him, it would be difficult to get a drink of pure water, unless perchance the race should be on ice, and he should cut a hole in it. Horse racing and horse trading are not desirable professions.

The Late Cancer Cure.

When several months ago we took notice of a surgical operation performed by Dr. Kincaid, of Peterborough, in the removal of a large cancerous tumor from the breast of a lady, residing in the Township of Dummer, there were some who doubted the ultimate success of the operation, and some even of the medical profession who declared unhesitatingly, that the cancer would certainly re-appear.—However, nearly a year has elapsed since then, and we are now pleased to be able to say that the lady has fully regained her former health and vigour, and that not a vestige of the cancer now remains. A critical operation in surgery successfully executed is at once recognized as evidence of skill on the part of the surgeon, but it is only its ultimate success on the patient that can secure for him the confidence of the public,—a confidence which Dr. Kincaid, by his unfaltering energy and professional skill, has justly earned and richly enjoys.—Norwood Register.

Obituary.

We regret to learn that Wm. P. Whitla, son of Mr. William Whitla, of Otonabee, died at Fort Garry, in the latter end of January last. Mr. Whitla was one of the Peterborough volunteers who went with the first expedition to Red River, and during his term of service in the 1st Ontario Rifles he did duty as one of the Military Police of that Battalion, and by his courteous behaviour and soldierlike bearing he won the esteem of his officers and comrades, many of whom have returned to Ontario, and they, with his many friends in Peterboro', will learn with regret of his early decease.

FIRE IN ARRESHEIM.

On Friday last the dwelling of Mr. Robert Smillie, Brown Street, was consumed by fire, with all the furniture, bedding, clothing &c., except what the family were wearing at the time. Mrs. Smillie, had just gone to see a child of a relative or neighbour, and had not been out of the house fifteen minutes when the flames were noticed by some one passing. The door was burst in from the West and their being a strong wind at the time caused intensity to the flames and prevented any one entering: the house was of wood and old, and building and all in it was consumed in a few minutes. Nothing was saved but a chair or two. The fire men were over in good time, for the distance, but could do nothing as the nearest water is at Mr. Roger's grist mill, a distance of several hundred yards.

Mr. Smillie's loss is not less than $800, for clothing and furniture, and no insurance. Mr. and Mrs. Dorner had also their bedding and clothing there at the time, all of which was consumed. Neither of those are in a position to bear the loss as both are dependent on their own industries to replace the articles. The building was very old and belonged to Mr. McNeil, but the loss is not a great one. The fire was caused by the chimney taking fire, and the burning soot falling communicated with a board in front of an old fashioned fire place and thence, with straw under the carpet. No insurance.

THE CROWN TIMBER DUES OF THE DOMINION.

The Government in 1872, received from the the timber and saw-log dues, the sum of ..... $177,773.

In 1871 from the same sources 69,660.

Leaving a balance in favor of 1872 of ..... $109,163.

Suppose the present agent Mr. McWilliams did receive in 1872, $1,980.20

Mr. Bick	951.60
Mr. Chambers	802.08
D. Ross	764.33
Mr. Way	1,560.60

And other different sums amounting in all to $16,982.45 according to the figures of the Review, still there is a saving to the Province of $92,468.55, or enough to pay the whole cost of inspection and agencies for six years. It must pay therefore to have good men to do the work right. Through the management of the past agents $26,000 were almost lost to the country, but this has had to be refunded. We need not mention names as the public here are all aware of the facts. The interest of this sum yearly is sufficient to pay Mr. McWilliams' salary for all time: at 6 per cent per annum it amounts to $1560. It is now easy to understand why certain lumbermen could afford to spend and work for the late Government. As the yearly interest on the capital that the Government was allowing them to retain would enable them to spend $1560 a year during their lifetime and at their death leave $26,000 to their friends. And supposing this $26,000 be taken from the increase for 1872 there will remain $66,468.45, a sum equal to the entire receipts for 1871. So much for the management of the Crown Lands in this district alone, under a Reform Government compared with the management under the late Conservative Government.

The Review should not only give the comparative expense of 1871 and 1872, but also the receipts, that however would not suit his purposes, which is merely to blind the eyes of the electors.

Our respected confrere would also have us believe that it was awfully wrong to pay John Carrol expenses incurred while preparing to carry out the instructions of the late Government, and which he was prevented doing by the Sandfield Government, because he would not promise to support them in the then approaching election.

It was all right to dismiss John Carrol because he would not support them. If so then it would be all right to dismiss a Crown Land agent not 100 miles from Bobcaygeon for openly and covertly canvassing against the present Government, as was almost plainly asserted in a correspondence in the Bobcaygeon Independent not long since. We advocate no such course however, nor do we think that it will redound much to the credit of the Review to keep harping on the payment of Mr. Carrol or of any other man, for work done or loss sustained in the employment of any Government.

Every government should employ the best men for their work and they should pay them a fair remuneration, as it is poor policy to pay small salaries and then lose $26,000 perhaps every year, through mismanagement or connivance. Every honest unbiassed mind will say, pay public servants fair salaries, and thus remove all cause for indifference as to the honest discharge of their duties.

All the twisting of our neighbour cannot remove the figures from the returns of 1871 and 1872, and these accounts show an increase of $92,468.45 in this district alone, in favor of the year 1872 under the management of a Reform Government.

THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY CO.

About three years ago this Company brought into this Province from the United States $400,000 worth of oats on which they did not pay any duty, which would have amounted to $100,000. The Dominion Government made a demand for the duty but never enforced it, hoping thereby to secure the influence of the Company in the late election.

The interest on $100,000 is $6,000 a year; now if the Company is bound to pay the duty the Ottawa Government should compel payment. Can it be payment that Sir John A. & Co. are paying the Great Western $6,000 a year for their political influence. Leaving them in quiet possession of $100,000 which they should pay is equivalent to buying the support of the Company at the rate of $6,000 a year.

The defenders of the Ottawa Government are trying to relieve their master of the odium by asserting that certain restrictions of the Minister of Customs makes railway carriages free.

The regulations are:

"Carriages of travelers laden with merchandize and not to include circus troops, nor hawkers.

"Locomotives and railway passenger, baggage and freight cars, running upon any line of road crossing the frontier, so long as Canadian locomotives and cars are admitted free under similar circumstances in the United States.

"Menageries, horses, cattle, carriage and harnesses of."

These regulations evidently refer to the cars, after being placed on the road, being allowed to go in and out of the Province free provided the United States admit them free, and until it became necessary to twist the regulations, to get out of a difficulty, they would not have been construed in any other way.

The influence of great Railway Companies is all important, however, in election times.

THE COBOURG, PETERBORO & MARMORA R. R. & MINING COMPANY.

This Company is asking for the right to extend their railway, and for other purposes, and a Bill has been introduced in the Ontario Legislature to that end.

The following provisions are the principal ones:

1—To extend their road from the river Trent to Rice Lake or to any point on their line of road.

2—To extend their road from some point on their road in Smith to Buckhorn—And that the several provisions of the various Acts relating to the road, apply, as far as possible, to the extensions.

3—They also ask that the time be extended for completing the road to Mud Lake, Bobcaygeon, and Georgian Bay, respectively, to five, four, and six years from the passing of the Act of last Session of Parliament.

The 6th clause provides that they may lay a third rail or otherwise reduce the gauge to 4ft. 8½in.

7—That any Municipality or Municipalities may assist in the construction or any part thereof by loaning or guaranteeing or giving money by way of bonus or other means, or by loaning Municipal bonds, and that Municipalities may, aid the road provided, that the rate in no case for all purposes shall exceed three cents in the actual value of the property.

The 8th clause provides that in case the majority of the persons rated on the last assessment roll as freeholders, or like persons so rated, who may be qualified voters under the Municipal Act, in any portion of the municipality, other than a county municipality, do petition the council of such municipality to pass a by-law as hereinafter set out, such petition to define the limits and bounds of the portion of the municipality within which the property of the petitioners is situated; or in case of a county municipality the majority of the reeves and deputy reeves of those townships that may be asked to grant a bonus, do petition the council of such county municipality to pass a by-law, as hereinafter set out, and in such petition to define the townships for which they are respectively reeves and deputy reeves and expressing the desire of the petitioners to aid in the construction of the said railway, by granting a bonus to said company for this purpose, and stating the amount they so desire to grant and to be assessed therefor, the council of such municipality shall pass a by-law, provided the said by-law shall be approved of by the majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in the portion of the municipality petitioning as aforesaid in the manner required by the Municipal Act.

The 9th clause enables them to provide for receiving grants, bonuses, loans or gifts on securities.

The 10th clause provides for exempting the property of the Company in any municipality from taxation.

Clauses 11, 12, and 13 we give in full.

11. The said company are hereby authorized to take without the consent of the proprietor thereof, but subject to the provisions of the Railway Act, so much land at Chemong Lake, not exceeding twenty-five acres, as they may require for the purpose of piling lumber and cordwood thereon, and for station-ground sidings, and outlooks, and for the erection thereon of wharves, warehouses and other works and buildings for the use of their railway.

12. The said company are hereby authorized to take without the consent of the proprietors thereof, but subject to the provisions of the Railway Act, any land that may be required by them for the purpose of making the Rice Lake embankment, and for filling, grading and hollowing any portion of their railway, and for ingress and egress to and from any such lands.

13. The said company are hereby authorized to purchase, hold, build and employ all such steam and other vessels, scows, boats and barges as they may require to use in connection with the railway upon any of the waters which flow by the River Trent to Lake Ontario.

These three clauses are necessary to their attaining property, but subject to the provisions of the Railway Act, which provides for settlement for damages by arbitration

SALARIES.

The Board of School Trustees are at present, considering the application of several of the teachers for increase of salaries, and we doubt not, but that they feel the delicate position they are in. The cost of living has very materially advanced within a few years, and the action of the Board of Public Instruction for Ontario has limited the supply of teachers. These combined are sure to compel Trustees to pay higher salaries than they have been accustomed to pay. This is not at all unreasonable, if in other professions men can make more money we may expect that teachers will soon find that out, and enter the professions were they may hope to be better remunerated for labor. It is not the duties of Trustees to take the labour of Teachers for less than it is worth any more than for contractors or employers in any other business to take the labour of any other class of people for less than they could get the services of the Local Council of Peterborough at the present time.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Tuesday. Present the Mayor and Messrs. Smith, Moore, Denne, Paterson, Hopkins, Lundy, Helm, Sperry, Burritt, Toole, English and Dixon.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

An application was read from Mr. F W. Hall, to be appointed Inspector of Weights and Measures, and an account from Dr. Kincaid for $3.

Applications for Tavern, Shop and Saloon Licenses were referred to the License Inspector, to act in conjunction with the License Committee.

A report from the License Committee was read, submitted and received, but was changed a little in Council.

A report from the Chairman of the Fire Committee was received and adopted, recommending that the salary of James English be $300 a year, and that the account of Johnston & Dixon for $3 50 for pails at the fire at Mr. Eastland's dwelling, be paid.

A memorial to the Legislature against the Bill of the Cobourg, Peterboro, M. R. and Mining Company, now before the Legislature, and praying that no legislation be permitted that affects the terms of the By-law granting aid to the said Railway.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Moore, the Clerk was directed to have the memorial engrossed and forwarded to the Lieutenant Governor and Legislature.

The License By-law was read a 1st and 2nd time, and

On motion of Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Helm, the By-law was read a third time and passed.

The By-law divides taverns into two classes, and fixes the Licenses as follows:

Certificate for Tavern License with 1st class accommodation	$180
Certificate for Tavern License with 2nd class accommodation	125
Saloon, without accommodation	125
Shop,	125
License for Billiard Table,	40
License each additional Table,	20
Pigeon or Bagatelle Table	30
Bowling Alley,	30

The fine for not taking out a License (where it is kept), be not less than $10, or more than $50 and costs.

Moved by Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Hopkins, that the clerk be instructed to advertise asking tenders for the Market Tolls for the year, and that the following members of the Council Messrs Toole, Hopkins, English, Helm, and the mover be a committee to open the tenders and award the same.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Dr. Burritt, it was agreed to allow Owen Dowling, $2.50 a week as compensation for his work in future, as long as employed on streets &c.

Moved by Dr. Burritt seconded by Mr. Moore,—That a reward be offered by the Council to any person who will obtain the conviction of any party who infringes upon, contravenes or neglects to comply with the requirements of the License By-Law in any respect, such reward to be equal and additional to the portion of the fines which the informer would be entitled to by Law.—Carried

On motion of Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Patterson, That Mr. F. W. Hall, be appointed Inspector of weights and measures for the Town. Mr. Patterson, gave notice of o motion to the following effect.

That the Clerk notify all parties wanting shade trees to put in their application to the town clerk before the first of April, said trees to be planted under the inspection of the Street Inspector, or the the members of the Street and Bridge committee. And that the clerk ask for tenders for furnishing of said trees, on or as soon after the 1st of April as possible.

The Council then adjourned till the 10th of March.

TAVERN LICENSES.

The New Council have taken the subject of License in hand, and are already causing some stir among the Tavern, Shop and Saloon keepers. Taverns are divided into first and second classes. The first class have to pay $100 a year; the second class $125; Saloons and Shops $125 each, and for a Billiard Table or Bagatelle Board $40, and for each additional board $20.

While it is supposed, it will limit the evils of intemperance by reducing the number in lower hands or by making trades in the trade pay more for their privileges.

Those who have given the subject considerable attention hope for no better results than from stringent measures which we can in support of [illegible]. We hesitate not to predict that there will be as many low places as ever. If taxes are able to pay at the rate of $400 a year of rent, and $180 for Saloon License for a month, the business must pay, and all the difference will be that a sharper trade will be driven to make [illegible] for the License for [illegible].

We cannot refrain to make light of the efforts of the License Committee to do the evil but we fear that as long as most will [illegible] can be obtained, a few dollars for licenses will not prevent [illegible] to dispose of it.—There are certainly houses in Town which keep first-class accommodation. These the Committee wisely seem inclined to favor. But all will admit that the payment of twenty five or thirty dollars a year is a mere trifle, if no more be exacted. It has not been uncommon to call a places tavern where the only similarity was the bar. Two or three beds were obtained for the visit of the Inspector, and as soon as he was gone, the beds were removed, perhaps to the Upholsterer, from whom they were borrowed. Should this be continued, the only possible gain to the town will be the few extra dollars, charged for the Licenses.

BILLIARD ROOMS

Are just as great an evil as saloons, wherever these are, the committee will find a bar, and also young men to a late hour. Tax license for a billiard table should be just as much as the license for a saloon, or for a shop, or nearly so. The Council too have offered a reward to any one who will convict any person or persons of a breach of the By-law. This however, will be found of no avail to prevent grog shops, as few become informers except to retaliate for some offence or grevance. The truth is that public opinion is not yet in full accord with those who would limit the evils of intemperance, and to the lasting shame of professing christians they are the opponents of reform in this matter. One hundred professing christians frequent the low groggeries of every town in Canada for one "Heathen Chinee" or other pagan. And while the church and trade support each other, the license Committee will find obstacles in the way of reform. Some will accuse us of opposition to the present movement, and also perhaps a too great willingness to accuse professors of lukemarmness in their religious duties. To neither of these do we plead guilty. But we would ask all who doubt our version of these things to keep a diary for a year and then give us the benefit of their notes.

MASONIC LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

For the information of our readers connected with the Craft we publish the following circular:—

GRAND LODGE OF CANADA, A. F. AND A.M.
} Office of the D. D. G. M.,
Ontario District.

Port Hope, 18th Februay, 1873.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I am instructed by Right Worshipful Brother J. B. Teaves, District Deputy Grand Master of Ontario District to inform you that he will hold a General Lodge of Instruction, in the Masonic Hall, Port Hope, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 19th, 20th, and 21st, commencing each day at 10 o'clock.

Many able and skilful brethren have consented to attend, and assist in exemplifying the work, among whom R. W. Bro Dr. Kincaid, P. D. D. G. M., of Peterborough and R. W. Bro. J. Wright, P. D. D. G. M., of Port Hope, and it is the intention of the D. D. G. M. to give every facility to the Officers and members of Lodges in the District, to acquire the correct work, as authorized by the Grand Lodge.

It must be admitted that it is very desirable that uniformity of work should exist, and therefore it is expected that every Lodge will be represented by its W. M., S. and J. Wardens, and as many of its other officers and members as can make it convenient to attend. Actual work will, if possible, be taken up and proceeded with each evening.

Constitutional questions and other matters relative to the proper working of a Lodge will be answered by competent authorities.

Special arrangements have been made with the proprietors of the "St. Lawrence Hall," and "Queen's Hotel," (both first-class houses, where comfortable apartments can be obtained,) for the accommodation of the brethren, at the reduced price of $1.25 per day.

Application has been made to the authorities of the Grand Trunk and Midland Railways, for the issue of tickets, at reduced fares, to brethren attending the Lodge of instruction, and if the request is complied with, I will forward you at an early date, Certificates to be used on the Railways.

Master of Lodges are paticularly requested to call an Emergency Meeting of their respective Lodges at an early day, in order to lay this matter before the members. Trusting to have a fair attendance of your officers and members present,

I have the honor to be,
Dear Sir and brother,
Yours Fraternally,
E PEPLOW, Jr.,
D. Secretary, Ontario District.

THE NEW LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF QUEBEC.

The Hon Rene Edouard Caron, who has succeeded Sir Narcisse Fortunat Belleau as Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, was born with the century, and is therefore in his 73rd year. He is a son of Mr. Augustin Caron, a worthy farmer *Ste.

AN ACT TO CONSOLIDATE THE HIGH SCHOOL LAWS OF ONTARIO.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate the several Acts relating to high schools in Ontario; Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

1. This Act shall take effect from the passing thereof, and shall be known and cited as the "Consolidated High School Act of 1873."

2. All high school divisions and districts, together with all elections and appointments to office, all agreements, contracts, assessments, and rate-bills, heretofore duly made in relation to high schools, and existing when this Act comes into force, shall continue subject to the provisions of this Act. 22 V., c. 83, s. 35 & 37: 24 V., c. 33, s. 40.

3. There shall be one or more high schools in every county and union of counties in Ontario, to be distinguished by prefixing to each the name of the city, town or village within the limits of which it may be situate, but the place of holding any high school may be changed by the council of the county, within which it is established, by a resolution passed for that purpose, and approved by the Governor in Council. 23 V., c. 49, s. 1, 2: 29 V., c. 23, s. 7: 34 V., c. 33, s. 35.

4. Each city and each town, separated for municipal purposes from the county in which it is situated, shall for all high school purposes, be a county; and its municipal council shall be invested with all the high school powers now possessed by county councils, but when, and so long as, the only high school of the county is situated within a city, or within a town withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the county, the council of such county shall appoint one half of the trustees of such high school. 29 V., c. 23, s. 1: 34 V., c. 33, ss. 5 and 36.

5. Every county council shall, from time to time, determine the limits of a high school district for each high school, existing in the county and within its jurisdiction. 34 V., c. 33, s. 40.

6. No additional high school shall be established in any county unless the high school fund shall be sufficient to allow of an apportionment at the rate of not less than four hundred dollars per annum to be made to such additional school, without diminishing the fund which may have been available for high schools during the then next preceding year, and within this restriction it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to authorise the establishment of additional high schools upon the conditions prescribed by this Act 29 V., c. 23, s. 8: 34 V., c. 33 ss. 35 and 37.

7. Any county council may form the whole or part of one or more townships, towns and villages, within its jurisdiction, into a new or additional high school district for the county, and the high school board of such district, on the establishment of a high school within such district, as provided by the next preceding section, shall possess all the powers within the said district, for the support and management of their high school, and in respect of their county council, as are possessed under this Act by high school boards in respect to the support and management of the schools under their care. 22 V., c. 83, s. 17: 34 V., c. 33, s. 40.

8. It shall be the duty of the municipal council of each county and city, and of the council of each town separated, for municipal purposes, from the county in which it is situated, to cause to be levied, by local assessment in each year, a sum at least equal, clear of all charges, to one half of the amount paid by the Government to the high school or schools in such county, city, or town separated from the jurisdiction of the county. 29 V., c. 23, s. 6: 34 V., c. 33, s. 36.

9 It shall be the duty of the municipal council of each city, and of each town separated from the jurisdiction of the council of the county in which it is situated, to provide by local assessment, upon the application of the board of any high school situated in such city or town, such other additional sum (over and above that provided for by the next preceding section) which may be required by such board for the maintenance, school accommodation and necessary expenses of said high school. 22 V., c. 83, s. 25: 34 V., c. 33, s. 36

10. The council of any municipality, or the councils of the respective municipalities out of which the whole or any part of a high school district is formed by a county council, under the authority of the fifth and sixth sections of this Act, shall, upon the application of the board of the high school situated within such district, raise the proportion of such other additional sum (over and above that provided by the county council, under the eighth section of this Act) which may be required by such board, to be paid by such board, to be paid by such municipality, or part of the municipality from the whole or part of the municipality, as the case may be, for the maintenance, school accommodation, and other necessary expenses of said high school. 22 V., c. 65, s. 25: 34 V., c. 33, s. 36, No. 1.

11. The council of every county, township, city, town and incorporated village may pass by-laws for the following purposes:—

For making provision, by local assessment in addition to that required to be made in the eighth, ninth and tenth sections of this Act, for procuring sites for high schools, for renting building, repairing, furnishing, warming and keeping in order high school houses and their appendages, grounds and enclosures. 22 V., c 83, s 16, and s 25, No. 6.

12. The council of every county, city and town separated from the county for municipal purposes, may pass by-laws for the following purposes:—

(1) For obtaining in such part of the county, or of any city or town separated from the county, as the wants of the people may most require, the real property requisite for erecting high school houses thereon, and for other high school purposes, and for preserving, improving and repairing said high school houses and for disposing of such property when no longer required.

(2) For making provision additional to that required to be made by the eighth section of this Act, in aid of such high schools, as may be deemed expedient.

(3) For making a permanent provision for defraying the expenses of the attendance at the University of Toronto, and at the Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School there, of such of the pupils of the high schools of the country as are unable to incur the expense but are desirous of, and in the opinion of the respective masters of such high schools possess competent attainments for competing for any scholarship, exhibition, or other similar prize, offered by such university or college

(4) For making similar provisions for the attendance at any high school, for like purposes, of pupils of the public schools of the municipality.

(5) For endowing such fellowships, scholarships, or exhibitions, and other similar prizes, in the University of Toronto, and in Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School there, for competition among the pupil of the higher schools of the county, as the council shall deem expedient for the encouragement of learning amongst the youths thereof.

13. All moneys raised in any municipality or high school district, by local assessment, subscription, fees, or otherwise, under the authority of this Act, shall be paid over to the high school treasurer, in such municipality or district: Provided that all local assessments and subscriptions for the support of high schools, shall be payable on or before the fourteenth day of December in each year.

14. The treasurer of every high school board shall submit his accounts to the municipal auditors to be audited by them in the same manner as the municipal treasurer's accounts are audited, and it shall be the duty of the municipal auditors to audit such accounts.

15. The council of every city and town, separated from the county for municipal purposes, shall, from time to time, appoint in the manner provided by this Act, a board of trustees for the high school within its jurisdiction consisting of six fit and proper persons.

16. Each county council shall, from time to time, in the manner provided by this Act, select and appoint as trustees of each high school situated in a town, not separated from the county for municipal purposes, or in an incorporated village, three fit and proper persons as trustees of such high school, and the corporation of such town or incorporated village municipality, within the limits of which such high school is or may be situated, shall also, from time to time as aforesaid, appoint three fit and proper persons as trustees of such high school, one of whom, in the order of their appointment, in each case, shall annually retire from office on the thirty-first day of January in each year; Provided that the county council may, from time to time, appoint and determine the continuance and succession in office, in the manner hereinafter provided, of six duly qualified persons as members of the high school board of any high school, established in any village, with the sanction of the Governor in Council, after the fifteenth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one.

17. The members of the each high school board in office at the time this Act comes into force, shall continue in office as such trustees, as herein provided, (unless a vacancy occurs, for which provision is hereinafter made:) and on the thirty-first day of January then next, and annually, on the thirty-first day of January in each year, two of the members of such board for the time being shall retire from said board in rotation, according to seniority in office.

18. Any occasional vacancy in a high school board arising from death, resignation, removal from the municipality, or otherwise, of a high school trustee, shall be filled up by the county, city, town or village council, as the case may be, provided that the person appointed to fill such occasional vacancy shall hold office only for the unexpired part of the term for which the person whose place shall have become vacant was appointed to serve.

19. The council of every city and town separated from the county for municipal purposes at the first meeting to be held after the first day of January in each year, shall appoint two trustees to fill the vacancies caused by the annual retirement of trustees as provided by this Act.

20. The council of every county, the council of every town not separated from the county for municipal purposes, and the council of every incorporated village, within the limits mentioned in the latter part of the sixteenth section of this Act, as the case may be, at their first meetings to be held after the first day of January in each year, shall each appoint one trustee to fill the vacancies caused by the annual retirement of two trustees of the high school, within their jurisdiction, as provided by this Act.

21. Any retiring trustee of a high school may, with his own consent, be re-appointed to office by a municipal council; and all trustees for the time being shall hold office until their successors are appointed, as herein provided.

22 The trustees of each high school shall be a corporation, by the name of "The High School Board," prefixing to the term "High," the name of the city, town, or village, within which such high school is situated, and shall have and possess all the powers usually enjoyed by corporations, so far as the same are necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act; and they shall meet at or near the place where each school under their charge is held, on the first Wednesday in February in each year.

23. It shall be the duty of the trustees of such high school board, three of whom shall form a quorum for the transaction of business:

(1.) To appoint annually, or oftener, from amongst themselves, a chairman, secretary and treasurer; and, subject to the provisions contained in the next preceding section, they shall fix the times and places of the board meetings, the mode of calling and conducting such meetings, and of keeping a full and correct account of the proceedings of such meetings.

(2.) To take charge of the high school for which they have been appointed trustees, and the buildings and lands appertaining to it.

(3.) To do whatsoever they may deem expedient with regard to erecting, repairing, warming, furnishing, and keeping in order the buildings of such school and its appendages, lands and enclosures belonging thereto.

(4.) To apply (as the case may be) to the municipal council of the city, of the town separated from the county for municipal purposes or to the council of the municipality, or councils of the respective municipalities out of which the whole, or part of a high school district is formed, for such sum or sums (additional to those provided for by the eighth section of this Act), which said board may require for the maintenance, school accommodation, and other necessary expenses of the high school, within their jurisdiction, as provided by this Act.

24. The council of every county, the council of every town not separated from the county for municipal purposes, and the council of every incorporated village, within the limits mentioned in the latter part of the sixteenth section of this Act, as the case may be, at their first meetings to be held after the first day of January in each year, shall each appoint one trustee to fill the vacancies caused by the annual retirement of two trustees of the high school, within their jurisdiction, as provided by this Act.

25. Any lands surrendered, granted devised or otherwise conveyed to the Crown for any such purpose as aforesaid, may be sold by order of the Governor in Council, and the proceeds applied to the purchase of other lands to be vested in the Crown for the purpose of the same school or institution, or in the case of there being no school bearing the precise designation intended as aforesaid by the person who granted or devised the lands to the trustees, from or through whom the lands so sold came to the Crown, then for the purposes of the high school, or other public educational institution established for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality generally which in the opinion of the Governor in Council comes nearest in its purposes, and designs to that intended by such person as aforesaid,

32 If such proceeds be applied to the purchase of lands for high school purposes, the title to such lands may be vested in the board of trustees for any high school, by their corporate name, and if there be any surplus of such proceeds after such purchase, or if it be found that no lands are required as a site for, or for other purposes of such school or institution, then such surplus or proceeds (as the case may be) may be invested or applied for the purposes of such school or institution in such manner as the Governor in Council deems most for the advantage thereof.

33. No purchaser of land from the Crown under this Act shall in any way be bound to see to the application of the purchase money

34. Nothing in this Act shall impair the rights of any private party in or upon any lands, in so far as such rights would have existed and could be exercised without this Act

35. The Crown may grant to the trustees of any high school or of any other public educational institution established for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality generally any lands which may have been or may, after the passing of this Act, be surrendered, granted, devised or otherwise conveyed to the Crown aforesaid.

36. In case any persons residing in Ontario interested in any school established in any city, town, village, or township therein, whether as parents of children frequenting such schools, or as contributors to the same, or both, have occasion or are desirous to take a conveyance of real property for the use of such schools, such persons may elect among themselve, and appoint any number of trustees, not exceeding seven nor less than five, to whom, and to whose successors, to be appointed in the manner specified in the deed of conveyance, the real property requisite for such school may be conveyed.

37. And such trustees, and their successors in perpetual succession, by the name expressed in such deed, may take, hold and possess such real property, and commence and maintain any action at law or in equity for the protection thereof, and of their right thereto, but there shall not be held in trust as aforesaid more than ten acres of land at any one time for any one school, and this section shall not extend to public schools.

38 The trustees shall, within twelve months after the execution of any such deed, cause the same to be registered in the office of the registrar of the county in which the land lies.

39. The Ontario High School Grant shall be exclusively applied in aid of high schools conducted according to law, and shall be apportioned to each high school upon the basis, as compared with other high schools, of the length of time each such high school is kept open, of the daily average attendance of pupils at such high school, and of their proficiency in the various branches of study named in the programme of studies and general regulations prescribed according to law for high schools, such attendance shall be certified by the head master and trustees, and verified by an inspector of high schools.

40. The sums of money apportioned out of the High School Grant shall be distributed amongst the several high schools within the restrictions imposed by this Act, and under such rules and regulations as may from time to time be made by the Council of Public Instruction for Ontario, and approved by the Governor in Council.

41. The sums of money apportioned to each high school shall be payable half-yearly to the treasurer of the county entitled to receive it, in such manner as may be determined by the Governor.

42. All moneys apportioned to a high school by the chief superintendent, together with a sum, at least equal to one half of the amount thus apportioned to such school, raised, under the authority of the eighth section of this Act, by local municipal assessment, shall be expended in the payment of the salaries of masters and teachers, and for no other purposes.

43. No high school shall be entitled to receive any part of the high school fund which is not conducted according to this Act and to the programme, rules and regulations provided by law, nor unless a sum shall be provided from local sources, exclusive of fees, at least equal to half of the sum apportioned to such schools, and expended in the payment of teachers' salaries,

44. The president of the University College and the president or other head of each of the colleges in Ontario, affiliated to the University of Toronto, shall, for the purposes of this Act be members of the Council of Public Instruction.

45. It shall be the duty of the Council of Public Instruction:

1 To prepare and prescribe, from time to time, a list of text-books, programmes of studies and general rules and regulations for the organization and government of high schools.

2 To make, from time to time, rules and regulations for the distribution, within the restrictions imposed by this Act, of the High School Fund, among the several high schools entitled to receive it. The list of text-books, programme of studies and general regulations for the organization and government of high schools, and the rules and regulations for the distribution of the high school grant shall be subject to the approval of the Governor in Council.

3 To designate, from time to time, for the approval of the Governor in Council, the number and locality of such meteorological stations as they may think desirable to establish in connection with the high schools of the Province, to authorise such forms of reports and meteorological journal to be used by the observers at such stations as they may judge necessary.

4 To exempt at its discretion, any high school [the trustees of which shall not have sufficient funds to provide the necessary qualified teachers] from the obligation to teach the German and French languages.

5 To appoint inspectors of high schools, prescribe their duties and fix their remuneration.

6 To provide regulations and a programme of examination for the admission of pupils to the high schools.

46. The county, city or town inspector of schools, the chairman of the high school board and the head master of the high school, shall constitute a board of examiners for the admission of pupils to the high school according to the regulations and programme of examination provided according to law.

47. The inspectors of high schools appointed under the authority of this Act, shall see that the regulations and programme of examination, provided by the Council of Public Instruction, are duly observed in the admission of pupils to the high schools

48. Pupils from any part of a county in which a village high school, or a high school in a town not separated from the county, is or may be established, shall be admitted to such school, on passing the required examination, on the same terms [as to payment of fees or otherwise] as are pupils to the high school within such town or village.

49. It shall be the duty of the Chief Superintendent of Education:—

1. To apportion the high school fund among the several high schools, as provided by the thirty-ninth and fortieth sections of this Act.

2 To notify each county council, through the clerk of the council, of the apportionment of high school moneys to each county, and to certify the same for payment to the provincial treasurer.

3 To see that the high school fund apportioned by him is in all cases applied to the purposes hereinbefore prescribed, and that each high school is conducted according to the general rules and regulations authorized by this Act.

4. To prepare suitable forms and give such instructions as he may judge necessary and proper for making all reports and conducting all proceedings under this Act.

5 To cause the aforesaid forms, instructions, reports, copies of this Act, and of the general rules and regulations established and approved of as aforesaid, to be printed in a convenient form and transmitted to the parties required to execute the provisions of this Act.

6 To make annually to the Governor, on or before the first day of July, a report of the actual state of the high schools throughout Ontario, showing the amount of moneys expended in connection with each, and from what sources derived, with such suggestions for their improvement as he deems useful and expedient, he shall also present in such report the journals or abstracts of them which the meteorological station observer is required by this Act to keep.

7 To procure the meteorological instruments, register books and forms mentioned in the fifty-first section of this Act, at the request and expense of the municipality of any county or city in which a meteorological station is, or may be established.

50. The master of every high school at which a meteorological station is, or may be established, as provided by this Act, shall make the requisite observations for keeping, and shall keep a meteorological journal containing such observations, and kept according to such forms as may from time to time be directed by the Council of Public Instruction, and all such journals or abstracts of them shall be sent monthly by such master to the Chief Superintendent of Education.

1 Every authorized high school meteorological station shall be provided, at the expense of the county, with the following instruments.

One barometer; one thermometer for the temperature of the air; one Daniel's hygrometer, or other instrument for showing the dew-point; one rain-gauge and measure; one wind-vane; books for registering observations, and forms and abstracts thereof.

52. Each of the high school meteorological stations at which the daily observations are made, as required by law, shall be entitled to an apportionment, additional to that made to the high school, out of the high school fund, at a rate not exceeding fifteen dollars per month for each consecutive month during which such duty is performed and satisfactory returns or monthly abstracts thereof, according to the form and regulations provided by the Department of Public Instruction, by the head-master observer, who shall certify that the observations required have been made with due care and regularity.

53. After the passing of this Act no person shall be deemed to be legally qualified to be appointed head-master of a high School unless he be a graduate of some university within the British dominions; but any person legally qualified and appointed to be head-master in any high school during the year ending on the eighteenth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall be deemed qualified notwithstanding this section.

54. And whereas it is desirable to encourage the establishment of separate classical schools, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to confer upon any high school in which not less than four masters are fully employed in teaching the subjects of the prescribed curriculum, and in which the daily average of male pupils studying the Latin or Greek language shall not be less than sixty, the name Collegiate Institute; and towards the support of such collegiate institute it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to authorize the payment of an additional sum, at the rate of and not exceeding seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum out of moneys granted for this purpose Provided that if in any year the average of pupils above described shall fall below sixty, or the number of masters be less than four, the additional grant shall cease for that year: and if the said average shall continue to be less than sixty, or the number of masters less than four, for two successive years, the institution shall forfeit the name and privileges of a collegiate institute, until restored by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under the conditions provided by this section.

55. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to prescribe a course of elementary military instruction for high school pupils, and to appropriate out of any money granted for the purpose a sum not exceeding fifty dollars per annum to any school whose headmaster of which shall have passed a prescribed examination in the subjects of the military course, and in which school a class of not less than five pupils has been taught for a period of at least six months; such classes and instruction to be subject to such inspection and oversight as the Governor in Council may direct.

56. The summer vacation in the high schools throughout the Province shall be from the first day of July until the fifteenth day of August inclusive.

57. Any person who wilfully interrupts or disturbs any high school established and conducted under the authority of this Act, by rude or indecent behaviour, or by making a noise either within the place where such school is kept or held, or so near thereto as to disturb the order or exercises of such school, shall, for each offence, on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace, on the oath of one credible witness, forfeit and pay for public school purposes to the school section, city, town or village, within which the offence was committed, such sum not exceeding twenty dollars, together with the costs of the conviction, as the said justice may think fit; or the offender may be indicted and punished for any of the offences hereinbefore mentioned as a misdemeanor.

58. From and after the passing of this Act, the several Acts passed in the twenty-second year of Her Majesty's reign, chaptered sixty-three, in the twenty-ninth year of Her Majesty's reign, chaptered twenty-three, and in the thirty-fourth year of Her Majesty's reign, chaptered thirty-three, in so far as they relate to high schools, shall be and are hereby repealed.

59. The repeal of the said Acts and parts of Acts shall not revive any Act or provision of law repealed by them; nor shall the said repeal prevent the effect of any saving clause in the said Acts and parts of Acts, or the application of any of the said Acts or of any Act or provision of laws formerly in force,—to any transaction, matter or thing anterior to the said repeal, to which they would otherwise apply.

60. The repeal of the said Acts or parts of Acts shall not disturb, invalidate, or prejudicially affect any penalty or liability incurred before the time of such repeal, or any proceedings had for enforcing the same, nor any action, suit, judgment, execution, process, order, rule, or any proceeding whatever had respecting the same; nor any office appointment, salary, allowance, security, duty, or any matter or thing appertaining thereto at the time of such repeal; but every such penalty, liability, action, suit, judgment, execution, process, order, rule, office appointment, salary, allowance, security, duty, and every other such matter or thing respectively may and shall, both at law and equity, remain and continue as if no such repeal had taken place.

61. The high school law consolidated in this Act shall also be held to operate as a new law, but shall be construed and have effect as a consolidation, and as declaratory of the law as contained in the said Acts and parts of Acts so repealed, and for which the said Consolidated High School Act of 1872 is substituted.

62. But if upon any point the provisions of the said Consolidated Act are not in effect the same as those of the repealed Acts and parts of Acts for which they are substituted, then as respects all transactions, matters and things subsequent to the time when the said Consolidated Act take effect, the provisions contained in it shall prevail, but as respects all transactions, matters and things anterior to the said time, the provisions of the said repealed Acts and parts of Acts shall prevail.

63. Any reference in any former Act remaining in force, or in any instrument or document, to any Act or enactment so repealed, shall, after this Consolidated Act takes effect, be held as regards any subsequent transaction, matter or thing, to be a reference to the enactments in this Consolidated Act having the same effect as such repealed Act or enactment.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS.—The Nothers Advocate, Brucebridge, says:

—A sad accident occured to Mr. Wm. Hanna's child in this village on Friday last. During the temporary absence of the mother the clothing of the little girl caught fire from the stove, and Mrs Hanna hearing a scream rushed into the housed to find her clothing in flames. The child was severly burned and is making but slow progress towards recovery.

The Globe of the 14th, says:—A telegram was received last evening by the Hon. A. McKellar, informing him that Mr. J. T. Wagner, a native of Alsace, but lately resident at Windsor, Ont., and who has been engaged as Emigration Agent for Alsace and Lorraine by the Ontario Government, has been arrested by order of the Prussian Government, and sent home to Canada.

There was some disposition, it seems to make a post-mortem examination immediately after the death of Lord Lytton, the distinguished novelist, but on looking over his birthday papers there was found a note in which he expressed a wish that whenever his death occurred, his body was not to be touched by the surgeons, and that it should remain on the bed where he might lie for three days; and this wish was complied with. There was a further proviso that at the expiration of three days he should be examined by medical men, who were to ascertain that he was really dead.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL
Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the immartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportionsas of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every drop; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcbol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

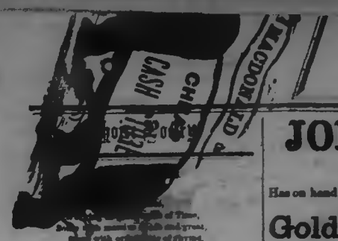
EAT



Nothing endures but Mind;
Each thing is mortal that we see;
And what seems durable, these
Strengthens and supports the rest.

For the greatest that we raise,
Time is but a material to build;
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.

Truly shape and fashion these,
Leave no yawning gaps between,
Think not, because no man sees,
Such things will remain unseen.

In the olden days of Art,
Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part,
For the gods see everywhere.

Let us do our work as well,
Both the unseen and the seen,
Make the house, where gods may dwell,
Beautiful, entire and clean.

Else our lives are incomplete,
Standing in the walls of Time,
Broken stairways, where the feet
Stumble as they seek to climb.

Build to-day, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base,
And ascending and secure
Shall to-morrow find its place.

Thus alone can we attain
To those terraces, where the eye
Sees the world as one vast plain,
And one boundless reach of sky.

—Longfellow's Poems.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Why are conundrums like monkeys?—Because they are troublesome.

Why is a beggar like a lawyer?—Because he is a solicitor.

Why is a defeated man like wool?—Because he is worsted.

When is wheat like a blunt knife?—When it is sent to be ground.

What shoemaker is that who makes shoes without leather?—The farrier.

What is that we often see made but never see after it is made?—A noise.

Why are crows the most sensible of birds?—Because they never complain without caws.

What is an old lady in the middle of a river like?—Like to be drowned.

What is the greatest curiosity in the world?—A woman's curiosity.

Who were the first astrologers?—The stars. Because they first studded the heavens.

Why is a coachman like the clouds?—Because he holds the reins (rains).

When is a bonnet not a bonnet?—When it becomes a pretty woman.

There are some men so exquisitely selfish that they go through life not only without ever being loved, but without even wishing to be.

THE MAJOR A MINOR.—Lord Armadale, one of the Scotch judges, had a son, who, at the age of eleven or twelve, rose to the rank of major. One morning his lady mother hearing a noise in the nursery rang to know the cause of it. "It's only," said the servant, "the major greetin' for his porridge!"

One-eyed Wiston, was,(and probably is now)a negro preacher in virginia, and his ideas of theology and human nature were often very original, as the following anecdote may prove. A gentleman thus accosted the old preacher one Sunday: "Winston, I understand you believe every woman has seven devils. "Now how can you prove it?"—"Well, sah, bid you ebber read in the bible how de seben debbles were cast out'er Mary Magdalene?" "Oh, yes; I've read that." "Did you ebber hear of 'em bein' cast out of any other woman, sah?" "No I never did." "Well dan, all oders got 'em yet."

Sheridan once told a story of the exquisite good breeding of a banker's clerk of whom the withad borrowed some money, and to whom he actually repaid it. "Dident he look astonished!" asked a discourteous friend. "No said Sheridan, "he was just going to look astonished, when he remembered his manners and swept away the money as unconcernedly as if he had not given up any idea of seeing it agair."

NO DANGER.—Cooke, the actor, delighting the Scotch with his inimitable performance and the night being very hot, and the tragedian having acted his best towards the close of the evening felt not a little fatigued. The manager perceived this, and between the scenes he took the actor into his dressing-room and unlocking a cupboard selected a small thistle glass, and filling it with whisky said,"Horo, Maister Cook, I dinna think 'twill hurt ye" "No," said George, glancing at the size of the glas "no, my friend, not if it were vitriol.'

A GOOD ONE.—At a political meeting, the speaker and audience were very much disturbed by a man who constantly called for Mr. Henry! Whenever a new speaker came on, this man bawled out Mr. Henry, Henry, Henry I call for Mr. Henry."

After several interruptions of this kind at each speach, a young man ascended the platform and was soon airing his eloquence in a magniloquent style, striking out powerfully in his gestures, when the old cry was heard for Mr. Henry.

Putting his hand to his mouth like a speaking trumpet, this man was bawling out at the top of his voice, "Mr. Henery, Henry, Henry! I call for Mr. Henry to make a speech."

The chairman now rose, and remarked that it would oblige the audience, if the gentleman would refrain from any further calling for Mr. Hehry, as that gentleman was now speaking.

"Is that Mr. Henry!" said the disturber of the meeting. "Thunder! that can't be Mr. Henry! Why, that's the little cuss that told me to holler!"

A jolly young fellow, named Corcoran, when he arrived in this country, some years since, propounded a puzzle to a gruff old clerk in the New York City Hall, which he believed to have shortened the official's days. Corcoran went up to the office for his first papers. The deputy was a serious old chap, who, whithout ever looking up, proceeded to put the formal interogatories:

"What's your name?" he demanned.

"John Corcoran."

"Your age?"

"Twenty-one."

"What nativity?"

"Well—that's what bothers me—I'll tell you, and may be you can make it out. My father was Irish, my mother English, and I was born on board of a Dutch Brig, and under a French flag, in Flemish waters. Now, how is that?"

The old clerk looked up agast, shoved his spectacles on his brow, and slowly made answer: "Young man, your nativity and that of your Saviour are the only ones which ever puzzled me."

Select Poetry.

THE MAPLE LEAF FOR EVER.

In days of yore, from Britain's shore,
Wolfe the dauntless hero came,
And planted firm Old England's flag,
On Canada's fair domain.
Here may it wave our boast, or pride,
And joined in love together,
The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose entwine,
The Maple Leaf forever!

Chorus—The Maple Leaf, our emblem dear,
The Maple Leaf forever!
The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose entwine,
The Maple Leaf forever.

At Queenston Heights and Lundy's Lane,
Our brave fathers, side by side,
For freedom, homes and loved ones dear,
Firmly stood, and nobly died;
And those dear rights which they maintained,
We swear to yield them never.
Our watchword evermore shall be
The Maple Leaf forever.

Chorus—The Maple Leaf, our emblem dear,
The Maple Leaf forever;
Our watchword evermore shall be
The Maple Leaf forever.

Our vast Dominion now extends
From Cape Race to Nootka Sound,
May peace forever be our lot,
And plenty in store abound;
And may those ties of love be ours,
Which discord cannot sever,
And flourish green o'er Freedom's home,
The Maple Leaf forever.

Chorus—The Maple Leaf, our emblem dear,
The Maple Leaf forever;
And flourish green o'er Freedom's home,
The Maple Leaf forever.

On Merry England's far famed land
May kind Heaven sweetly smile,
God bless Old Scotland evermore,
And Ireland's Emerald Isle.
Then swell the song, both land and long,
Till rocks and forests quiver,
God save the Queen, and Heaven bless
The Maple Leaf forever.

Chorus—The Maple Leaf, our emblem dear,
The Maple Leaf forever;
God save our Queen, and Heaven bless
The Maple Leaf forever.

OLD AGE.

Upon what does longevity depend? We may safely answer by saying that a good digestion is the main thing. The perfect action of those organs by which the frame is nourished is evidently the first essential. A good digestion and an easy conscience—or no conscience at all. An indifference to the cares of life, an insensibility to the sorrows and sufferings of others, the avoidance of all that can cause mental anguish, will be found to palliate the ravages of time.

A good instance of this was Ludovick Carnaro, a noble Venetian, who at the age of 36 found himself with one foot in the grave from his irregular and intemperate life. He resolved to reform, and from thenceforth he steadily abode by a diet of twelve ounces of solid food and fourteen of liquid daily, while keeping a constant guard against heat and cold, fatigue and grief—and every kind of annoyance. He succeeded in getting his emotions so under control that at last, to use his own confession, "neither the death of grandchildren nor of other relations or friends could make any impression on him but for a moment or two, and then it is over." He had no public cares and few private ones; with an ample patrimony. He died at about 100. He cared for no one, and had an unfailing self-conceit. Whether the world would be any better, or its business conducted more energetically, if every one would adopt Carnaro's selfishness is a question that some might answer in the negative.

From the facts noted above, however we see that longevity is possible in despite of all rules of diet, and without regard to sex, occupation or climate, so that we feel constrained to fall back on the opinion of Sir John Sinclair, that it all depends "on a certain bodily and mental predisposition to longevity"—which is perhaps rather an unsatisfactory statement.

To sum it all up, then, our advice would be—live temperately, in accordance with common sense rules of hygiene—avoid all excess, physical and mental—get married as soon as convenient, if you are not in that state already, and then, if you were born with a "predisposition to longevity," the probabilities are you will live to a good old age—if no accident occurs.

One lesson all experience teaches, and that is the close relation between intensity and extensity of life. By intensity mean the rate of living—by extensity, its duration. The faster we live, the sooner we die. The harder we work, the sooner comes the end. All overwork, whether mental or physical—valuable labor, or reckless dissipation—is a draft on the future which will have to be paid with heavy interest. And this is the age of overwork—of fast living. Instead of trying to ease the strain on nerve and muscle, we are most of us doing our best to crowd on more steam. Theoretically, we may acknowledge the risk we run, but it make no difference in our practice. Life is short we say—let us work while we can.—From the New Dominion Monthly.

Cheap Stump Puller.

How to construct a cheap stump puller, and what can be done with it, is thus told by a correspondent of the Ohio Farmer:

Have a chain made of the best round charcoal irons at least one inch and a fourth in diameter and eight feet long with a ring in each end two inches and a half in diameter, one side of these rings must be formed like a link. Attach to one ring a band of iron two and a half inches broad, one inch thick, and one foot in diameter, with a small offset for the ring to lodge in. This band should be bevelled on the inside edge, to make it clip on the pole readily, and prevent cutting it. Cut a nice straight spanking hickory, white oak or locust lever-like foot in diameter at the butt, and eighty-five feet long. Take off the bark and lamps smoothly, put on the band let it come within two feet of the large end, at which point put two small pins of iron, to prevent it going any further. Within four inches of the small end, put on a common ox yoke clevis, with a ring in it to pull by. Hitch on two yoke of oxen. Drive on the right of the stump until the band comes the stump a few inches. Pass the chain round the stump, on the left side and draw it tight, with no twist in the chain. A little above the lever drive in a common wedge. Then go round in a circle, until the stump is twisted out.

This machine will take out half dead stumps, in a field of long standing, without cutting the brace roots first, and digging a little. After everything is ready, with the team and two hands I can take up a 100 or more stumps per day as it is no draft at all on the cattle, except the labour of pulling the lever from stump to stump.

A young lady on board a packet-ship hearing the captain, during a storm, order the mate pull down the sheets, immediately sprang from her bunk and jumped overboard.

My Initiation.

HOW A CONSTABLE WAS CONVERTED INTO A GOOD TEMPLAR—A GOOD STORY.

A western man having been "made" a Good Templar in one of the Ontario towns, gives the following amusing account of what he passed through:

Met a friend on the street; asked me to join the Good Templars, have a firstrate time, get acquainted with lots of pretty girls and go home with them; asked me if he should take my name. "Don't care if you do." Got a letter saying I had been elected; thought I'd join, thought I'd go into Bob's and look in glass, saw sugar in glass; went to Jim's, looked in glass to fix necktie; started to find hall, asked a fellow if he knew where it was, said he didn't saw some girls going up stairs, thought that must be the place; went up two pairs of stairs, knocked at the door, man inside put his ear to a hole, asked him what he wanted, said he wanted the password, told him I didn't want to pass any words with him, said I had come to join, he let me in a little room and told me to sit down. Bye-and-bye a fellow came out and asked if there was any one to be initiated and went in; then two fellows with collars on came out, and asked me if I'd be obedient to the rules of order, and take the pledge against the use (as a beverage) of all that would intoxicate, and a number of other questions; the other asked me for stamps, planked down the cash and departed. Soon No. 1 returned, told me they were all ready and to follow him. He knocked at the door, fellow inside wasn't going to let us in but changed his mind and opened the door; girls and boys all jumped up and commenced singing, soon done and sat down; walked me before an officer with a young lady on each side of him; next took me around and halted me before a young lady on the other side of the room, don't know what she said, was looking at her all the time. Marched me around again, heard the girls whispering and talking, "wonder if he is married—he is pretty good-looking—perfectly horrid—splendid! I'm just going for him," etc.; halted before another officer who came down and shook hands with me, I said how do you do, how are all the folks? He kept on talking and told me sign the constitution. Did so, and was marched up before the first officer, who gave me a lot of signs—don't know what they were, was looking at the girls on each side of him. Soon all the boys and girls jumped up and joined hands; one of the girls gave me a glass of water, it wasn't very bad, but pretty thin; the other girl put her arm around my neck and put a white collar on me—thought she was going to kiss me, but she didn't. Then they put me in the circle, joined hands with the girl who said I was "splendid," then they had intermission, all came up and shook hands with me—called me brother; didn't know I had so many brothers and sisters before. In the latter part of the evening, asked the girl who said she was "going for me," if I could see her home, she said I could if her husband was willing—didn't wait too see, but took my hat and left whistling:

> Her shall the pledge be ever forgot,
> That so much bliss creates;
> We'll touch not, taste not, handle not,
> Whate'er intoxicates.

Style in the Old Times.

In 1762, Governor Hancock received his guests in a red velvet cap, within which was one fine linen, turned up over the edge of velvet one or two inches. He wore a blue damask gown lined with silk, white satin small-clothes, white silk stockings, and red morocco slippers.

The judges of the supreme Court of Massachusetts, as late as 1773, wore robes of scarlet, lined with black velvet, and in summer, black silk gowns. Gentlemen wore coats of every variety of color, generally the cape and collar of velvet, of a different color from the coat.

In 1780, General Washington arrived in New York from Mount Vernon. He was dressed in a full suit of Virginia homespun. On his visit to New England, he wore the old Continental uniform, except on the Sabbath, when he appeared in black.

John Adams, when Vice-President, wore a sword, walked about the streets with his hat under his arm.

At levees in Philadelphia, President Washington was clad in black velvet, his hair powdered and gathered behind in a silk bag, yellow gloves, knee and shoe buckles. He held in his hand a cocked hat, ornamented with a cockade, fringed about an inch deep with black feathers. A long sword in a white scabbard, with a polished steel hilt, hung at his hip.

THE BELLMAN.—The bellman of Kirriemuir read a written advertisement in the midst of the multitude, on a fair day, as follows: "Notish, all persons driving their cattle through the lands of logie, to or from market, will be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of law." And immediately added, by way of sedative to the natives, "Ye needna mind a' this, lads, it's only a haver o' the greive's."

A man who was a weaver and a Radical, and consequently a Dissenter, in Fife, took his child to the meeting-house for baptism. Upon being asked by the minister what he intended the name of the child to be, he said, "Sir Francis Burdett." The minister replied, "Oo William, that'll never dae. I can admit your bairn into the vessible kirk, but if ye want the warld's honors for't I dout ye'll has to gang to the king himsel'."

NO RELATION.—John Davis, farmer in Walton, parish of Cardross, was remarkable for his ready turn of wit. One day when returning home from Dumbarton with a pig which he had purchased there, he met Major Alexander, then residing at Auchinfree, who accosted him thus: "Weel, John, is this a cousin you have got with you to day?"

To which John replied, "Deed no, sir, he's nay freend ava, but only an an acquaintance, like yoursel'."

THE PRESBYTERY ANNIHILATED.—At a meeting of heritors and presbytery, respecting the repairs of a manse, some of the heritors took offence at the arbitrary proceedings of the presbytery and left the meeting. A Brother encountering two of the dissatisfied on the street, one of them said, "You of the presbytery have made complete fools of the heritors." "That, sir, was impossible; you Maker had the start of us there."

NO TO LISTEN TO.—An inhabitant of Eaststeven, going home one night with too much liquor, stumbled into the churchyard, where he soon fell asleep. Wakening to a glimmering consciousness after a few hours, he felt his way across the graves; but taking every hollow interval for an open receptacle for the dead, he was heard by some neighbours saying to himself, "Oh an' a'! Eh! this ane up an' awa, too! Was there ever the like o' that! I trow the deid folk o' Eaststeven's no to listen to!"

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many cases of aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never pausing a heat effect, but always relieving pain, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Excoriations, Piles, Sunpicks, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Felons, Pimples, Blotches, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Toothache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Sudden Colds, Inflamed Hand, Teething, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Sore Throats, Croup, Crushed Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Ulceration if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured painful Boils. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted with them have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas in its various forms, also the skin, or face inflamation, add quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain the Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tetter. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Bunions Around and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to effect a cure. Sore or Weak Eyes apply to on the side nearly, once or twice a day. Cures Scalded by holding in the eyes on a piece of cotton. For Burns this is superior to any thing known. For Pimples this cure like a charm. For Sores and Scratches apply as for Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of MISS SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of hair, prevents it turning gray, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as an indispensable cosmetic for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and leaves the hand, head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1867.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you succeeded in the sale your Salve. I think I can do well with it, and it will be quite a remunerative job to my family, as it is certainly a good strong ointment it. My son tried your salve on his horse's breast, and, surprising that creature's big leg as thick as that of young, and we have both found it to be safe, and cure more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a yearly book, and it is also like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a sore knee on for the last twenty years, and would be a cripple to-day, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, prevents blood and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I long pleased to see it for a good many others that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it invaluable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For all the purposes of the Throat and Lungs.

Perhaps no other medicine is so universally trusted by everybody in a community, as your own Cherry Pectoral. Having long enjoyed a world-wide reputation for the cure of all Pulmonary complaints, its field of usefulness is constantly extending, as the people become more and more acquainted with its virtues. Indeed, we believe it the best medicine of the kind that can be obtained. Its composition, being entirely vegetable, it may be taken with perfect safety by any one, young or old, sick or well, according to the directions found with it. Those who have tried it, know that it cures many of their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does cure it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We know thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Inactiveness, Lowness and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the desired effect by operating freely.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and untold tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its prescence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly developes one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the constant use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum or Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Kidney, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine Affections of the menstrular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are relieved by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matter in the blood, yield quickly to it, as do many Kidney Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Nervous and Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the nameless symptoms of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION

and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well-known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when reserved to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding of the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

Beware of Counterfeits.

Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the "Lion" as a trade mark of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

One bottle a bath. Six bottle for five Dollars.

PREPARED BY
SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass.,
And sold by Druggists and Dealers generally.

THE REASONS WHY
LAZARUS, MORRIS & Co's
CELEBRATED
Perfected Spectacles,
AND EYE GLASSES,
have met with such extraordinary success and are so much in demand:
1st. Because they are found to possess all the qualities claimed for them.
2nd Because they will reclaim sights abused by the common glasses, and will often be found to restore failing sight to its natural state.
3rd. Because no glimmering or dizziness is experienced in their use, and being fitted on optical and scientific rules, they are guaranteed against injury to the Eye Sight from improper selections.
4th. Because the system of fitting is an easy guide to the true requirement of each purchaser—our agents are furnished with this system—solely our own.
5th. Because the never tire the eyes and last many years without the necessity of change.
6th. Because being the best they are the cheapest.
Innumerable testimonials might be here given but the use of these Spectacles and Eye-Glasses will best prove their inestimable value.

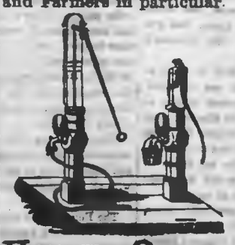
Pumps Pumps.
To the Public in Generally and Farmers in particular.



Henry Owens
Begs leave to bring to your notice once more his truly celebrated SWING and FORCE PUMPS, which have already received five Provincial First Prizes, and have hitherto met with unparalleled success. There can be no reasonable doubt now after a years trial of the superiority of this pump over all others. H. O. has purchased the sole right under four patents, for the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, and will keep a large stock on hand if possible, which he will sell at very cheap rate. He has increased his facilities for making all kinds of pumps, having lately added to his machinery a new and first-class pump boring machine. Every thing in the pump line can be furnished on the shortest notice, and Repairs carefully and promptly attended to. Parties ordering Pumps please state depth of well and all other necessary particulars.

English Grammar.

The Cosmic Grammar says;
Remember, though box
In the plural makes boxes,
The plural of ox
Should be oxen not "oxes."

To which an exchange adds:
And remember, though fleece
In the plural is fleece,
That the plural of geese
Isn't "geese" nor "geeses."

We may also be permitted to add:
And remember though house
In the plural is houses,
The plural of mouse
Should be mice and not "mouses."

All of which goes to prove
That grammar a farce is,
For where is the plural
Of rum pig molasses?

Husband, we may say,
Of rum don't us trouble,
Take one glass too much,
And your sure to see double.

A pair of red lips—
Just to vary the simile—
Says the plural of kiss
Is—"Do it again."

SCIENCE AND SPIRITS.

From Fragments of Science.

BY PROFESSOR TYNDALL.

Their refusal to "investigate "spiritual phenomena" is often urged as a reproach to scientific men. I here propose to give a sketch of an attempt to apply to the "phenomena" these methods of inquiry which are found available in dealing with natural truth.

Some time ago, when the spirits were particularly active in this country, a celebrated philosopher was invited, or rather entreated, by one of his friends to meet and question them. He had, however, already made their acquaintance, and did not wish to renew it. I had not been so privileged, and he therefore kindly arranged a transfer of the invitation to me. The spirits themselves named the time of our meeting, and I was conducted to the place at the day and hour appointed.

Absolute unbelief in the facts was by no means my condition of mind. On the contrary, I thought it probable that some physical principal, not evident to the spiritualists themselves, might underlie their manifestations. Extraordinary effects are produced by the accumulation of small impulses.

Galileo set a heavy pendulum in motion by the well-timed puffs of his breath.

Ellicot set one clock going by the ticks of another, even when the two clocks were separated by a wall.

Preconceived notions can, moreover, vitiate, to an extraordinary degree, the testimony of even veracious persons. Hence my desire to witness these extraordinary phenomena, the existence of which seemed placed beyond a doubt by the known veracity of those who had witnessed and described them.

The meeting took place at a private residence in the neighborhood of London. My host, his intelligent wife, and a gentleman who may be called X, were in the house when I arrived. I was informed that the "medium" had not yet made her appearance; that she was sensitive, and might resent suspicion. It was therefore requested that the tables and chairs should be examined before her arrival, in order to be assured that there was no trickery in the furniture. This was done, and I then first learned that my hospitable host had arranged that the seance should be a dinner party. This was to me an unusual form of investigation, but I accepted it, as one of the accidents of the occasion.

The "medium" arrived—a delicate looking young lady, who appeared to have suffered much from ill health. I took her to dinner and sat close beside her. Feats were absent for a considerable time, a series of very wonderful narratives supplying their place. The duty of belief on testimony was frequently insisted on. X appeared to be a chosen spiritual agent, and told us many surprising things. He affirmed that when he took a pea in his hand, an influence ran from his shoulder downward, and impelled him to write oracular sentences. I listened for a time, offering no observation.

And now? continued X, this power has so risen as to reveal to me the thoughts of others. Only this morning I told a friend what he was thinking of, and what he intended doing during the day.

Here, I thought, is something that can be at once tested.

I said immediately to X: If you wish to win to your cause an apostle, who will postpone your principles to the world without fear, tell me what I am thinking of.

X reddened, and did not tell me my thought.

Some time previously I had visited Baron Reichenbach, in Vienna, and I now asked the young lady who sat beside me, whether she could see any of the curious things which he describes—the light emitted by crystals, for example?

Here in the conversation which followed, as extracted from my notes, written on the day following the seance:

Medium—Oh, yes, but I see light around all bodies.

I—Even in perfect darkness?

Medium—Yes, I see luminous atmospheres round all people. The atmosphere which surrounds Mr. R. C. would fill this room with light.

I—You are aware of the effects ascribed by Baron Reichenbach to magnets?

Medium—Yes, but a magnet makes me horribly ill.

I—Am I to understand that, if this room were perfectly dark, you could tell whether it contained a magnet, without being informed of the fact?

Medium—I should know of its presence on entering the room.

I—How?

Medium—I should be rendered instantly ill.

I—How do you feel to-day?

Medium—Particularly well, I have not been so well for months.

I—Then, may I ask you whether there is, at the present moment, a magnet in my possession?

The young lady looked at me, blushed, and stammered, No, I am not en rapport with you.

I sat at her right hand, and a left hand pocket, within six inches of her person, contained a magnet.

Our host here deprecated discussion, as it exhausted the medium. The wonderful narratives were resumed, but I had narrative of my own quite as wonderful. These spirits indeed, seemed clumsy creations, compared with those with which my own researches had made me familiar. I therefore began to match the wonders related to me by other wonders.

A lady present discoursed on spiritual atmospheres, which she could see as beautiful colors when she closed her eyes.

I professed myself able to see similar colors, and more than that, to be able to see the interior of my own eyes.

The medium affirmed that she could see actual waves of light coming from the sun.

I retorted that men of science could tell the exact number of waves emitted in a second, and also their exact length.

The medium spoke of the performances of the spirits on musical instruments.

I said that such performance was gross, in comparison with a kind of music which had been discovered some time previously by a scientific man. Standing at a distance of twenty feet from a jet of gas, he could command the flame to emit a melodious note, it would obey, and continue its song for hours. So loud was the music emitted by the gas flame, that it might be heard by an assembly of a thousand people.

These were acknowledged to be as great marvels as those of spiritdom. The spirits were then consulted, and I was pronounced to be a first class medium.

During this conversation a low knocking was heard from time to time under the table. These were the spirits' knocks. I was informed that one knock, in answer to a question, meant no, that two knocks meant not yet, and that three knocks meant yes.

In answer to the question whether I was a medium, the response was three brisk and vigorous knocks. I noticed that the knocks issued from a particular locality, and therefore requested the spirits to be good enough to answer from another corner of the table. They did not comply, but I was assured that they would do it, and much more by-and-by. The knocks continuing, I turned a wineglass upside down, and placed my ear upon it, as upon a stethoscope. The spirits seemed disconcerted by the act, they lost their playfulness, and did not quite recover it for a considerable time.

Somewhat weary of the proceedings, I once threw myself back against my chair, and gazed listlessly out of window.

While thus engaged, the table was rudely pushed. Attention was drawn to the wine, still oscillating in the glasses, and I was asked whether that was not convincing. I readily granted the fact of motion, and began to feel the delicacy of my position. There were several pairs of arms upon the table, and several pairs of legs under it, but how was I, without offence, to express the conviction which I really entertained? To ward off the difficulty I again turned a wineglass upside town and rested my ear upon it. The rim of the glass was not level, and the hair on touching it caused it to vibrate and produce a peculiar buzzing sound.

A perfectly candid and warm hearted old gentleman at the opposite side of the table, whom I may call A, drew attention to the sound, and expressed entire belief that it was spiritual.

I, however, informed him that it was the moving hair acting on the glass. The explanation was not well received, and X in a tone of severe pleasantry, demanded whether it was the hair that had moved the table. The promptness of my negative probably satisfied him that my notion was a very different one.

The superhuman power of the spirits was next dwelt upon. The strength of man, it was stated, was unavailing in in opposition to theirs. No human power could prevent the table from moving when they pulled it.

During the evening this pulling of the table occurred, or rather was attempted three times. Twice the table moved when my attention was withdrawn from it, on the third attempt I tried whether the act could be provoked by an assumed air of inattention. Grasping the table firmly between my knees I threw myself back in the chair and waited with my eyes fixed on vacancy for the pull. It came. For some seconds it was pull spirit, hold muscle, the muscle, however, prevailed and the table remained at rest.

Up to the present, moment, this interesting fact is known only to the particular spirit and myself.

A species of mental scene painting, with which my own pursuits had long rendered me familiar, was employed to figure the changes and distribution of spiritual power. The spirits were provided with atmospheres, which continued with and interpenetrated each other, considerable ingenuity being shown in demonstrating the necessity of time in effecting the adjustment of the atmospheres. In fact, just as in science, the senses, time, and space, constituted the conditions of the phenomena. A re-arrangement of powers was proposed and carried out; and soon afterward my attention was drawn to a sensibly sensible vibration on the part of the table. Several persons were leaning on the table at the time, and I asked permission to touch the medium's hand.

Oh, I know I tremble, was her reply.

Throwing one leg across the other, I accidentally nipped a muscle, and produced thereby an involuntary vibration of the free leg. This vibration I knew must be communicated to the floor and thence to the chairs of all present. I therefore intentionally promoted it.

My attention was promptly drawn to the motion, and a gentleman beside me, whose value as a witness I was particularly anxious to test, expressed his belief that it was out of the compass of human power to produce so strange a tremor. I believe, he added earnestly that it is entirely the spirits work.

So do I, added with heat, the candid and warm hearted old gentlemen A. Why sir, he continued, I feel them at this moment shaking my chair.

I stopped the motion of the leg.

Now sir, A exclaimed, they are gone.

I began again, and A once more ejaculated.

I could, however, notice that there were doubters present, who did not quite know what to think of the manifestations. I saw their perplexity, and as there was sufficient reason to believe that the disclosure of the secret would simply provoke anger, I kept it to myself.

Again a period of conversation intervened, during which the spirits became animated. The evening was confessedly a dull one, but matters appeared to brighten towards its close. The spirits were requested to spell the name by which I am known in the heavenly world.

Our host commenced repeating the alphabet, and when he reached the letter P a knock was heard. He began again, and the spirits knocked at the letter O. I was puzzled, but waited for the end. The next letter knocked down was E. I laughed and remarked that the spirits were going to make a poet of me. Admonished for my levity I was informed that the frame of mind proper for the occasion ought to have been superinduced by a perusal of the Bible immediately before the seance.

The spelling, however, went on, and sure enough I came out a poet. But matters did not end here. Our host continued his repetition of the alphabet and the next letter of the name proved to be O. Here was manifestly an unfinished word, and the spirits were apparently in their most communicative mood. The knocks came from under the table, but no person present evinced the slightest desire to look under it. I asked whether I might go underneath, and the permission was granted, so I crept under the table.

Some tittered, but the candid old A exclaimed—He has a right to look into the very dregs of it to convince him self.

Having pretty well assured myself that no sound could be produced under the table without its origin being revealed, I requested our host to continue his questions. He did so, but in vain. He adopted a tone of tender entreaty, but the dear spirits had become dumb dogs and refused to be entreated

I continued under that table for at least a quarter of an hour, after which, with a feeling of despair as regards the prospects of humanity never before experienced, I regained my chair. Once there, the spirits resumed their loquacity, and dubbed me the Poet of Science.

This, then, is the result of an attempt made by a scientific man to look into these spiritual phenomena. It is not encouraging, and for this reason:

The present promoters of spiritual phenomena divide themselves into two classes, one of which needs no demonstration, while the other is beyond the reach of proof. The victims like to believe, and they do not like to be undeceived.

Science is perfectly powerless in the presence of this state of mind. It is moreover, a state perfectly compatible with extreme intellectual subtlety and a capacity for devising hypotheses which only require the harshhood engendered by strong conviction, or by callous mendacity, to render them impregnable. The logical feebleness of science is not sufficiently borne in mind. It keeps down the weed of superstition, not by logic but by slowly rendering the mental soil unfit for its cultivation.

When science appeals to uniform experience, the spiritualist will retort—"How do you know that a uniform experience will continue uniform? You tell me that the sun has risen for six thousand years, that is no proof that it will rise to-morrow, within the next twelve hours it may be puffed out by the Almighty."

Taking this ground, a man may maintain the story of "Jack and the Bean-stalk" in the face of all the science in the world.

You urge, in vain, that science has given us all the knowledge of the universe which we now possess, while spiritualism has added nothing to that knowledge. The drugged soul is beyond the reach of reason. It is vain that imposters are exposed, and the special demon cast out. He has but slightly to change his shape, return to his house and find it "empty, swept, and garnished."

The Queen at Kirk.

The British Mail says: "The Queen, dressed in black, and attended by three of her children, noiselessly entered Crathie kirk. She proceeded to the royal pew to bow her head in silent prayer. The congregation sit during the singing of the psalms and rise to prayer, and the Queen set the example of conforming to the ancient rule as still observed. With the aid of her glasses she looked up the place in the psalm-book and joined in the singing, which, by the way, is conducted by a well trained choir. She rose to her feet with the congregation, and remained standing during the long prayers to the end. The collection is "lifted" at the conclusion of the services, and no reservation is made when the ladle comes to the royal pew. Her Majesty is ready with her collection in hand. She quietly drops the royal offering, which is a ten-pound note, in among the jingling coppers. During the lifting of the collection, the choir sang a doxology, and very beautifully it was sung. Before leaving the church, the Queen stood with her head bowed in silent prayer a few moments. Then her daughter threw a black mantle around her, and as quietly as she had entered her Majesty departed." "What a splendid woman."

"An exciting scene took place a few days ago at the public [illegible]

EFFECTS OF INTEMPERANCE.

ENQUIRIES OF THE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE

The Committee appointed to enquire into the working of the Tavern and Shop Licence Act of 1868, and also into the best means of suppressing the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, have held several meetings. A Sub-Committee was appointed to draft a series of questions to be sent to various persons throughout the country. This Committee has reported, and the following list of questions have been agreed to, which will without delay be sent to the following persons:—

To the Clergy.—1. Extent of the evils of drunkenness. 2. Probable cause thereof. 3. Results of intemperance. 4. The best remedy therefor.

To the Judges, Police and Stipendiary Magistrates.—1. What proportion of the crime passed upon under your jurisdiction has been the result of intemperance? 2. In what respect do you consider licensing the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage productive of crime? 3. What remedial measures against intemperance will you kindly suggest in the present state of legal enactments as best calculated to arrest the evil?

To Sheriffs, County Attorneys, Chief Constables, Inspectors of Gaols and Reformatories.—1. What proportion of those presented before you as criminals have been the victims of intemperance? 2. To what extent do your official records, as well as your own observation, point to the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage as productive of crime? 3. What best remedial measures against this crime do you suggest?

To Superindendents of Lunatic Asylums and Hospitals, Wardens of penitentiaries and Reformatories. Gaol Surgeons Overseers of Houses of Refuge and other charities, Superintendents of Poorhouses. 1. What proportion of those who have come under your charge have been the victims of intemperance? 2. How far do you consider the health of the intemperate to be affected by total abstinence from intoxicating drinks? 3. What remedial measures against intemperance do you suggest.

To Coroners.—1. What proportions of inquests and deaths supervised by you as coronor have been the result of intemperance. 2. What prompt efficient remedial measures against intemperance can you suggest? Let your answers embrace three years past.

To Railway Managers, Owners and Masters of Vessels.—What proportion of accidents can you trace to the use of intoxicating drinks, and what is the percentage to the property destroyed annually from these causes alone in your company of vessels? 2. As between total abstainers and those workmen who use more or less of liquor as a beverage, state their comparative efficiency and trustworthiness.

To Manufacturers and Contractors.—1. Is there any preference in favour of total abstainers as agents clerks, foremen and workmen in your employ—2. In what respect do you consider the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage in those classes productive of injury.

To Insurance Companies.—What difference if any, do you make in regard to insurances on life as between total abstainers and those who use intoxicating liquor as a beverage? Also on fire and marine insurances, what difference, if any, do you make in insuring a vessel sailed by a captain and crew who are total abstainers.

OUR LITERARY TABLE.

The Science of Health

For March is one of the best numbers yet published, of this new and popular monthly, which is rapidly growing in public favor. Devoted to a subject of vital importance to the human race, it deserves a world wide circulation. This March number contains Popular Physiology and Diseases of the Eye, with engraved illustrations; Bald Heads on Young Shoulders; Signs of a Healthy Child; Cruelty to the Young; Vaccination Problem; Disease and its Treatment Seasonable Dishes, and How to Cook Them; Alcohol and Opium; Health of Barkers; Health of Women; Airing Bedrooms, and a mass of other interesting reading matter. It is published at the popular price of $2 a year, or 20 cents a number, including a fine Chromo to new subscribers. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York.

The Lady's Friend

The March number of this charming Magazine opens with two handsome engravings—one called "In the Spring Woods," expressly designed for this Magazine by Bensell, and the other "The Castle of Wartburg." After a number of engravings of the latest Fashions, there is a piece of music, "Tired" by Miss Helen Burnside. Among the literary matter we find "Dorortheа," by Fannie Hodgson; "Una and her Prince," by A. L. Muzzy; "Three Pictures," by M. F. Ames; "Rebecca Hind's Career, by Ella Rodman Church; "The Fostering of Aslaug," by Helen A. Shaw; "The Master of Greylands," by Mrs. Henry Wood, author of "East Lynne;" "Charlotte Bronte," by Vesta, &c., &c. Send for a sample number. Price, $2.00 a year, or $3.00 with the Premium Chromo, "Little Samuel." Four copies $6 00. Eight copies (and one gratis) $12.00. "The Lady's Friend" ($2.00) and "The Saturday Evening Post" ($3.00) for 4.50. The Premium Chromo or a large Steel Engraving is also given to the sender of every club. Single numbers (for sale by all Newsdealers) price 20 cents. Published by DEACON & PATERSON, 319 Walnut St Philadelphia.

The Montreal Herald states that Mr Francis Hincks has accepted the Presidency of the City Bank of Montreal.

Under the new law for the punishment of intoxication passed by the French Assembly 122 drunkards have been arrested within 48 hours.

The Norwood Register regrets to learn that Mr. Alfred Hodgins, of Dummer, met with a very serious accident on Tuesday last. He was chopping cedar on his farm, when his axe struck a branch in a tree close by him, and glancing struck his foot, cutting into the ankle bone and extending from a little above the ankle under the sole of the foot. Dr. Patterson of this village was speedily in attendance, and rendered the necessary medical assistance.

SAFE ARRIVAL OF SALMON EGGS.—The German steamer Weser at New York on on Monday with 750,60 salmon eggs, 250,000 of which constitute a present from of the Government of Germany by an agent of the United States. Considering the severity of the weater, the eggs were in as good condition as cold be expected. —They were carefully packed with moss, in sixty large boxes, the whole occupying on board ship 280 cubic feet. The eggs cost $2 per 1,000, and upon unpacking them a small percentage was found to be dead.

The cobourg Sentinel says that on Saturday last James Gilmore, a tailor by trade, well known to the farmers of this vicinity and in Haldimand and Alanwick, got on a periodical spree, and while under the influence of liquor went to the house Mr. Alexander in Alanwick. Being familiar with the family, they retired for the night leaving him, sitting at the kitchen fire, but upon rising in the morning they found him dead in the same position as they had left him A coroner's inquest was held upon the body, the jury returning a verdict to the effect that he came to his death from intemperance. The deceased was about 60 years of age.

NEW SEED STORE!

New Firm.

Giles & Mason

SEEDSMEN,

Nurserymen & Florists

PETERBORO, ONT.

Have great pleasure in announcing to the public the opening of a new Seed Store, next door to Hewett's Hotel, Simcoe Street, Peterboro, and in so doing would call special attention to the following facts:—

1st. That their stock of seeds has been imported by themselves direct, from the most extensive and reliable Seed Growers in Europe and in America.

2nd. That in consequence of their not being engaged in the Seed business heretofore, they have no old seeds to sell or trust with new stock.

3rd. That the Seeds they offer are of last year's growth.

4th. That should they at any time have Seeds of a doubtful character they have ample facilities for testing their vitality in a Hot House before offering them for sale

5th. That one of the firm has been for a number of years Market Gardener for the last fifteen years, and may with safety be considered well qualified for selecting Seeds suitable to the wants of the public.

6th. That those who may be induced to favor them with their patronage, will find their prices—if not lower—as low as any reliable Seedsmen in America.

In consideration of the above facts, they feel confident that a discriminating public will see the advantages of their purchasing Seeds of the above firm in preference to those who sell on commission and return what is unsold. (Is her bounteous of too seed returned?)

The above firm would respectfully inform the public that in connection with the Seed business, they are engaged in raising Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Plants, and will be happy to wait on all who may be pleased to visit their Nursery Grounds which are situated immediately adjoining the Town of Peterboro, on the Port Hope Road, where, in addition to the above, there is a large Green-house in which are grown a large assortment of Green-house and Bedding Plants, specimens of which can at all times be seen at their Seed Store, by those who may not have the opportunity of visiting the Green-house.

Seedling Plants of Vegetables and flowers of every kind, suitable to the climate, in their season, at lower rates than elsewhere—a supply of which can be obtained at the Seed Store, as well as at the Nursery.

All orders for Seeds, Trees, Shrubs, Flowers, &c., &c., accompanied with a remittance, or satisfactory reference, will be promptly attended to, either by Mr. Mason who will be in attendance at the Store, or by Mr. Giles, who will be found at all times at the Nursery.

Address all orders to GILES & MASON, Peterboro Nurseries, Box 454, Peterboro P.O., Ontario.

CANAD AN PAIN DESTROYER

A family medicine, well and favourably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a blood purifier alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains chilblains, cholera morbus, bilious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL

Worth Ten Times it's Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, it is time you did.

There are but few preparations of medicine which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people of any length of time. One of these is THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL, purely a preparation of six of some of the best. Oils that are known, each one possessing virtues of its own. Scientific physicians know that medicines may be formed of several ingredients in certain fixed proportions of greater power and producing effects which could never result from the use of any one of them, or in different combinations. Thus in the preparation, of this Oil a chemical change takes place, forming a compound which could not by any possibility be made from any other combination or proportions of the same ingredients, and entirely different from anything ever before made, one which produces the most astonishing results, and having a wider range of application than any medicine ever before discovered.—Wherever applied you get the benefit of every trait; whereas with other preparations nearly all the alcohol is lost in that way, and you get only the small of Oils which they may contain.

IMPROVE NUTRITION.

The centeral idea in the treatment of all Chronic Wasting Diseases, resulting in Nervous Prostration and General Debility, is to improve the Digestion and Assimilation of Food, and the formation of Healthy Blood. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya contains the only agents known that can as exciteants of nutrition, by imparting tone to the Stomach, Liver and Pancreas, the great tripod that prepares nourishment for building up the organs and tissues of the body. The action of this remarkable preparation is extraordinary in strengthening and vitalizing the constitution, whether impaired by age exhausted by excesses, bad habits, or run down by old complaints that have resisted all ordinary methods of treatment.

Being a delicious cordial to take, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances, it is eminently adapted to pregnant, nursing women and delicate children.

Select Poetry.

By the Firelight.

I sit in my lonely study,
When the children have said good night,
And vacantly gaze on the pictures
In the red fire's flickering light.
The shadows of days that are coming,
The shadows of days gone by,
Pass in procession of sorrow
Before my pensive eye.

A face—Ah, name to me dearer—
Looks out of the mystic red,
'Tis a fair son of earth but of Heaven,
The face of the lovely dead.
Thine was the cheerful affection
That lightened the burden of life,
Oh can it be true there hast left me,
My darling! my love! my wife!

Changed is the scene of my sorrow,
And now from the shadowy land
A child comes dancing before me,
And stretching a tiny hand.
Ah, many a day must I wander
Through the dark valley of pain,
Before I can wear on my bosom
That little blossom again.

Changed is the scene of my sorrow,
And I see in the ruddy gleam
A ship driving down to the ocean
On a swift and turbulent stream,
And looking over the bulwark,
Among the good ship's crew,
My boys, the pride of my manhood,
Are waving a sad adieu.

And lo, where the fire burns dimmer,
An old man withered and grey,
His children are gathered around him,
For his soul is passing away.
And I mark how the tears are falling
Fast on the old man's bed,
Now he lifts his head toward Heaven,
And now they gaze on the dead.

Alas for the sorrowful faces,
That throng on my painful sight,
Oh, is there no vision for comfort
In all these crannies of light?
Is there no picture of Heaven,
And the saints that are gathered there?
Or will it rise only to answer
To the heart-breaking throes of prayer.

RAILROAD FLIRTATION.

"Katonalty" shouted the breakman opening the car door as the train passed before a pleasant station on the Harlem railroad.—

I do not know that I should have particularly noticed that we stopped at all, for I had been napping it for several miles, but just as I was casting an inquiring, glance out of the window, and settling myself for another siesta, my attention was attracted by the entering of a young lady, a way passenger, who, preceding that the car was well filled, paused before me in evident embarrassment.

I scarcely wish the reader to infer from this that there were no vacant seats; on the contrary, the chair I occupied was selfishly monopolised by my shawl and valise, which had excluded many a applicant; and so when the door opened I mentally resolved not to budge an inch; but a glance at the new comer changed my mind.

She was a young lady of exceeding beauty dressed in the rich and tasteful style of the present fashion. Whether it was a genteel aspect or the soft melancholy of her dark impressive eyes, I cannot say, but she ventured almost timidly, to inquire if the half seat by my side was "engaged." I gallantly arose and proferred it to her at once. I must acknowledge that I felt somewhat flattered by her preference, for though a young man and tolerable good looking, I had sense to perceive that there were other ones around, who, like me, might have shared their chair with the handsome young lady stranger. I fancied, too, as the fair girl sat plump down and her dainty form nestled close to my side, that they envived me.

"I fear I have disturbed you," said my companion in a low sweet voice that thrilled me with its cadence.

"Not at all Miss." I rejoined with stereotyped politeness. "I am so happy to oblige you."

She bowed and smiled a reply and then a short pause ensued, as usual upon such short aqcuaintanceship. In the meantime the train had started and we rattled swiftly through the fields and woods, now decked with the tints of spring. The conductor came in and went his customary routine examining the tickets.

I perceived hers was marked New York, and after some hesitation I said:

"You go to the city?"

"Yes," she replied, with a smile of winning candor; "that I presume you have already found out,"

"I shall keep you company then" I observed pleasantly.

"Thank you, sir."

There was a slight dignity I thought in her tone, which repelled further familiarity, so, as I am a very modest man, I drew back and said nothing further.

On rushed the iron horse in its iron pathway. One more station had been passed, and I was fast relapsing into my former apathy, when my lady friend, to my surprise leaned toward me and whispered.

"I am so timid on the cars."

"Indeed," said I, quite charmed by her abruptness; you surely are accustomed to travelling?"

"Perfectly" she replied, with some non chalance; "but that is not it exactly. There are so many dreadful accidents on the railroads."

"Dreadful indeed," echoed I.

"And," added my companion, with naivette, "it is so unpleasant to travel unattended. I usually have my brother Charlie with me; he is a splendid escort."

"If you will allow me," said I quite gallantly, "I will gladly occupy that position."

"I am much obliged to you sir," replied the lady, with a graceful glance from her dark orbs; I am accepting the escort from a stranger—not that I fear you sir; but, alas! I have a jealous father!"

"A jealous father!" I replied, somewhat puzzled and surprised.

"Ah, yes," said the young lady, "it is my misfortune, while having wealth, health, and almost everything the heart can wish, to be under the tyrannical control of an old step-father, who treats me oftentimes in the most cruel manner—debars me from the society of your sex, shuts me up in the dreary confines of my chamber, and treats me with a pitiless rigor, it I do so much as speak or look at a man."

"What a monster," I ejaculated with a face of melo-dramatic sympathy.

"That is the reason she continued looking around, "why I am so diffident about intrusting myself to your care, but I do it upon one condition."

"Name it!" I rejoined, charmed and delighted with the strange confidence the lady was reposing in me.

"That you will leave me the instant the cars reach New York."

I was so bewildered by the beauty and charming innocence of my new friend, that I readily gave the desired pledge; apparently quite relieved, the young lady threw aside all reserve, and talked and chatted with me in the most pleasant manner. It is needless to say that in an hour's time I had so far advanced into her good grace as to venture to press her hand, and the sweet and half coquetish smile that played around the corners of her cherry lips, did not seem to disapprove the liberty I had taken.

"Do you know," said she, as we sat talking confidentially together, that I liked your face the first time that I saw it."

"It was sympathetic on both sides then," I whispered, drawing so near to her that I could feel her breath upon my cheek.

"Yes," she murmured, gently withdrawing herself from my glowing embrace, for we had passed through a tunnel, and I had taken a lover's advantage and snatched a hasty kiss.

"You are a naughty man, the naughtiest man I ever saw," she said in a low and tremulous voice. "If Pa should be on the train what would he say?"

"Never fear, sweet creature," I rejoined earnestly, your cross old father is miles away, and let us improve the present opportunity."

"Are you aware," she observed, half mischieviously, "that there is another tunnel beyond, a great deal darker too, than the one we have left."

"I know it," said I, with a tender glance at my fair enslaver. "We are drawing near it very fast."

Once more I placed my arm around the waist of the young lady, and, wrapped in the gloom of the tunnel, took many pledges of affection, which was gratifying to my vanity—all good-looking young men are vain you know—to see that my lovely companion clung more affectionately to me than before; indeed, I had scarcely time to tear myself from her arms, when we entered once more into broad daylight. She had let her veil drop over her face, and I could detect the crimson flush through the fine network of lace. Her voice betrayed her agitation as she whispered.

"I have gone too far with you, sir; alas you have ceased to respect me."

"My sweet charmer!" I ejaculated, "let us be friends; give me your name and address."

"my name and address you must never know; I already feel half frightened to think how far I have permitted myself to venture with a stranger.—Forgive and forget."

"A flirt, a coquette."

"No, no!" she returned hurriedly, pressing my hand. "I am not a flirt, but I dare not let the acquaintance proceed further. Have pity on me; save pity."

She looked so pleadingly, and with those soft eyes gleaming through the meshes of her veil, that I could not persuade myself to be offended with her.

At last she reluctantly consented to give her name, and, handing me a prettily embossed card, I read:

"Kate Darrell, N.——University place."

The train had reached Thirty-second Street, and I could readily see that my fair incognita was every moment more restless. First she peered out of the window; then she would half rise, and cast a hurried fearful glance behind.

Already I was beginning to share the uncomfortable feeling of my companion, as the visions of an angry papa flourishing a cane over the rose vividly painted on mamma's face, when suddenly Miss Darrell uttered an exclamation, and darted from the car.

I wondered at the ease and dexterity with which she responded, for the car was propelled quite rapidly by horse power, but my wonder and surprise were considerably increased when a short time after a stern looking individual entered the car from the other side inquisitively scanning the face of every passenger.

"Hallo!" said he rather gruffly, pausing before me, "has a young lady been occupying this seat?"

"Yes, sir," I replied, somewhat disconcerted and quite abashed.

"Light jockey, maroon silk, and grey travelling cloak."

"I believe that was her costume," I replied, somewhat sulkily.

"Why? She's given me the slip again."

"Given you the slip?"

"Yes, the jade, she is as sharp as a needle."

"Pray," said I with a slight sense of suffocation, "may I be so bold as to inquire if you are the father of that young lady?"

"Father!—no, sir—I am a detective."

"Then, continued I, with a desperate calmness, "who is that young lady?"

"Bless your soul, she is Nancy Dacors, the fashionable pickpocket. Why, sir, she has been playing her point on you."

The detective grinned, and the passengers gradually comprehending the "situation" smiled provokingly. So my beautiful travelling companion was nothing more than a member of the "swell mob," and I, while flattering myself upon making a conquest, in reality had been the victim of a designing deceiver, and while I was snatching those kisses she had dexterously relieving me of my watch and purse, and as I never saw her or my valuables again, it may be readily believed that I was thereafter not quite so eager for a railroad flirtation.

SHARP IF TRUE.—At a telegraph office, early one morning, a young gentleman operator, after repeated calls for a young lady operator in another office, at last gets a response, and then "click, click, click, click," (tortissimo), he telegraphs back to her vehemently: —"I've been trying to catch you for the last half hour!" In a moment the following spicy reply comes tripping back to him over the wires from the telegraphic maiden:—"That,s nothing! there's a young man here who has been trying to do the same thing for the last two years, and he hasn't caught me yet?"

A WIFE of nearly ten yeras, having given her servant a holiday, was attending ordinary matters herself, and hearing her husband coming into the kitchen, thought she would surprise him as soon as he entered the door by throwing her hands over his eyes, and imprinted a kiss on his brow, as in the days of the honeymoon. The husband returned the salute with interest, and asked, as he disengaged her hands "Mary, darling, where is your mistress?" The wife discharged "Mary, darling," the next day, and has adopted a new plan of "surprising" her husband.

AN EXCELLENT VARNISH FOR HARNESS.—Procure half a pound of gum shellac, according to the quantity desired; break the scales fine, and put them in a jug or bottle, and alcohol sufficient to cover the gum; cork tightly, and place it where it will be kept warm. In about two days, if shaken frequently, the gum will be dissolved and ready for use. If the liquid appears as thick as thin molasses, add more alcohol. To one quart of varnish add one ounce of gum camphor. Such varnish will not render leather hard, but will keep the harness from becoming soaked with water; and the surface clean and neat for a long time. A coat of it will effectually prevent the oil in the leather from soiling one's hands. Nothing is better to render a farmer's boots water proof, than an occasional coat of this leather varnish.

Choice Poetry.

Rustic Coquetry.

BY MRS. EMMA SOARS LEDEHAM.

Hennessee! How stupid! Why John, you are dreaming.
You surely can't mean in the least what you say,
Go, go, in the hay-yard the cows are all waiting,
The calves must be fed, and the milk put away.

Let them wait? He indeed. Why John did I ever
I thought you were always so steady at work,
For years you've been held as a pattern to others,
And never was known the least duty to shirk.

So you mean to remain till I tell you I love you?
How threatsome you are John, I love you of course—
So, stay where you are—as I love all good people—
Now don't look so stern, John, I might have said worse.

You're going away now to leave me forever?
Stay John, just one moment, sit down again please,
You know that from childhood, like sister and brother
We've been, and I—well, I was always a tease.

Love you best? Be your wife? Let us wait a few years John,
There's time enough yet, we're both young you know.
Hark! the clock's striking six, and my supper's not ready,
Let go of my hand sir, how can you set so?

You will have the word from my lips? well then take it,
How wilful you are John, how bold I declare!
There's a footstep, thank goodness that somebody's coming,
It's mother, now kiss me again if you dare.

Boys, Learn Trades.

Farming is a trade, and a well educated boy will find on the farm an ample field for the exercise of all his faculties. He will study the experiences of intelligent farmers which he will see spread in the agricultural journals, and he will find ample food for thought while engaged in his duties on the farm. Farming ought not; must not, in this advanced age, be held to be a humdrum business, requiring no mind, no aiming for a higher life. The well educated mind must direct the labors of the hand, and then the sons of the farm will take the position that God and nature intended for them. The movements of colleges to educate the farmer—to give him just the education he needs—is a feature of the times. It bodes good to the man of the tanned brow and hard hand.

A recent event in our city has strongly impressed us with the profound judgment and energy of parents in giving their sons mechanical trades. Now, required to make the struggle of life alone, with their trades they go forth into the world with a feeling of independence that ensures success. When the sons of other parents, too proud to secure their boys trades—who would prefer to see them cutting tape, or weighing out butter—are in time without employment—too frequently loafing in saloons and kindred places, how will they lament the infatuation of their misjudging parents. While those young men who left home took up the saw, and the plane, and the sledge, secured to themselves valuable trades, will rise up in their heart of hearts, think of their parents and call them blessed.

Boys, the days of youth are intended to fit you for your manhood—to fit you to take the places of those men now passing before you, on whose shoulders rests the great superstructure of civilized and christianized society. Will you by breaking the yoke in your youth, will you by improving the days more valuable to you than the richest diamonds—fit yourselves for the performance of the earnest duties which will come upon you, as soon as you must take up the struggle of life alone.—Pastic Advocate.

Choosing a Career.

Let every young man choose his own occupation in life. In any event let him choose it. If he has no particular bias or bent, let him find something to do, all the same. A parent or guardian may say: "It appears to me that your walk in life lies this way," and point out the advantages likely to accrue or that can be absolutely given him if he adopts the suggestion, but this is all that should be done. If he revolts, or objects and says, "I cannot," do not retort with "you shall, or you are no son of mine." You will live to repent it. You will wear sackcloth and ashes for it. Humble yourself a little before you overthrow him. A boy has a right to his choice. How can you force him to learn a trade for which he has no aptness except that he has been seen to make things that a child naturally amuses himself by? You cannot, you have no right. Consider the matter somewhat. If he is a tractable, affectionate, and docile boy, so much the worse; you use his natural affection as a vehicle to work your will with him, not seeing that in after-life he will become a listless, moody, inefficient laborer in the vineyard, because you trained him to a stake, or spread him on a wall, instead of allowing him to go free and unfettered, as he should. Consider this matter in some other light than your own inclinations. He will doubtless live many years after you are gone.—How shall he best perpetuate your name and family? By following his own natural inclinations, or by trying to form his nature to run on a track too wide or too narrow a guage for him.—Think over it.—Scientific American.

Mr. Wilson, late opposition canidate for Selkirk, Manitoba, has been fined for refusing to sit in the same grand jury with Lepine, who commanded the party that "shot" Scott.

A MARRIED man in Idaho, who eloped with a young girl had just four hours the start of a double-barrel shot gun. His wife was at one end of that shot gun, and persons who are acquainted with the parties think there must have been trouble when they met, for she has returned with an empty gun, and seems entirely satisfied now.

A DUTCHMAN'S TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—"I shall tell you how it vos. I drink mine beer; den I put mine hand on mine head, and tere vos von pain. Den I put mine hand in mine pocket, and tere vas nothing. So I jine mit desmperance. Now tere ish no pain in mine head, and de pain in mine pody vos all gone away. I put mine hand in mine pocket, and tere vos dwendy dollar. So I stay mit de desmperance beoples."

"HUMPH!" said an Englishman to a Scotchman, as they were walking over the fields, "oats are all very well in their way, but in England we feed them to our horses, while here they are food for men." "Ay, ay!" said the Scotchman, "an just see what fine horses there are in England, and what fine men we have in Scotland."

A Clergyman, in endeavoring to explain the warming, vivifying influence of love in the heart of man, at last said, "Why love is the elementary principal of warmth and life, as may be seen, by the fact that on the coldest winter's day a loving young couple will be all aglow in a room in which a frosty old bachelor would freeze to death.

MISS SAWYER'S SALVE.

HERE you have a salve combining soothing and healing properties, with no dangerous ingredient. A remedy at hand for the many pains and aches, wounds and bruises to which flesh is heir. Is more easily applied than many other remedies, never producing a bad effect, but always relieving as a rule, however severe.

It is prepared by Miss Sawyer, who has used it in her own extensive treatment of the sick, for nearly twenty years, with great success.

The principal diseases for which this salve is recommended are, Chilblains, Rheumatism, Piles, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Sprains, Burns, Scurvy, Sores, Fitness, Frostbite, Erysipelas, Sore Eyes, Barber's Itch, Deafness, Boils, Ring-worms, Corns, Bites of Insects, Cancers, Tetchache, Earache, Sore Nipples, Baldness, Swellings, Bruises, Itch, Scald Head, Toothing, Chaps, Hands, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Croup, Cracked Lips, and Sores on Children.

It never fails to cure Rheumatism if properly applied. Rub it on well with the hand three times a day. In several cases it has cured palsied limbs. For Piles it has been discovered to be a sure remedy. Persons that have been afflicted for years have been relieved by a few applications. For Erysipelas it works wonders, allaying the inflammation and quieting the patient. For Chapped Hands it produces a cure immediately. Let those with Salt Rheum obtain this Salve, and apply it freely, and they will find it invaluable. It is good in cases of Scrofula and Tumors. Cancers have been cured with it. The best Salve ever invented for Swollen Breast and Sore Nipples. No way injurious, but sure to afford relief. Sore or Weak Eyes—Rub it on the side gently, once or twice a day. Cure deafness by putting in the ears on a piece of cotton. For Piles this is superior to anything known. For Pimples the acts like a charm. For Burns and Scalds, apply the Salve at once and it gives immediate relief. For Old Sores, apply once a day.

Not among the least of the invaluable properties of Miss SAWYER'S SALVE are its beneficial effects on the hair. Rubbed on the scalp, in five or six different parts, it promotes the growth of the hair, prevents it turning grey, and on bald spots it produces a new growth of hair. No lady should be without this invaluable article as it is indispensable for the toilet. It eradicates dandruff and disease from the head, and blotches and pimples from the face.

From Mrs. ELIZABETH COOMBS, Brunswick.

Brunswick, April 4, 1871.

MISS SAWYER: I received your letter last evening, and was very glad you concluded to let me take your Salve. I think I do and will do, and it will be quite an accommodation to my husband, as he cannot get along without it. He has tried everything else and have never found anything that healed his leg as that Salve of yours, and we have both found it to be all, and even more, than you recommend it to be. We have had it in the family five or six years, and have used it for everything, and can truly say we have never found its equal. I use it for a weak back, and it acts like a charm. Mr. Coombs has had a Fever Sore on his leg for thirty years, and would be a cripple for life, if he had not found a remedy in your Salve. It keeps it healed, and takes out the inflammation, proud flesh and swelling, and does for him all that he can ask. I can recommend it for a good many things that you have not, for I use it for everything. I consider it indispensable in a family. If you can put this testimony together, and it can be of any service to you, you are welcome.

Yours, &c., ELIZABETH COOMBS.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

If your Druggist is out of the Salve, and neglects to keep supplied, send seventy-five cents as directed below, and receive a box by return mail.

Put up in Large Boxes at 50 cents each (nearly three times as large as the box represented above). Prepared by MISS C. SAWYER, and put up by L. M. ROBBINS, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Rockland, Me. A Trial Box sent free by mail on receipt of sixty cents, by L. M. ROBBINS, Rockland, Me.

THIS VALUABLE SALVE IS SOLD BY ALL DEALERS IN MEDICINES.
